

Student-Produced Videotapes Win National Competition

Two videotapes produced by SUNY Plattsburgh students have won first and second place awards in a national competition. Maple Sugaring placed first and Medical Technology at SUNY was second, both in the college-level instructional category.

The International Student Media Festival is co-sponsored by the Association for Educational Communications and Technology and the Encyclopaedia Britannica Educational Corporation as part of the annual

Policy Passes Test; Dismissal Rate Drops Dramatically

The academic dismissal policy established last year is working well, according to Dr. Thomas Moran, vice president for academic affairs. The judges were six mass media professionals and instructors from Omaha, Nebraska.

Five students were involved in the production of the two videotapes, which were completed in the spring, 1990 semester. Maple Sugaring was co-directed by junior Ken Carter and Lori Staples '90. Mark Cochi, who received his bachelor's degree in December, wrote the music for both productions. Carter also directed Medical Technology at SUNY. Junior Jean Butler and 1990 graduate John Thompson served on the production staff for that videotape.

Lawrence Arcarese, associate professor in the communications department, served as advisor for both projects. Arcarese said, "Medical Technology was the result of a project for the Non-Broadcast Video Production class and is used to recruit students. Maple Sugaring was a special project done by the three students as a special project for the Miner Institute, which uses it at their visitors' center."

Arcarese added, "This is the first time that SUNY Plattsburgh students have entered the competition and we are very proud of their work."

The award winners are expected to be incorporated into a two-hour special program by the Pacific Mountain Network, an organization which produces educational video programming for the Pacific Mountain region. The special program would then be available by satellite to various school systems.

Moran said that approximately 30 percent fewer students were in academic difficulty this January than last year at the same time.

Moran said that, a year ago, 384 students were initially dismissed, compared to 260 this year. After the appeals process last year, 230 students were actually dismissed. As of January 15, 190 students had received final dismissal notices this year.

Administrators regarded the dismissal rate for the fall semester as "a key test of the policy we implemented for the fall of 1989 in an effort to raise academic standards," Moran said. "We hoped that students would increase their efforts to improve their academic performance. The evidence suggests that that is precisely

Spring Admits Total 282

The college expected to welcome 282 students — 177 first-time students and 105 others who have been readmitted — when the spring 1991 semester began on Monday. Classes began today.

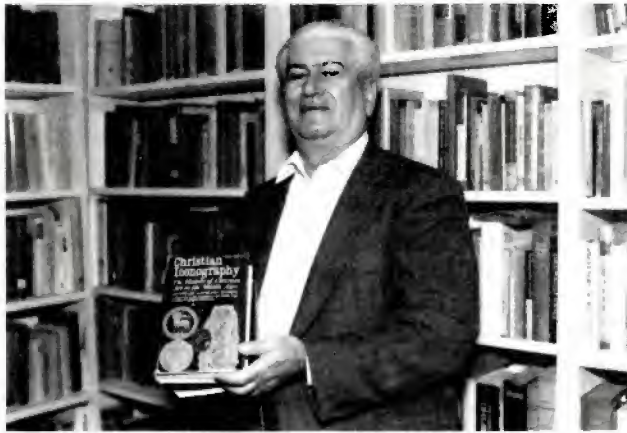

The 282 total, if all who have been accepted for admission actually register, will include 252 full-time and 30 part-time students, while the newcomers will include 19 freshmen and 158 transfers. In admitting transfer students, said Richard Higgins, director of admissions, priority was given to those who have attained the A.A. or A.S. degree. He noted that admissions for the spring term closed November 14 — the earliest ever for the midpoint of the academic year.

Agajanian Leaves 2,700 Books to Feinberg Collections

SUNY Plattsburgh's Feinberg Library has received more than 2,700 books to add to its collections through a bequest from the late Dr. Shaakeh Agajanian, professor emeritus of English.

Dr. Agajanian, who died October 26, 1990, willed her entire collection of books, ranging from the classics to philosophy, religion, and criticism, to the library. Included in the gift are 821 hardcopy books, 1,651 paper-bound books and 307 periodicals. The books are currently being sorted and evaluated.

Donald Garrant, executive director of the Plattsburgh

Horroanes Agajanian, brother of the late Shaakeh Agajanian, was instrumental in conveying the books to Feinberg Library.

College Foundation which is the official recipient of the gift, commented, "This most generous decision is merely one more indication of Dr. Agajanian's total commitment to the education of young people and of her love for our college. I am certain in the years ahead the many people who will have occasion to use these books will be constantly reminded of her commitment to education."

Dr. Agajanian joined the English department at SUNY Plattsburgh in 1963 and retired in 1983. Born in Iran, she was educated in Armenian, Persian and American schools. She received two license degrees from the University of Teheran, one in English and comparative literature and the second in philosophy.

She later earned a master of arts degree in English and comparative literature from Columbia University and a Ph.D. in English and American literature from New York University (all with highest honors). NYU presented her with a gold pin emblem in recognition of leadership.

Proficient in several languages, she published numerous articles and essays in such journals as Armenoochi, Alik, Anarat, Dmid, Religion in Life, and Journal of Natural History. In 1985, the Philosophical Library, Inc. published her book Sonnets from the Portuguese and the Love Sonnet Tradition, in which she analyzed and evaluated Elizabeth Barrett Browning's sonnets in terms of their historical counterparts, philosophy, theology and imagery.

Dr. Agajanian was the recipient of many awards, honors and commendations. In 1988, she received a Gold Medal of Honor from the American Biographical Institute, in recognition of her lifelong distinguished achievements. She was elected to membership in the Academy of Arts and Sciences, and was an Honorary Life Member of the Modern Language Association, as well as an honorary member of the Armenian Literary Society. She served as president of the World Council of Christian Graduate Students and vice president of Columbia University's Women's Association.

Dr. Agajanian's biography was published in the Dictionary of International Biographies.

Four Represent College in Recent Legislative Parley

Four students participated in the Annual Intercollegiate Legislative Assembly, held last semester in the Assembly Chamber of the Capitol Building in Albany, according to Dr. Thomas Konda, who serves as campus advisor to the group.

Freshman David Chau, senior Tim Cox, freshman Kim Driscoll, and junior Mercedes Medina took part in the model legislature, which wrote and debated bills on such topics as gun control, student voting registration and AIDS testing.

Chau was elected Majority Party Whip, won third place for Best Committee Speaker and fourth place for Best Assembly Chamber Floor Speaker. Cox was elected to the ILA's Central Committee, the body which will prepare for next year's event. Driscoll was elected Majority Party Secretary.

Medina, a current member of the Central Committee, was elected Parliamentarian for the Assembly and won the first place award for Best Committee Speaker.

what is happening."

"The new policy," he explained, "dismisses students with less than a 2.0 grade point average. We have implemented these more stringent standards with compassion, however. The policy allows students with legitimate reasons for doing poorly to submit a formal plan on how they expect to improve their academic standing. If the committee approves the plan and determines that the reasons for poor performance are valid, the student is given one semester to improve their grades."

Lag Payroll to Begin; Tuition Billed; Parking Fee Levied

All state employees at SUNY Plattsburgh will feel the initial effects of the latest lag payroll imposed on New York State workers in their January 30 paychecks.

The one-week lag for these employees will be deducted over five pay periods through March, meaning these people will be paid at the rate of nine days instead of ten during each pay cycle. The lag affects basic salary only, meaning the existing overtime and holiday pay schedules remain unchanged.

John Homburger, senior business officer, said that the amount deducted will be adjusted on the basis of each employee's tax bracket. The latest five-day lag will be returned to affected employees when they leave state service.

"It should be noted that this lag will be paid to employees at their salary rate at the time they resign or retire," Homburger said.

Some who work at the college will not be affected by the salary lag. They include students on regular student payrolls, Research Foundation and College Auxiliary Services personnel.

Also, Homburger said, while the matter remains unclear, the payroll for graduate assistants and teaching assistants is being processed as though they are not subject to the lag.

Meanwhile, supplemental bills for the $150 tuition increase, any applicable Tuition Assistance Program (TAP) decrease and the mandatory parking fee for the

SUNY Plattsburgh 'Story' Being Told to North Country Leadership

President Charles Warren is bringing the SUNY Plattsburgh story to community leaders throughout the North Country.

Since early November, Warren, accompanied by Don Garrant, executive assistant to the president, has been speaking and showing slides in presentations at area service clubs. The programs spotlight the college's academic strengths and diversity and its cultural, economic and public service impact throughout the region.

To date, President Warren has spoken at the Plattsburgh and Elizabethtown Kiwanis Clubs, the Peru and Beekmantown Lions Clubs and the Malone Rotary Club. The Lake Placid Kiwanis Club and the Saranac Lake Rotary are on the itinerary for February.

"We are encountering receptive and appreciative audiences," said Garrant, "and it's a pleasure to find them populated by a representative number of alumni. We've received many comments that tell us the presentations are contributing to a heightened awareness of the college and the extent to which it is meeting the educational needs of students from the area, of the importance of its mission, and of its role in enhancing the quality of life in the North Country."

spring semester have been mailed to all affected students. The supplemental bill is due February 8, and those who fail to comply by that date will be assessed a $30 late charge.

Homburger said that students who registered autos on campus last fall, and who are carrying seven credit hours or more this semester, have received a supplemental bill for parking — for the spring semester — totaling $19.26 (including sales tax). Students taking six hours or less will be required to pay $9.63 to park on campus this semester.

Employees who must pay the parking fee will be billed according to auto registration information supplied at the beginning of the fall term. The fee is $21.40 per person, and it permits parking through May.

"We will continue this spring to review fee schedules that will further address full-time and part-time issues related to faculty, staff and student parking after May," Homburger said.

Pending the outcome of collective bargaining soon to begin, employees affected by initiation of the parking fee include management confidential personnel, Marriott, Research Foundation and College Auxiliary Services employees and staff affiliated with non-college groups or agencies that currently maintain administrative offices on campus.

11 Retire, Resign Since September; Gave 160-plus Years to the College

Eleven members of the college community who were on the payroll at the beginning of the academic year have not returned to duty for the spring semester.

The Department of Personnel and Affirmative Action reports that six members of the faculty and professional staff and five members of the classified staff who had been employed at SUNY Plattsburgh for at least one calendar year have retired or resigned. Combined, the 11 have logged more than 160 years of service to the college.

The retirees, their titles and the periods of their employment include Beverly Forster, assistant to the president, June 1966 to January 1991; Diana Green, director of institutional records and research and registrar, January 1970 to October 1990; John Middleton, professor in the Center for Human Resources, September 1968 to January 1991; Charlene Lombard, keyboard specialist, February 1969 to September 1990; and Janet Rock, keyboard specialist, May 1969 to September 1990.

Those who have resigned include Leonard Fontana, associate professor of sociology, September 1977 to December 1990; Alis Headlam, assistant professor in the Center for Teacher Education, September 1989 to December 1990; Linda Adams, keyboard specialist, September 1980 to September 1990; Wanda Cook, cleaner, January 1985 to September 1990; and Thomas Gordon, painter, August 1978 to September 1990.

Countdown Begins for April 'Showcase '91' Celebration

The beginning of the spring semester marks the beginning of the countdown for "Showcase '91."

Faculty and staff should be on the lookout for an "open letter" from Showcase co-chairpersons Dr. Edward Miller and Anna Nardelli, to be circulated early next week. The letter is intended to draw attention to the event's timetable and deadlines for receipt of abstracts on programs and activities for the day-long celebration of the scholarly and creative achievements of students, faculty and staff.

Showcase '91 is scheduled for April 10. Now in its third year, it typically consists of presentations, poster displays, exhibits and informal and formal performances. Showcase depends totally upon volunteer participation, with classes cancelled to encourage widespread participation by members of the college community. Last year's event attracted more than 120 separate projects and activities.

Prospective participants and those seeking more information about Showcase planning and deadlines are urged to contact their program liaisons. They (and their program areas) are: James Armstrong (anthropology/behavioral science); Francis Barber (physical plant); Anna Botticelli (English/history/philosophy); Bette Brohel (adult student services); Lillian Cassidy (academic affairs); Kate Chilton (conference organization); Dennis Doyle (college relations & development); J. Scott Hewit (teacher education/North Country Teacher Resource Center); Scott Johnson (campus life); Mark

Search Begins for Dean of Business/Economics School

A national search has been launched for a new Dean of the School of Business and Economics, according to Dr. Thomas Moran, vice president for academic affairs.

Moran said that the position is currently being advertised nationally. The advertisement calls for applications and nominations to be submitted by February 15, but the search will continue until the position is filled.

Moran said the search committee is being constituted in consultation with the Faculty Senate Committee on Faculty Affairs and the Faculty Affairs Committee of the School of Business and Economics. He anticipates extensive consultation with those two groups throughout the search process.

The search is being conducted in response to Dr. Wallace Feldman's decision to return to the teaching faculty as a professor of marketing, effective next fall. Feldman has served as dean of the School of Business and Economics for five years.

Owen's Black and ...' Continues

Frank Owen's "Ongoing Discourse (With Hitches and Stiff Breeze)," from the SUNY Plattsburgh Art Museum exhibit "Frank Owen Black and ..." is one of 11 monumental works by the major American painter which continue on display in the Myers Fine Arts Gallery through mid-February. This 90 inch by 188 inch acrylic on canvas, a gift from Owen to the college, hangs currently in the Angell Center Blue Room along with his "The Coppers: Loop." The exhibit shows Owen's art as it has developed through the 1970s and '80s to where it stands at the beginning of the '90s. The pieces range in size from 9 feet by 28 feet to 7 feet by 14 feet.

Damianos' Give Land Appraised at More Than $200,000

Dr. and Mrs. Xenophon Damianos of Stony Brook have donated a parcel of land appraised at more than $200,000 to the Plattsburgh College Foundation.

The land, a residential building site with approximately 300 ft. of frontage on Lake Champlain, is located adjacent to land bequeathed to the Foundation by the late Dr. Edward E. Redcay.

Dr. Charles O. Warren, SUNY Plattsburgh president, said that current plans are for the property to be sold together with the Redcay property. The Damianos, both of whom are SUNY Plattsburgh alumni, have requested that proceeds from the sale of the land be placed in an endowment fund in their names. The details for use of the income from that endowment fund are currently under discussion.

"This is an extremely generous gift," Warren said. "The property is quite valuable and will guarantee that the Foundation, the college and its students will benefit greatly.

"The Damianos always have been very caring, loyal and supportive alumni and we are proud to count them among our most generous donors."

Dr. Damianos explained the reasons for the gift. "Doc meant a great deal to both of us. I would never have graduated from Plattsburgh without his wise advice and counsel. Our oldest son, John Edward, was named for Doc, and Doc was his godfather. By giving this land to the Foundation, we hope to facilitate the sale of the total parcel and bring many of Doc's wishes and dreams to fruition."

Virginia Sturrock Damianos graduated in 1950 from the nursing department. She has been a member of the Plattsburgh Alumni Association's Board of Directors for many years.

Dr. Xenophon "Jim" Damianos graduated from SUNY Plattsburgh in 1951. He currently has a private medical practice in Stony Brook and is also executive director of JPC Management, a company that develops and builds private medical facilities on Long Island. He joined the Board of Directors of the Plattsburgh College Foundation last spring.

Hawkins Renovation Proceeding; Allocation Short of Need

The project to restore and renovate Hawkins Hall is moving ahead, according to J. Derek Allan, director of facilities. Allan said earlier this week, "The schematic report has been completed by architects Petersen, Mallin and Mendell. It is a voluminous report and copies may be inspected in the President's Office or the Facilities Office."

Allan said that $4.7 million has been allocated toward the project, but "to satisfy all the requirements of the report, a budget three times the available allocation will be required. As a result, a two-phased plan of repairs, improvements and new construction has been developed."

"Phase I," Allan explained, "will be exterior masonry, roof and entry stairwell work. The contract documents for this work are now 80 percent complete and we are pleased to report the University has made funds available to proceed with the work in Mid-May, with an anticipated completion date on November '91. The work will protect the building from further damage and deterioration from inclement weather. We will also repair the severely eroded stairways."

He continued, "Phase II will be referred to as the 'North Quadrant' and will include the construction of lecture halls and seminar rooms on the north side of the building in areas presently under-utilized in the basement and first floor. It will also include building-wide improvements to the heating, electrical and plumbing systems, improvements to meet codes including a building-wide sprinkler system, and a new fire-alarm system, as well as other less-costly code required improvements."

Contracts for Phase II, Allan said, are tentatively expected to be complete in late summer '91, with construction anticipated by January '92 and completed by January '93.

Varied Events Accent 'Black History Month' Observance

Forums, films, lectures and performances will highlight SUNY Plattsburgh's observance of "Black History Month" throughout February. According to Ed Engelbride, assistant director of Campus Life for special programs, the celebration actually begins on the last day of January.

At 12:15 p.m. tomorrow (Jan. 31) in the Angell Center Cardinal Lounge, Dr. Thelma Yarborough, director of the Claude Clark Learning Center, will discuss "African-American Women in the Civil Rights and Black Panther Movements" at a Women's Studies Forum. At 1 p.m., the college's Multicultural Awareness Committee will sponsor presentation of "Beyond the Dream III: The Global Perspective."

Mark Twain on Stage at SUNY Plattsburgh

Stage, screen and television performer Ken Richters will bring his acclaimed portrayal of Mark Twain to SUNY Plattsburgh next Saturday (Feb. 9) in a performance of "Mark Twain On Tour" scheduled for 8 p.m. in E. Glenn Giltz Auditorium in Hawkins Hall. Richters' characterization of the world's most celebrated humorist has been hailed throughout the United States and abroad as "a comedy triumph," and one that, "through appearance, inflections, posture, walk and mannerisms, creates a genuine (Twain)." The event, sponsored by Campus Life with assistance from College Auxiliary Services, is supported also by a grant from the National Foundation for Literature in the Humanities. Tickets, priced at $1 for SUNY Plattsburgh students, faculty and staff and $3 for the general public, are on sale at the Angell Center information desk.

Described as an "interactive celebration of Black History Month," Beyond the Dream III, shown live, via satellite, will feature 20 noted black personalities from the worlds of politics, business, education and the arts who will "come together to offer solutions to the monumental worldwide problems facing people of African descent." The two-hour teleconference will be shown in the Angell Center Ballrooms.

Akeba, the student multicultural organization, will host a reception at 4 p.m. on Saturday (Feb. 2) in the Angell Center Ballroom. The principal speaker will be Dr. Dorothy William, director of minority affairs at St. Michael's College. Also scheduled to speak are SUNY Plattsburgh President Charles O. Warren and Drs. Thomas Moran and Eldridge W. Roark Jr., the college's vice presidents for academic affairs and student affairs, respectively.

Naomi Tutu, daughter of South African Archbishop and Nobel Peace Prize recipient Desmond Tutu, will discuss "Is There Hope for Liberation in South Africa?" at a public lecture to be held at 8 p.m. next Wednesday (Feb. 6) in the Angell Center Ballroom. Varied campus organizations are sponsoring the campus visit by Tutu, who chairs a foundation named for her father that has helped thousands of refugees find a world outside apartheid.

On Friday, Feb. 8 at 4 p.m., President and Mrs. Warren will host a multicultural forum at the president's home. This event, co-sponsored by the Warrens, Akeba and the Multicultural Affairs Committee, is open to all.

Engelbride said that several programs and activities are on the agenda and others are being planned for the coming weeks. Those already booked include:

- A civil rights film series, Feb. 11-15, 12 noon, Angell Center Cardinal Lounge;
- Akeba variety show, Feb. 15, 8 p.m., Angell Center ballroom;
- Black Poetry Night, readings by students (time and location to be announced), sponsored by Akeba; and
- Performance by the Washington Sisters, a singing duo whose style encompasses gospel, acapella funk, jazz-bop, blues and island rock, Feb. 22, 8 p.m., Giltz Auditorium, Hawkins Hall.

Hotline Created for Families of Military Called to Active Duty

Governor Cuomo has created a task force of state agencies to coordinate support services to families and dependents of New Yorkers called to active duty because of Operation Desert Storm. The task force will act as a clearinghouse of information to assist family members in resolving basic problems that may arise while the family's primary "breadwinner" is serving in the military during the Middle East crisis. Any military member or dependent with a problem or needing information can dial a toll-free information and referral hotline — 1-800-635-6534 —

Wagner to Begin One-Month Stay as Visiting Professor

Sally Roesch Wagner, historical performer, scholar, lecturer and writer, will begin a one-month residency on campus next week as Distinguished Visiting Professor of Women's Studies.

Wagner, a pioneer of women's studies programs in America who has taught courses in that discipline and in history and psychology at three University of California campuses and at Mankato State (Minn.), will serve at SUNY Plattsburgh from February 5 through March 6. Besides feminist topics, her expertise extends to Native American issues.

In addition to teaching a one-credit course titled The Iroquois Influence on Radical Reform in Upstate New York, Wagner will be guest lecturer in a variety of classes, conduct a workshop in teacher education and give presentations at two Women's Studies Forum programs. Highlighting her visit will be "living portrayals," in period costumes, of three of history's most famous women's rights advocates. Her performances — for college and university audiences, state legislatures, and church groups among others — have been acclaimed coast-to-coast.

On Wednesday, February 7, Wagner will portray Elizabeth Cady Stanton, noted for organizing the world's first women's rights convention, held in Seneca Fall in 1848, and as a major architect of the radical wing of the era's suffrage movement, at 7 p.m. in Ballroom B of the Sally Roesch Wagner as suffragist Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

Angell College Center. The following Wednesday she will perform as Matilda Joslyn Gage, a late nineteenth century radical who wrote Women, Church and State, a powerful indictment of the church's oppression of women, and on February 21 she will portray Alice Alt Pickler, a key figure in the women's suffrage movement in South Dakota. The Gage and Pickler performances will also be held at 7 p.m. in Ballroom B of the Angell Center, and all three programs are open to the public.

Wagner's Women's Studies Forum presentations include "Some of the Sisters Were Brothers," a look at the history of men's involvement in the suffrage and women's rights movements, and "A Dream Died in the Snow: The 1890 Massacre at Wounded Knee," which focuses on recent research suggesting a conspiracy theory behind the 1890 massacre of the Lakota people. The forums will be held from 12:15 to 1:15 in the Angell Center Cardinal Lounge on February 7 and 14, respectively, and they, too, are open to all.

Wagner is a research affiliate in the Women's Resource Center at California-Davis. Her articles have been published recently in Plainswoman, the Hartford Courant, and The National Women's History Museum News, and she serves as history editor of the journal, Changing Men and as a consultant to the National Women's History Project.

Change Occurring in Nursing; Focus Shifting to BSN Option

The nursing department is undergoing a major change, according to Dr. Thomas Moran, vice president for academic affairs. Moran explained that, in an effort to increase enrollments and improve accessibility to the college's nursing program, the nursing department will refocus more toward increased development of the RN to BSN option.

Dr. Virginia Barker, dean of professional studies, said, "It has been obvious for several years that prospective nurses have been choosing to start their education in two-year associate's degree programs or in hospital-based nursing programs. Today's health care, however, requires both technically and professionally prepared nurses. In responding to these factors, we plan to devote more of our efforts to attracting students who have already earned their RN."

Dr. Jeanette Coleman, who has directed the nursing program for several years, will direct the new effort. "Dr. Coleman," Barker said, "will work closely with two-year colleges, hospitals and health care agencies. She will develop articulation agreements so that registered nurses will be able to complete their degrees in a timely manner. Dr. Coleman will concentrate as well on advising prospective students, doing transcript analysis and doing tracking and follow-up studies."

Barker continued, "I'm very excited about this and so are the faculty in the nursing department. We've never been able to assign one person to this particular task. The potential is tremendous and I'm sure that the one-to-one personal attention will generate increased enrollments."

At the same time that the upper-level program will be strengthened, Barker explained, the college will continue to admit top quality freshmen to the department. She expects, however, that eventually the majority of new students will be admitted as transfers.

Barker expects that the operational administration of the nursing department will be re-configured. For the near future, she said that Dr. Robert Starr, assistant dean of professional studies, will supervise the day-to-day administrative details and she will assume responsibility for the professional details.

Residence Staff Fall Term Grade Point Average Tops 3.2

Students who share responsibility for residence hall management, events planning and programs continue to excel in academic pursuits.

A report on academic data based on grades for the fall 1990 semester shows that residence directors and resident assistants collectively compiled an overall semester grade point average (GPA) of 3.266 last fall. The overall cumulative GPA for RAs stands at 3.128.

Seventy-four staff members achieved higher than a 3.0 semester index; 28 scored 3.5 or higher; and five compiled 4.0. Staff in Wilson Hall's residence staff compiled the highest semester GPA (3.38), followed by Hood Hall (3.35) and Moffitt (3.33).

The five students who earned 4.0 grades are graduate students Paul Berry (school counselor) and Christopher Sperl (clinical psychology), seniors Amy Bobar (speech and hearing handicapped education) and Juli Schaller (psychology), and junior Angela Morin (elementary education). Berry, Schaller and Sperl were among 19 RAs whose grades were at least 3.5 and who participated as members of the Freshman Experience Program staff.

The 3.5 or higher GPA list of RAs includes Tom Brothers, Neal Calcote, Tim Darcy, Brett Greenblat, Shawn Hunziker, Lance Johnson, Deb Kennedy, Dave Kocsis, Jim Lopez, Deirdre Markle, Deborah McDonald, Cynthia Menz, Mondo Normile, Dennis Rasco, Doreen Schneider, Sue Schuhl, Marc Turenne, Lori VanAllen, Andrew Wallace, Michele Wright, Karen Yoos, Steph Zuaro, and Sue Zwick.

Hockey Cards Win 2; Track Performers Prep for SUNYACs

The Cardinal hockey team enjoyed a successful road trip over the weekend with a 16-4 pasting of Binghamton on Friday and a 6-3 triumph over Hamilton the following afternoon. Defenseman Martin Beliveau had a seven-point evening against the hapless Colonials with a pair of goals and five assists. Dan Shally potted two goals and assisted on another and Mike Mondello turned aside 34 Hamilton shots on net as the Cardinals ran their record on the season to 15-6-1.

In basketball, the men gained a split on the week, losing 81-68 to Albany on Tuesday but rebounding to whip Oswego, 80-65, on Saturday. Newcomer "Noopy" Snell scored a career-high 20 points in the loss to Albany, while Craig King and Todd Wright each tallied 13 in the easy win over the Great Lakers. The Cardinal women continue to struggle. They dropped three during the past week — 80-49 to Albany; 61-46 against Castleton State, and 62-49 vs. Oswego. A bright spot: sophomore guard Alicia LaValley pumped in 25 markers (more than half the Cards' total) in the Albany game.

Canadian Studies Receives $7,200 Hiram Walker Grant

The Center for the Study of Canada has received word that its proposal for financial support from the Hiram Walker Gooderham and Wortz Corporation of Canada has been approved.

Dr. Richard Beach, director of the Center, said, "The gift of $7,200 is the largest annual contribution that our program has ever received from a private sector donor, excluding the Northern Telecom endowment gift made in 1984."

The funds will be used to continue the Hiram Walker Scholarship program, as well as for library acquisitions and administration of the Center. Additionally, a portion of the money will be deposited in the Hiram Walker Endowment Fund.

Several Plattsburgh indoor track and field competitors excelled at the non-scoring Norwich University invitational meet over the weekend. Qualifying for the SUNYAC championships: Wendi Clark in the high jump; Becky Pagano in the 500 meter run; Renate Kaye in the shot put; Felix Moreno in the 1000 meter run; and Don Tambini in the 35-pound weight event.

College to Host Mythology Parley

Dr. Bruce Butterfield, associate professor of English, and Dr. Jurgen Kleist, assistant professor of foreign language and literature, have announced a two-day conference, entitled Mythology: From Ancient Myth To New Age, which will be held on the SUNY Plattsburgh campus on March 1-2.

The conference will feature presentations by at least 17 scholars from a wide variety of disciplines. They include guests from Germany, California, Massachusetts, and several SUNY colleges. Plattsburgh faculty members included on the list of presenters include: Dr. Thomas Braga, Dr. Edwin Hamblet, Dr. Sylvie Debevec Henning, Dr. Richard Moore, Dr. Thomas Morrissey, Dr. Edward Schaffer, and Scott Smith.

The best papers from the conference will be published in the first volume of Plattsburgh Studies in the Humanities: Mythology-From Ancient Myth to New Age.

Chorale Workshop Set for February 8

A Choral Music Workshop will be held in the Angell Center Ballroom from 1-4 p.m. on Friday, February 8, under the sponsorship of the music department. The workshop will feature the Cardinal Singers and the College Chorale, under the direction of Robert Hall. Singers from area high school choirs will participate in both the afternoon workshop and the public performance, scheduled for 4:30 p.m. in the Ballroom. David Christiani, who is in charge of the music program at The Study in Montreal, will work with the individual choirs and then put them together for a mass performance.

'91-92 Budget Situation 'Extremely Serious'; Forums Scheduled to Exchange Information

As anticipated by months of discussion about New York State's weakened budget condition, the reductions projected for the State University of New York and the SUNY College at Plattsburgh in fiscal 1991-92 are extremely serious.

In response to the budget situation, SUNY Plattsburgh officials said they are awaiting detailed information but that an analysis of all available data has begun. President Charles O. Warren said that the college has been asked to respond to the possibility of reductions ranging from four to six percent. Those reductions, he added, would translate to between $1.14 million to $1.7 million.

"The State University also anticipates a request to reduce its funded position level by about 1,500," President Warren said. "Campuses would be assigned a proportion of the total number."

Warren said it is his understanding that the budget contains an additional $500 tuition increase, effective this fall. "In this regard," he remarked, "we are very fortunate here to have the strong support of the Plattsburgh College Foundation. The resources provided by the Foundation allow us to be much more responsive to the financial circumstances of individual students than otherwise possible."

The budget analysis that will take place in the coming days and weeks will focus also on enrollment projections for 1991-92. President Warren said the goal will be to establish targets that will allow the college to sustain its multifaceted mission and the substantial programmatic quality that currently exists at Plattsburgh.

The president and members of the Executive Staff have scheduled a series of open forums next week in various campus locations. The forums are designed to answer questions from members of the college community, to solicit suggestions and to provide information on the budget as it becomes available.

1990 Unqualified Success for Foundation; Contributions Approach $1 Million Plateau

The Plattsburgh College Foundation has had its most successful year of fund-raising ever, with 1990 cash contributions totalling just under one million dollars.

our laurels. The college is facing even larger cuts in state funding this year than last year's devastating short-falls. Additionally, with tuition for the 1991-92 academic year potentially 59 percent higher than last fall's, a large number of students will need our help to stay in school. As a result, the Foundation must set its sights on an even higher target this year."

SUNY Plattsburgh President Charles O. Warren commented, "The college community is very grateful to its many friends who demonstrate their pride in our past and their faith in our future in such an explicit way. Their contributions have provided scholarship assistance to students, have allowed us to purchase library materials and academic equipment, and have helped us meet many other special needs, which are no longer supported by state dollars."

Garrant announced that the 1990 fund-raising campaign generated contributions from three sources, the Annual Giving Campaign, the Centennial Campaign, and Endowment Giving.

The Annual Giving Campaign raised $420,504.76 from its various components, which include the Alumni Campaign, the Business/Corporate Campaign, Faculty/Staff Campaign, Friends Campaign, Foundation/Trusts Campaign, Parents Fund, the Booster Club, and Organizations.

Warren noted a major increase in giving by alumni, which totalled $170,731.77 and which was 45.8 percent above last year's record figure. "We're seeing more and more alumni joining the ranks of contributors," he said, "and we're very proud of this. Our alumni recognize and appreciate the quality of education they received here at SUNY Plattsburgh."

Gifts collected in the second year of the Centennial Campaign, which was mounted in 1989 as a five-year drive to raise $500,000 for an unrestricted endowment fund, totalled $324,677.13. That five-year campaign has received gifts totalling $474,374.37 in just two years.

Gifts to private endowment funds also totalled a

The results of the 1990 campaign were announced today (Feb. 7) during the Foundation's annual meeting.

Donald Garrant, executive director of the Foundation, said, "This year's total income from all sources was $961,494.48, a 65 percent increase over last year's total of $581,809. We experienced a significant increase in donors as well, with 5,168 individuals, businesses and organizations making gifts this year, 471 more than participated last year."

Foundation President Curtis Shipman said, "This past year was a tremendous success for the Foundation. The support for SUNY Plattsburgh and its students from alumni, area businesses, faculty and staff, friends in the community and from the parents of students, continues to be overwhelming."

Shipman added, "This is no time, however, to rest on

Four Newcomers Join Foundation's Board of Directors

Four new members were named and several others reappointed to the Plattsburgh College Foundation's Board of Directors during the Foundation's annual meeting today (Feb. 7).

Two Employees Among Four CSEA Scholarship Winners

Local 612 of the Civil Service Employees Association has announced the winners of its 1991 scholarships, and, for the first time, the recipients include two part-time students — both of whom are college employees.

The scholarships are restricted to members of the union local or children of members. To be eligible, applicants must show they achieved a grade point average of at least 2.5 during the previous semester.

Recipients of $200 awards are full-time students William J. O'Brien, son of Patrick O'Brien, a member of the Maintenance and Operations' janitorial staff, and Denise Sypek, daughter of Arlene Sypek, keyboard specialist in the Center for Human Resources. O'Brien is a graduate student in chemistry, and Sypek is a sophomore elementary education (N-6) major.

The first employees to receive Local 612 scholarships of $100 each are Cynthia A. Gursky and Debra M. Thomas, both of whom hold the rank of Secretary I. Gursky, who is majoring in sociology, works in the Center for Art, Music and Theatre, while Thomas, whose major is business (management), is a member of the staff of the Office of College Relations and Development.

Extra Budget Forum Scheduled

President Warren has expanded the series of open forums on matters pertaining to the proposed operating budget for the college during fiscal 1991-92 to accommodate employees who work nights.

The extra forum is scheduled for Monday (Feb. 11) at 5:15 p.m. in Ballroom A of the Angell Center. The program is designed to answer questions from members of the college community, to solicit suggestions and to provide information on the budget as it becomes available.

Bearing Gratitude to Greeks

Clinton County Christmas Bureau chairperson Rodney Fredenberg (right) visits campus to thank representatives of campus Greek organizations whose members' services helped provide food to more than 500 families in Clinton County and toys to more than 1,200 area youngsters during the recent holiday season. Additional major gifts to the Foundation this year included a $207,000 bequest from the estate of the late Jeremyn Davern of Chazy and New York City (the largest bequest received by the Foundation to date) and a gift of property on Cumberland Head, valued at $206,000, by Xenophon and Virginia Sturrock Damianos, alumni from Stony Brook, NY. Other in-kind gifts of art works and books have also been donated to the Foundation.

Shipman said that in a five-year period, contributions to the Foundation have totalled $3,370,741. "As state support for our budget for SUNY Plattsburgh has dropped to approximately 60%," he said, "it has become ever more important for the Foundation to work hard on behalf of our college and our students. We are very proud to say that we are succeeding."

Hockey Team Stuns Nationally Ranked Union, Geneseo

The Cardinal hockey team sent shock waves through the ranks of Division III last week with back-to-back victories over nationally ranked opponents. Although banned from post-season play this year by NCAA sanctions, the youthful Cardinals (with only one senior on the roster) established themselves as a team of the future with convincing wins at Union and at home vs. Geneseo — both by 5-3 margins.

Tuesday's encounter at Union could have been billed in Schenectady as a "farewell celebration" — au revoir to a long-time series matching two of the best teams perennially in the ECAC, and cheers for the Dutchmen and their recently announced ascent to the stratum of Division I hockey. The hard-working Cardinals, however, spoiled the party for sixth-ranked Union, as Matt Furtado led the attack with a pair of goals.

Geneseo came to town Saturday boasting a hold on third spot on the national charts and on first place in the SUNY conference. The Ice Knights left the North Country knowing they still have the edge to gain the automatic bid to the NCAA tournament that goes with winning the SUNYAC title, but thankful perhaps that the road to the national title won't pass through Plattsburgh. The Cardinals needed a complete team effort to thwart Geneseo, but the heroics belonged to freshmen Chris Fess and Len Pereira, who each tallied two goals and an assist, and to goalie Mike Mondello, also a freshman, who turned aside 27 Ice Knight shots on goal.

It was a 1-4 week for Plattsburgh's basketball teams. The men were 1-2, sandwiching a 70-65 victory over Fredonia on Friday between losses to Potsdam, 71-68, earlier in the week and to Buffalo State, 63-50, on Saturday. The Cardinal women dropped a pair — 63-52 to Fredonia and 53-44 to Buffalo.

In track, the Cardinals hosted a non-scoring, open meet on Friday. Top individual performances were turned in by Heather Myrick, who qualified for the ECAC championships by finishing third in the women's 55 meters and who also won the long and triple-jump events, and Matt Nephew, who came in first in the 1000 meter run in 2:43.2.

Faculty Senate Gives OK to Program in Social Work

The Faculty Senate approved a new academic program at its regular meeting held on January 29.

Acting upon the recommendation of the Standing Committees on Resources and Planning and Curricular and Programs, the Senate unanimously approved the creation of a bachelor's in social work program. Dr. Carrie Harris, director of the Center for Human Resources, explained that the new degree program will replace the B.S. in Human Services. She said that accreditation for the program will be sought from the Council of Social Work Education and she emphasized that funding of the program will be provided through reallocation of resources in the Center. The program must now be approved by Plattsburgh President Charles O. Warren.

The Senate also considered a revised mission statement for the college which was submitted by the Committee on Resources and Planning. After considerable discussion, the mission statement was referred to the Senate's executive committee for further discussion and revision.

Information Exchange

President Charles O. Warren (standing, right) answers questions during an open forum held last week in the Angell Center on the broad topic of implications of the operating budget proposed for the college in fiscal 1991-92. Four forum programs were scheduled in various campus locations.

Campus Agencies Helping 'Letters from Home' Program

SUNY Plattsburgh is participating in the "Letters From Home" program sponsored nationally by GE and Pitney Bowes. The College's Academic Computing Center and the Rural Services Institute, located in the Technical Assistance Center, will both offer computer and friends may contact their loved ones in the Persian Gulf.

In order to send a "Letter From Home," the sender must have the recipient's complete address, including

VAX Computer System Conversion Proceeding on Schedule

The college's conversion from the Burrough's A-10 to the Digital Equipment Corporation's VAX computer system is proceeding on schedule, and the campus community will soon begin to realize some of the benefits of the upgrade.

According to Dr. Raney Ellis, director of computing services, SUNY Plattsburgh is one of 17 State University institutions currently nearing the end of a five-year, multi-million-dollar computer replacement and upgrade under state contract. Where Plattsburgh differs from the other 16 (comprised of its sister arts and science colleges and some community colleges) is in its software applications approach.

"We're the only SUNY unit I'm aware of that has opted to re-write all programs to run on the VAX in lieu of purchasing software," commented Ellis. "By developing our own programs, we have not only avoided the cost of new software but we have also enhanced our capability to provide computer services custom-made to meet the needs of our college."

16 Students Affected by Call-up

Sixteen students have been directly affected by call-ups of reserve units as the result of Desert Storm. Students who have been deployed include Robert Allen, Patrick Armet, Fred Atkinson, Neal Calcote, Wayne Durkee, Christopher Foote, Melba Frey, Paul Johnson, Christian Pantea, David Petrelli, David St. Jean, Michael Richardson, William Rusho, John Uliva, Scott Van Atter, and John Vescio.

The Office of Campus Life is working to compile addresses for the students and anyone wishing to write to them should contact Cheryl Hogle for that information. Several of the students are currently stationed in Saudi Arabia, while others are in Germany with the 962nd Ordnance Unit.

Computing Center, said data base conversion for all administrative functions will take place over a period of time. However, he added, the Office of Financial Aid became "live" on the new system in early January, and the Alumni Affairs and Registrar's offices have begun testing.

Visitors to the Registrar's Office will note the changeover, Mercadante said, when they observe staff working on two computer terminals. "They will be working in parallel — entering the same data in both the A-10 and the VAX," he said. "It may take a little longer to obtain service during the testing phase," Mercadante noted, "but the results will be the same."

Ellis and Mercadante talked about how functions in some administrative units requiring complicated moves, burdensome documents or that are accomplished normally by hand can be streamlined. For example, Ellis said, it will become possible for faculty who have access to PCs to have instantaneous access to up-to-date transcripts of advisees. Also, offices authorized to

Shipman Serving Seventh Term as Foundation President

The leadership of the Plattsburgh College Foundation will remain intact for another year.

At its first meeting in 1991, last Thursday, the Foundation's Board of Directors unanimously re-elected Curtis E. Shipman as president of the fund-raising organization. Shipman, chairman of the board of and directors serve without compensation.

Several appointments were approved by the directors. Donald L. Garrant, executive assistant to SUNY Plattsburgh President Charles O. Warren, will continue as executive director of the Foundation. Plattsburgh attorney James E. Keable was reappointed as legal counsel to the Foundation; Calongne, Kelly and Roger Forrence, owner of Forrence Orchards in Peru, were appointed to the Foundation's Executive Committee (joining ex-officio members Shipman and Warren); and Calongne, Plattsburgh attorney Robert T. Booth and Forrence were reappointed to head the Foundation's development, planned giving and investment committees, respectively.

Also elected as Foundation officers were Clifford P. Calongne, first vice president; Elizabeth A. Kelly, second vice-president; Olive M. Flynt, secretary; and John R. Homburger, treasurer. Calongne is vice president, operations, for Northern Insuring Agency, Inc.; Kelly is president of Holcomb Abstract Corp.; Flynt is a retired former assistant to the president at SUNY Plattsburgh; and Homburger is senior business officer at the college.

Thanked for Generosity

Alumni Virginia and Dr. Xenophon "Jim" Damianos ('50/'51) of Stony Brook, shown here flanking Plattsburgh President Charles O. Warren, were recognized at last Thursday's organization meeting of the 1991 Plattsburgh College Foundation Board of Directors for their recent donation of lakefront property on Cumberland Head. The property, valued at more than $200,000, adjoins land bequeathed to the Foundation by the late Dr. Edward E. Reday. The Damianos received a framed, color print of College Photographer Robin Brown's spring 1990 photograph showing SUNY Plattsburgh's Centennial graduating class forming "100." Dr. Damianos is an Alumni Association representative to the Foundation board. Virginia Damianos is a member of the Alumni Association Board of Directors.

Honored for Service

SUNY Plattsburgh President Charles O. Warren (left) congratulates Clyde A. Lewis, who received the college's "Presidential Award of Honor" in a surprise ceremony that capped proceedings at last Thursday's annual meeting of the Plattsburgh College Foundation. Lewis, a prominent local attorney and civic leader who was among the Foundation's founders nearly three decades ago, was cited for his service to both the Foundation, as a director and supporter, and to College Auxilliary Services, as legal counsel. Later in the day the Foundation's Board of Directors approved an Executive Committee recommendation to designate Lewis as an honorary member of the board. The distinction is given to persons who have served more than two, three-year terms as directors and who have contributed immeasurably to the progress of the Foundation. Lewis became the third to be so honored.

Alumni Admissions Program to Debut in Capital District

The first phase of an ambitious "Alumni Admissions Program" for SUNY Plattsburgh will be launched later this month in Albany.

Representatives of the college's Alumni Affairs and Admissions offices will meet on February 27 with about 20 Plattsburgh graduates who reside in the Capital District and who have volunteered to serve an effort designed to enhance the recruitment of well-qualified applicants. The meeting will be held at the Albany home of Jeffrey and Cathy Selchick, both 1972 graduates of the college.

"The Albany program is a pilot project developed jointly by the alumni and admissions offices for a recruitment undertaking we hope eventually to implement statewide," said Malcolm Lavery, director of development and alumni relations. "The objective is to train some of our best alumni to help us enroll the best and brightest prospective students in their areas."

Specifically, Lavery said, the target group includes freshman and transfer candidates who have compiled outstanding records academically, especially those from multicultural backgrounds and children of alumni.

Michael J. Walsh, associate director of admissions and program liaison for the admissions/enrollment management staff, will accompany Lavery to Albany. It will be his task to acquaint the alumni volunteers with current institutional enrollment strategies, to bring them up to date about the campus living and learning environment and to provide them with the latest information on financial aid, including the scholarship program sustained by private giving to the Plattsburgh College Foundation.

Participating alumni, in turn, will be expected to send personal, congratulatory correspondence to accepted applicants in the focus group who reside in their geographical area, to make follow-up telephone calls to each student in their group, and to encourage the students to visit the college — independently or as participants in Open House, Honors Weekend or Minority Student Weekend programs at the college.

"Besides the potential for enlarging our applicant pool of highly qualified students," Lavery said, "we see this program as a means for providing valuable feedback to the college. It should serve to tell us more precisely what this type of student is looking for in a college, and, if that student chooses to go elsewhere, why."

SLU Professor to Speak Here on Region's French-Canadian Heritage

Dr. Peter Van Lent, associate professor of French and area studies at St. Lawrence University, will make a presentation on "The French-Canadian Heritage of Northern New York" at 4:15 p.m. on Tuesday, February 19 in the Cardinal Lounge. Van Lent will present the historical and cultural background of the French influence on Northern New York, drawing on oral folklore and examples of traditional folk arts to explore the survival of Francophone identity in the area.

The program is co-sponsored by Feinberg Library's Special Collections, the history department and the Center for the Study of Canada.

Computer calls may be made evenings and weekends to an 800 number or during the day to two other telephone numbers that will incur regular charges.

Computer laboratory aides will be available during designated evening and weekend hours in the Academic Computing Center located in Hawkins Hall, to assist with the calls. Gordon DeVries of the Technical Assistance Center will provide access and assistance two evenings a week.

have information now contained in the bulky student locator printout file could be able to call-up basic information on any currently enrolled student on office PCs.

The Admissions Office, Mercadante said, will be able to track any student from the date of application. Moreover, the processes of transfer evaluation by admissions, and financial aid packaging by the Financial Aid Office, both now done by hand, can be accomplished conveniently by programs written for the VAX.

Ellis credits the successful transformation to date to the college's programming staff and the confidence and support of the administration. "Jim Holland

(assistant director of computing services) and his colleagues in the Computer Center have worked extremely hard and have demonstrated exemplary initiative in adapting to a different style of programming. Besides quality, our progress can be linked to the longevity of our staff. Our people know the college's computer users and work well with them.

"The administration, on the other hand, backed our plan to pursue new applications and has given us the time we need to prove we can help increase productivity."

The conversion timetable calls for the VAX to completely replace the A-10 by the end of August.

NSF-Funded Young Scholars Program Comes to an End

The 1990 Young Scholars Program formally ended on January 30, with poster presentations by each of the students, according to Dr. Kenneth Adams, who co-directed the program with Dr. Roger Sandwick, Dr. Dan Vogt and Karen Larkin. The 15 participants in the NSF-sponsored program for high ability secondary school students represented seven high schools in the local area. The primary objectives of the program were to increase student understanding of science and career opportunities in the sciences. The students were on campus for one month last summer to gain a "hands-on immersion" into the sciences. During the fall semester, each student completed a research project under the guidance of a research mentor.

Middle States Review Steering Committees Begin Activities

The work committees constituted by the Middle States Review Steering Committee are beginning their tasks. Weekly will report on the progress of these committees throughout the semester.

The Organization and Administration work committee, chaired by Ron Hobson, has divided into three subcommittees. Committee A, comprised of Edward Bortnick, Lawrence Giandomenico, Clara LaRose, Hobson, and Robert Garrow will review the SUNY Board of Trustees, the College Council, physical resources, support services and indirect services support.

Committee B, comprised of Janet Alexander, Ernest Coons, Janet Saunders, Diane Wyand, and Hobson, is investigating administrative staff performance, organizational structure effectiveness and support group effectiveness.

Committee C, comprised of Raymond Guydosh, Hilton Heming, Frank John and Hobson, is looking at faculty participation in governance, student body participation and collective bargaining.

Two surveys have been developed by the committees. The first has been sent to members of the executive staff and asks for information on the administrative functions at the college. The second has been mailed to the chairs of all identified college committees. Responses are due by February 18 and should be sent to Janet Saunders, Office of Personnel and Affirmative Action. A third survey, to be sent to all faculty asking for information on participation in governance, will be mailed in the near future.

The Library-Instructional Resources Work Group, chaired by Joseph Swinyer, has also been active and has formed subcommittees. Nancy Church, Dennis Kimmage and Charles Simpson have been assigned to study the library; Julius Archibald and John Holland will review computer facilities and software; Marilyn Morton and Bonnie Seidel-Rogol will look at laboratories and the planetarium; Dodi Giltz, Cindy Menz and Kathy Straub will review performance space; Ann Hasting, Holland, Menz and Clark Mitchell will study art studios, the art museum and physical education facilities; and Archibald, Kimmage, Morton and Swinyer will serve as the editorial subcommittee.

Swinyer said that each subcommittee will prepare a report for consideration and the editorial subcommittee will prepare the final work group report.

New Banner for Stafford Arena

Pending Recruitment Efforts Focus on Gifted Students

Concentrated recruitment of high school seniors with outstanding academic records will take place on campus during the next few days through two special programs.

The second annual Scholars Weekend, organized by the Admissions Office, is scheduled for February 24-25. Admissions counselor Jeannine Abbale, who is coordinating the program, said that more than two dozen students have accepted an invitation to spend the two days on campus.

Builds on Last Year's Success

Participating students will attend classes, stay overnight in a residence hall with a current student, eat in the campus dining halls and schedule special appointments based upon individual interests.

Last year, according to Director of Admissions Richard Higgins, 31 high school seniors attended Scholar Weekend. Of that number, 23 enrolled and 21 of them completed their first semester with a 3.2 or higher grade point average. "It appears," he said, "that our previous program was successful in encouraging high school seniors with superlative academic records to make SUNY Plattsburgh their college of choice."

Student hosts and hostesses, Abbale said, are volunteers from organizations such as Circle K, the Honors Program, Omicron Delta Kappa and Phi Eta Sigma.

Some of last year's Scholar Weekend guests who are presently enrolled also volunteered to host the visitors.

Scholarship Candidates' Interviews Set

The first round of interviews for next fall's Presidential Scholar candidates is also underway, according to Dr. David Mowry, who coordinates the selection process. Mowry explained that, in the first round of the process (rounds are based solely on the date of a submitted application), 31 students were nominated and invited to apply for the awards, which carry with them four-year, full-tuition equivalent scholarships.

Those students were asked to complete a questionnaire asking for more information than the official college application provides and to write an essay on one of two topics - the most important issue confronting the United States in 1991 or the most important book read by the applicant within the past year.

Twenty-four students returned the requested material and seven have been invited to campus for interviews.

21 Nominees Still Active

Mowry said that finalists are interviewed by several faculty and student members of the Honors Council, receive a campus tour, and meet with faculty members from the department of their intended major. He added

College Ceases Sponsorship of Adirondack Dance Theatre

SUNY Plattsburgh's sponsorship of the Adirondack Dance Theatre, operated for the past eight years under the auspices of the Center for Lifelong Learning, will be discontinued at the end of June, according to Dr. Thomas Moran, vice president for academic affairs.

The decision, Moran said, comes as part of a campus-wide review of each program and department — as the college tries to serve its students and other constituencies as effectively as possible with drastically decreased resources.

Moran said, "These reviews lead to some difficult decisions. This particular decision is the result of several factors. First, the income generated by the Adirondack Dance Theatre does not entirely cover the costs to the college of sponsoring it. Second, the space in Hawkins Hall used by the Dance Theatre is scheduled for remodeling in the near future. The designated future use of that space will not be appropriate for dance instruction.

"Additionally, other spaces on campus that might be used for dance instruction are already heavily used by our own students during the hours that the Dance Theatre would need space. Finally, the college has had to reassign numerous administrative responsibilities in order to deal with budget cuts and we simply no longer have the administrative support necessary for the program."

Elizabeth Pasti, acting director of the Center for Lifelong Learning, said, "We have talked to many parents of students in the program in recent weeks, and, without exception, they praised the quality of instruction provided to their children. We're very grateful to the instructors, their guest artists, the students and parents for what they have offered to the community in the past eight years.

"We also want to assure the community that the college will continue to provide cultural activities to the community in as many ways as it can."

Middle States Group to Examine Students/Student Life

The Middle States Review Committee's work group on Students and Student Life has identified three major components of its study, according to chairperson Elizabeth Pasti.

One sub-committee will review the appropriateness of the college's admissions policy and its relationship to the college's goals and resources, programs and services, as well as how the college provides equal educational opportunity for potential and currently enrolled students.

Pasti said, "We're also looking at who our students are now compared with ten years ago — in regard to their geographic origin, family income, ethnic/racial mix and academic origins, as well as the college's projected plans for future admissions."

Members of this subcommittee are Richard Higgins, Dave Kocsis, John Moravek, Sally Webb, and Keith Smith.

The second sub-committee (comprised of James Armstrong, Leith Bardon, Dick Boas, Bette Brohel, Ed Engelbride, Keith Smith, Michael Rapley, Sue Jordan, and Matt Malvese) will consider the quality and scope of services provided for students. Those services range from recruitment to placement after graduation, and the role of student services in student retention.

The third group will conduct an evaluation of the official publications of the college, reviewing information, philosophy, accuracy and appropriateness to the chosen image of the college. Engelbride, Higgins and Lary Shaffer are members of this sub-committee.

Journalism Professor Arnold is Next Distinguished Visitor

Edmund C. Arnold, professor emeritus of journalism at Virginia Commonwealth University and former full professor at Syracuse University, will be the next Distinguished Visiting Professor on campus.

Arnold will be in residence from February 20 through March 5.

During his visit, Arnold will teach a one-credit mini-course; guest lecture in journalism, mass communications and graphic arts courses; hold sessions with staff members of Cardinal Points and the Press-Republican; give a lecture on publication design (7 p.m., February 26, Cardinal Lounge); and discuss campus publications with members of the Office of College Relations and Development staff.

Other student and faculty meetings with Arnold may be arranged through Dr. Ron Davis, who is coordinating his visit.

For more than 40 years, Arnold has studied how readers view and process printed information and has demonstrated how publications can be made more comprehensible and engaging. His studies have influenced the design of virtually every newspaper and magazine in the United States.

Arnold has written more than two dozen books, many of which are considered seminal works in graphic design. He has been named a Master Teacher by the Association for Education in Journalism and Mass Communications and a Distinguished Professor in Journalism at Virginia Commonwealth.

He writes a monthly column for the National Newspaper Association, which represents all community-based newspapers in the United States and Canada.

that an additional 21 nominees have been selected in round two of the competition.

Ten incoming freshmen will be selected as Presidential Scholars. To be considered for the award, a student must have a high school average of 92 or above and SAT scores of at least 1100 or ACT scores of at least 27.

Trahan, 1979 Graduate, to Lecture Here Feb. 28; Meet With Students

Dr. Emery Trahan, assistant professor of financial economics at Northeastern University, will visit his alma mater next Thursday (Feb. 28) to speak on "Issues in Corporate Control: Analyzing the Results of Mergers and Acquisitions."

Trahan, originally from Rouses Point, is a 1979 graduate of SUNY Plattsburgh, where he earned his degree in accounting. His talk on Thursday will be held at 4:15 p.m. in Room 130 of Redcay Hall.

A CPA, Trahan earned the Ph.D. in financial economics from SUNY Albany. While on campus, he will be available to meet with students to discuss Northeastern's MBA programs. Those interested are urged to contact Dr. Michael Stoller (ext 4195) in the Department of Economics.

'Writing Across Curriculum' Is Focus of Feb. 27 National Teleconference

Faculty and staff are invited to attend a national teleconference entitled "Issues and Conflicts in Writing Across the Curriculum" which will be aired in Ballroom A of the Angell College Center from 1 to 3 p.m. on Wednesday, February 27.

The program will feature a panel of nationally known experts in the field, including William Zinsser, Toby Fulwiler and Elaine Maimon. Videotaped segments highlighting successful WAC programs will also be aired.

This PBS teleconference is sponsored by the dean of arts and science and the vice president for academic affairs. Dr. Thomas Morrissey, director of writing, is the local coordinator. Admission is free.

Lightfoot's Study of Adolescent Risk-Taking Supported

Dr. Cynthia Lightfoot, assistant professor of psychology, has won a $7,400 grant from the Spencer Foundation of Chicago, to fund a one-year research project on risks, accomplishments and problem solving in adolescent peer groups.

Lightfoot explained her project: "I will be exploring the implications of adolescent risk-taking and future aspirations in the development of peer group culture. Preliminary evidence suggests that adolescents perceive shared risks as a means of achieving self-control and mastery, and as a device for creating peer group culture. The evidence also suggests important group differences in patterns of risk behavior and plans for the future.

"The purpose of this project is to study patterns of risk-taking, academic and career aspirations and group membership over time."

Lightfoot plans to recruit approximately 50 area high school students to participate in the study.

New to the faculty in September of 1990, Lightfoot recently earned her doctorate from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She earned her master's degree from the University of British Columbia in Vancouver. This project builds on her doctoral dissertation.

Troisi to Come Out of Retirement Briefly to Direct 35th Leadership Workshop

The rallying cry of Charge! will reverberate through the corridors of Sibley Hall once again this summer.

Dr. Nicholas Troisi, dean emeritus of the Faculty of Professional Studies, will come out of retirement briefly to serve as resident director of the 35th annual National Leadership Workshop. The workshop, co-sponsored with the college by the National Association of Elementary School Principals, the National Association of Secondary School Principals and the School Administrators Association of New York State, will be held from July 22 through August 2.

A workshop planning committee is meeting today and tomorrow at the Educational Conference Center at Valcour. Besides Troisi and Dr. James Ashe, professor of education and associate resident director of the workshop, that committee is composed of the executive director and the Executive Committee of the School Administrators Association of New York State.

Troisi retired officially from SUNY Plattsburgh at the conclusion of last summer's Leadership Workshop, which attracted nearly 300 teachers and school administrators from across New York State. He had served the college for 35 years, and he directed the Leadership Workshop annually since 1963. At present he is district governor for Rotary International.

Students Will be Required to Meet with Their Advisors to Obtain Mid-term Grades

As a means to save money, the college is making a change in the way mid-term grades are distributed.

Effective this semester, mid-term grades will no longer be mailed to students' local addresses. Rather, copies of students' grades will be sent — along with their advisors' copies — to their advisors.

"Students may continue to review their grades by stopping by the Registrar's Office," said Dr. Ingrun Lafleur, associate vice president for academic affairs. "But to obtain a copy of their mid-term grades this spring, they will have to see their advisors."

Lafleur noted that advisors will distribute the grade reports to their students when they see them for general advising and to help them register for fall semester classes. This procedure should prove helpful in that it fosters student-advisor interaction and the opportunity to discuss academic progress.

The change stems from a recommendation by Registrar Jocile Irwin-Devins to the Academic Council. It was approved by Vice President Thomas Moran in light of current budgetary constraints.

By discontinuing mailing mid-term grades to students' local addresses, the college will save considerably in postage costs. Savings will accrue, also, in the registrar's office in staff time required normally to handle the mailing.

Weekly deadlines

News items or story suggestions for Weekly are due in the Office of College Relations and Development (8th floor Kehoe, ext. 2090) no later than noon on Monday of the week of publication. Earlier notification will be appreciated. Please note guidelines for submitting items for this week on campus at the bottom of the back page of that publication.

Washington Sisters Highlight 'Cultural Diversity' Events

Panel sessions on women's studies and Native American issues, on war and homophobia, a dramatic performance and a concert featuring the Washington Sisters highlight a day-long "Celebration of Cultural Diversity" program to be held on campus Friday (Feb. 20).

Morning and afternoon activities will be held in the Angell Center Cardinal Lounge, and all are free and open to the public. They begin at 10 a.m. with a panel of SUNY Plattsburgh men students discussing "Why Men Should Take Women's Studies Classes."

Dr. Jennifer Scanlon, assistant professor of women's studies, will moderate an 11 a.m. panel of students that will address the topic, "What Does Cultural Diversity Have to do with the Middle East War?" At noon, students Donna Lee Thompson and Michael Shartrand will perform The Wool Gatherer, American Modern, a drama by senior theatre major Greg Waagner.

The afternoon program includes a panel at one o'clock on Native Americans, with an introduction by Sally Roesch Wagner, visiting distinguished professor, followed by one entitled "Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Straight: Confronting Homophobia Together." The latter will be moderated by Dr. John Kellermeier, and participants will include members of the campus-based Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Association.

The Washington Sisters (with Melanie Monsur) will perform at 8 p.m. in Giltz Auditorium, Hawkins Hall. The group, currently on national tour, is known for a smooth but vibrant style that encompasses gospel, acapella, funk, jazz, blues, and island rock.

Friday's cultural diversity event is being sponsored by the college's Multicultural Affairs Committee, the Office of the President, Women's Studies, AKEBA and the Center for Women's Concerns.

Myrick Sets School, Conference Marks in SUNYAC Tourney

Heather Myrick won first-place ribbons in the long jump (5.30 meters) and triple jump (11.08 meters) to pace the Cardinal women to a fifth place finish in the SUNYAC Indoor Track and Field Championships held last weekend at the college's field house. Her triple jump established a new school, field house and conference record in that event.

In the men's competition, Curtis Thompson finished tops in the field and qualified for the New York State Championships in track with a triple jump of 13.45 meters (44 feet, 3 inches). Plattsburgh placed fourth in the standings. Cortland State dominated the tournament, winning both the women's and men's competitions.

Dan Schaly tallied a hat trick and Matt Furtado scored twice to back Les Sirota's brilliant performance in goal in leading the Plattsburgh State hockey team to an impressive 8-3 triumph over conference arch-rivals from Oswego on Saturday. The victory was the season finale for the Cardinals, who are banned from post-season play by NCAA sanctions. The team of largely underclassmen posted a highly respectable 19-7-1 record on the campaign.

The men's basketball team was pounded by Geneseo, 84-44, and nipped by Brockport, 74-73, over the weekend, but still managed to land a conference playoff spot. Sporting a 7-8 SUNYAC regular season record, the Cardinals were scheduled to open the playoffs Tuesday at Potsdam.

The Cardinal women lost decisively to Geneseo and Brockport to close out their season with two wins against 21 losses (2-13 against SUNY foes).

College Receives $74,898 Bequest from 1921 Graduate

SUNY Plattsburgh has received a bequest totaling $74,898 from the estate of the late Dr. J. Leonard Douglas of Clearwater, Fla. Douglas, a retired school administrator, was a member of the Plattsburgh Normal School's Class of 1921.

"This bequest is among the largest we've received from an alumnus," commented President Charles O. Warren. "It is obvious that Dr. Douglas' experiences at Plattsburgh instilled in him a lasting fondness for this college and an appreciation for its impact on his life and career."

Mal Lavery, director of development and alumni affairs, stated that the college had been in touch with Douglas for many years. "We had contacted and spoken with him on many occasions while in Florida for development purposes," Lavery said.

Don Garrant, executive assistant to the president and executive director of the Plattsburgh College Foundation, said that Douglas requested that a scholarship fund for undergraduates be created through his bequest. The bequest, he added, may be used to create an

All-Campus-Constituency Delegation of 16 to Attend 'SUNY Day '91'

A delegation of 16 will represent SUNY Plattsburgh at the annual "SUNY Day" program scheduled for Tuesday, Mar. 5 in the state capital.

The theme for the day-long event, planned to attract representatives of all constituencies from all 64 campuses in State University, is "Advocacy for the 90s." SUNY Day begins at 8 a.m. at a breakfast meeting featuring remarks by Chancellor D. Bruce Johnstone. It continues with an overview of the 1991 Legislative session, an interpretation of the impact of the '91-92 Executive Budget on SUNY, a panel discussion of higher education issues featuring the views of legislative leaders, and meetings between campus people and elected officials from their home districts and those who hold leadership posts in the Legislature.

The agenda for the Plattsburgh contingent includes afternoon meetings with Sen. Ronald B. Stafford of Plattsburgh and Assemblymen Chris Orloff of Plattsburgh and James King of Ticonderoga. Campus personnel also have an appointment to discuss issues and concerns facing the college and SUNY with Kenneth LaValle, chairman of the Senate's Higher Education Committee.

Also, members of the Plattsburgh group will visit and leave booklets detailing the possible impact of proposed budget reductions on the campus with Senate Majority Leader Ralph Marino, Edward Sullivan, who chairs the Assembly's Higher Education Committee, and with Tarkey Lombardi, chairman of the Senate

Nine from This College to Participate

Two-Day Symposium on Mythology Begins Friday on Campus

A major symposium titled Mythology: From Ancient Myth to New Age will be held on campus on March 1-2. Registration will be held at noon on Friday, with the first session scheduled for 2 p.m. Additional sessions are set for 4-6:30 p.m. on Friday, and 8:45 - 10 a.m., 10:15 a.m. - 12:30 p.m., and 1:30 - 4 p.m. on Saturday. All sessions will be held in the Cardinal Lounge.

Special guests include Eberhard Gerner, a filmmaker and scriptwriter from Germany and Erich Wolfgang

Skwara, a professor of German literature at San Diego State University. Gerner has done a number of films about the Resistance against Hitler and has written extensively in various European journals. His lecture will focus on "Myth and Socialism." Skwara has written several novels and published many volumes of poetry. He also writes on music, art, culture and literature. He will read in English from his novel Pestilence in Siena and discuss "Don Juan as a Myth."

The symposium is coordinated by Dr. Bruce Butterfield, associate professor of English, and Dr. Jurgen Kleist, assistant professor of foreign language and literature. It is sponsored by the Office of the President and the Office of the Vice President. Further details are available from Butterfield or Kleist.

Student Aid Cut Here Could Total $740,000

The proposed cuts in state-supported student financial aid programs could result in a net loss of nearly $740,000 for students attending this college.

The Executive Budget proposal for SUNY for fiscal 1991-92 recommends deletion of Regents, Regents Nursing, and Scholarships of Excellence; deferral of Liberty Scholarships and reductions in the Tuition Assistance Program (TAP). An analysis of the impact of the cuts on SUNY Plattsburgh students, based on the institution's current aid populations, shows that:

- The cuts in Regents, Regents Nursing and Scholarships of Excellence would affect 515 students, for a loss in student aid totaling $187, 877.
- Deferral of Liberty Scholarships would affect 100 Plattsburgh students, and the aid loss would be $200,000.
- More than 900 students would lose their share of $336,350 if TAP awards under $400 are eliminated, and another 290 who qualify for maximum TAP support would lose $14,500 collectively if TAP for these students is cut as proposed by $50 per award.

Suzanne Sokolowski, director of financial aid, sees the impact of the projected loss in aid as especially burdensome for students who, in September, may have to pay $500 more per year in tuition than the current rate. Compounding the problem, she says, is the fact that federal financial aid will not be increasing and that growing unemployment is threatening to impose hardships on increasing numbers of New Yorkers.

endowment in Douglas' name, with the income designated for scholarships.

Garrant noted that the Foundation's endowment now totals more than $4 million, nearly twice the total on record only two years ago.

Douglas is not the first member of the Class of '21 to provide a significant gift to the college. The late Ruth Clark Huntington donated about $25,000 to her alma mater during her lifetime and also created an endowment that today totals more than $68,000.

Finance Committee.

The Plattsburgh delegation will consist of President Charles O. Warren; Vice President for Academic Affairs Thomas Moran; College Council members Robert Garrow (chairperson) Arnold Amell '53, Wayne Byrne (vice chairperson) and Robert Pearl; James Ashe, professor of education and president of the campus chapter of UUP; Student Association officers Jacqueline Lichte, president, Susan Higgins, executive vice president, and Michael Rapley, vice president for central affairs.

Also, Raymond Domenico, presiding officer of the Faculty Senate; Don Garrant, executive assistant to the president; Malcolm Lavery, director of development and alumni affairs; Elizabeth Lennon, senior stenographer and president of the college's CSEA chapter; Edward Miller, chairperson of the Faculty Senate; and Louis Testa, a 1976 graduate of the college who is an attorney in Albany.

Inquiry into Drawing ...

Henry Moore's Women Winding Wool, from "Behind the Line," an extensive exhibit of drawing — including collage, gouache, watercolor, graphite and ink — that opens today (Feb. 27) and continues through April 3 in the SUNY Plattsburgh Art Museum's Myers Fine Arts Gallery. Besides Moore, the exhibit, on loan from the Grey Art Gallery and Study Center at New York University, also features works by Delauney, Helen Frankenthaler, Paul Klee, George Luks and Pablo Picasso. The exhibit, described as "An Inquiry into Drawing," goes beyond the traditional definition of drawing as a secondary process in art to accommodate a wide range of techniques and divergent media and materials. It may be viewed from noon to 4 p.m. on Saturday through Thursday, and admission is free and open to all.

Forensic Team 3rd at Binghamton; 7 Advance to Finals

The college's Forensic Team did well at last weekend's tournament held at SUNY Binghamton, placing seven students in finals, winning the trophy for best public school team, and placing third overall behind St. John's and Cornell.

Karen Yoos was high point-getter for the team, making finals in five events and earning the title of Best Original Speaker. Chris Holfester and Alison Wise placed first in persuasion and poetry, respectively and each made finals in three events, as did Meg Gossin. Shelly Becker, Steve Patterson and Heather Thomson also made the final round of competition in one event each.

Senior Class Phonothn Set to Begin; Fund to Augment Library Resources

The annual Senior Class Gift Phonothn will take place from March 4-6 from 6 to 9:30 p.m. daily in the sixth floor conference room of the Kehoe Administration Building. Sara Gaffney, Chris Kelley and Bill Sherman are chairpersons of this year's Senior Class Gift Committee.

The committee has set a goal of $10,000 in pledges that will benefit the Feinberg Library book acquisition fund. A bookplate honoring the Class of '91 will be placed in each book purchased as a result of the fund-raising project.

Phonothn solicitors will ask their classmates to pledge $100 over a three-year period. Those who contribute at that level during the specified time period will have personalized bookplates placed in three different books purchased with the Class of '91 gift fund.

A similar campaign conducted a year ago generated nearly $7,000 in pledges from the Class of 1990. Those funds, also, are marked for book acquisitions for Feinberg Library.

Committee Formed to Search for Business and Economics Dean

The search committee to find a new dean for the School of Business and Economics has been formed and will begin to review applications in the near future.

College Council Meets Tomorrow

The next meeting of the SUNY Plattsburgh College Council will be held on February 28 at 3:30 p.m. in the Memorial Hall Conference Room.

Agenda items will include reports from the various Council liaisons, an update on the Middle States Review process by Steering Committee Chair John Myers, and a report on the Intercollegiate Athletics Program by Peter Luguri, David Robertson and Phoebe Sturm.

WEEKLY Salutes ...

Congratulations and a special happy birthday to Ida Jacques, information assistant in the Feinberg Library! Jacques, a member of the Plattsburgh Normal School Class of 1932, celebrated her 80th birthday on February 24. After working for many years in education and later in private business, she joined the library staff in 1973, then retired in 1978. Four years later, she returned to work on a part-time basis and continues to serve in the Special Collections area, with no plans to retire again.

Myrick Wins State Title; Six Cards Named All-SUNYAC

Heather Myrick continued her unbeaten streak in the long jump by winning her first state title in the New York State Women's Collegiate Athletic Association Championships, held at Fredonia over the weekend. Myrick, who also placed fourth in the triple jump, leaped 17 feet, 3 1/4 inches in taking the state crown.

Meanwhile, swimmers Christine Scott and Deidre Sweeney set new Plattsburgh State records at the SUNYAC championships at Oswego, and two Cardinal athletes in basketball and four in ice hockey were named to All-SUNYAC teams for 1990-91.

For the women's swim team, Scott established new Cardinal performance standards in the 200 and 400 meter individual medley events with times of 2:23.16 and 5:04.10, respectively. She finished seventh at 200 meters and fifth in the 400 meter race. Teammate Sweeney set a new Plattsburgh State mark in the 1650 freestyle, swimming the mile in 19:33.81.

First team all-conference honors have been bestowed on basketball players Todd Wright and Alicia LaValley and hockey forwards Jim Powers and Dan Schaly. Senior defensemen Martin Beliveau and Martin Couture were named to the second team All-SUNYAC hockey squad.

Work Committee on the Faculty Addressing Seven Major Categories

The Middle States Review Work Committee on the Faculty has been hard at work since December, according to Dr. Carrie Harris, who chairs the committee.

The committee's charge, she said, is to address seven major categories - description of the faculty, procedures for hiring and evaluation, value of service activities, the working environment, participation in policy-making and governance, impact of various organizational units on instruction, and evaluation of teaching. She added that subcommittees are currently in the data-collecting stage with a March 27 target date for completion. Between that date and April 10, data will be analyzed by the committee of the whole.

Faculty and professional staff will be surveyed on a number of questions, including academic freedom, agreements on employment and renewal of contract, leaves, teaching loads, work for extra compensation, outside employment, opportunities for faculty development, faculty participation in policy-making and governance, and evaluation of teaching. That survey instrument will be distributed March 6.

Members of the Work Committee on the Faculty include Diana Akey, Carol Burnham, Peter Ensel, Roger Hamernik, Lise Heroux, Mary Roark, Donald Ryan, Ann Tracy, and Dan Vogt. John Madison and Carolee Smith are the committee's liaisons with the Steering Committee.

Wright, a junior from Delmar, scored 340 points (13.1 per game) and pulled down 213 rebounds (8.2 per game) for the 10-16 Cardinals. LaValley, of Canton, was selected from a team that won but two games in 23 outings. She tallied 400 points (17.4 per game), grabbed 129 rebounds (5.6 per game) and averaged 2.5 assists and 3.1 steals per game while playing every minute of the season.

Powers, a senior from Springfield, Mass., who is in Sapporo, Japan as the only Division III hockey player chosen for the U.S. Select Team competing there over the next two weeks, scored 31 points for the 19-8-1 Cardinals and was the mainstay of his team's 80-percent-efficiency penalty killing unit. Schaly, a junior from Barre, Ont., paced the Cardinal scoring attack with a team-leading 57 points on 24 goals and 33 assists.

Conference second team defensemen Beliveau, of Boucherville, Que., and Couture, of Laval, Que., contributed to the Cardinals' potent offense with 35 and 24 points, respectively.

Culver-Reinhart Article Wins Prize as Best on Latin American History

An article co-authored by Dr. William Culver, professor of political science, and former faculty member Dr. Cornel Reinhart who now teaches at St. Lawrence University, has won the "1990 Conference on Latin American History Prize."

The prize is given annually for the best article on Latin America published in a journal other than the Hispanic American Historical Review and carries with it a cash award. The Conference on Latin America is a subgroup of the American Historical Association.

The article, titled "Capitalist Dreams: Chile's Response to Nineteenth Century Copper Competition" appeared in the October, 1989 issue of Comparative Studies in Society and History: An International Quarterly.

Honors Center in Hawkins Hall Undergoing Renovation

The Honors Center, located in Hawkins Hall since 1985, has been expanded and is currently being renovated, according to Dr. David Mowry, who directs the Honors Program.

Mowry said that, for the past five years, the Center, located in Hawkins 123, was comprised of a small Hawkins 121 was designated to become part of the Honors Center.

The new space, after some additional work to be completed this summer, will add two seminar rooms and a large study lounge area. The former center space has been revamped to include a reception/secretarial area, an office for the Distinguished Visiting Professor in residence, a small student work area with computer facilities and a director's office. The renovations are being done with funding from the Plattsburgh College Foundation.

A special feature in the center is two seminar tables, designed by Mowry and built by John Finlayson, an art major and sculptor. "The tables," Mowry said, "are designed to facilitate discussion and interaction. Both are octagonal, with seats for 16. The design maximizes face-to-face interaction. In addition, each table is made of three components which may be reorganized in a variety of configurations for special purposes."

Mowry added that the new facilities are available campus-wide and are not restricted to honors students. "The seminar rooms are used by non-Honors classes," he said, "and student academic groups may use the space for meetings and activities."

Mowry also said that the larger, enhanced Honors Center will allow for the recruitment of a larger number of students to participate in the Honors Program.

Faculty, Students Supporting New Student Contact Effort

A number of academic departments are cooperating with the college's admission staff in an initiative designed to establish personal contact with accepted students in order to sustain their interest in SUNY Plattsburgh.

Admissions Director Richard Higgins explained that faculty in a variety of disciplines, aided by upper division students they choose, are making congratulatory telephone calls to applicants who have been offered admission to specific programs this coming fall. The psychology and chemistry departments are among the

- Monday, March 11 — noon, Sibley Hall Cafetorium.
- Tuesday, March 12 — 8:30 a.m., Hawkins Hall, Room 103.
- Wednesday, March 13 — 5:15 p.m., Angell Center Cardinal Lounge.

Teacher Education Center Gets Project Support Renewal

The Center for Teacher Education and Educational Services has received a third year of funding in the amount of $1,000 from the Dodge Foundation for "Celebration of Teaching -1991."

Re-establishing Ties ...

Dr. Emery Trahan (c), a 1979 graduate of SUNY Plattsburgh who is assistant professor of financial economics at Northeastern University, visited his alma mater recently as guest lecturer. Besides speaking to students about the impact of mergers and acquisitions on corporate control, Trahan, originally from Rouses Point, used the occasion to renew acquaintances with his former mentors, Drs. Michael Stoller (l) and William Kelting.

"Celebration of Teaching -1991" will focus the efforts of the last two programs by bringing together 100 selected talented freshmen, sophomores and juniors from 10 area high schools on April 10 as part of the all-college Showcase '91 exposition. Those students will be presented with a day focused on showcasing teaching excellence.

A major goal of this year's program is to assess the impact of the day's events on students' interest in teaching as a profession. Superintendents of the participating high schools will be asked to appoint key faculty in their schools to work with student organizations to identify appropriate students.

SUNY Plattsburgh student mentors will meet with the high school students before and after the on-campus event to provide a link with the college and to survey through an assessment form/interview process the impact of these activities on the students' developing desire to be teachers.

All activities during the day will involve the observation and discussion of teaching excellence. Teams of ten students will observe and discuss exemplary demonstration classes taught by model teachers. The teachers will discuss what they were doing and why, and be available to answer questions.

Other activities include a stop-action play involving a simulated class, a professional conference luncheon with a head table speaker, a modified game of "Jeopardy" using such categories as the history of education and educational personalities, and a demonstration on signing to songs. The day will conclude with a 'rap' on celebrating teaching written by education majors.

first to participate, and nearly 20 others are expected to follow suit through mid-April.

"Besides commending prospective students directly on their educational achievements to date," Higgins said, "the telephone campaign gives faculty or currently enrolled students the opportunity to talk about the strengths of specific academic programs. Our people answer questions about major fields of study and provide general information about the college and college life, and they encourage campus visits — particularly to our Open House program scheduled for April 21."

Participating faculty and students go through a brief training session before taking to the telephone. Calls are made between 5 and 7 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays from six telephone lines available in the Admissions Office.

Computer-generated lists contain the contacts' names, addresses, telephone numbers, areas of academic interest and levels of study. If faculty prefer, lists can target precise characteristics of students; that is, by academic ability, by geographic location or whether they come from a particular two-year college or from multi-cultural backgrounds.

Higgins noted that callers frequently wind up talking to parents, either because the accepted student is not at home or because the parents have questions about the college they want answered. Conversations usually last between two and eight minutes, and, Higgins said, callers more frequently are finding themselves giving their pitch on SUNY Plattsburgh to answering machines.

"They (answering machines) don't deter us," Higgins said. "The message still gets through."

The premise behind the campaign, according to Higgins, is that the more that teachers and students at the college contact prospective students personally and get them to visit the campus, the more likely they are to enroll.

Chancellor Asks for Insight on Cost and Cutback Issues

SUNY Chancellor D. Bruce Johnstone has written an "open letter" to students and parents that explains the fiscal dilemma facing New York State and the University and urges their understanding as the state and SUNY struggle with the predicament.

The letter, targeted for all institutional constituencies through campus-based student media and internal newsletters, focuses on proposed cost increases for the coming fall and the prospect of cuts in the Tuition Assistance Program and Regents Scholarships, and asks that they be considered in light of the fiscal crisis. Excerpts from the letter follow.

"All ... proposals must be viewed in the context of the most serious state financial crisis since the Great Depression, with the governor recommending state budget cuts of some $4.5 billion as part of an effort to close a projected $9 billion budget gap between estimated state expenditures and tax revenues next year. The State University faces cuts of some $75 million in the state-operated campuses in addition to the requirement that we raise another $60 million in tuition revenue — hence the proposed increase of $500 for next year on top of this year's increase of $300.

"This would be a very steep increase, far steeper than I would like to see in a single year and far more, I am sure, than any of you care to see. But as we face together these and other unhappy features of today's financial climate, I would hope that we would all keep several things in mind.

"First, the Trustees and I and your campus administrators remain committed to the principle that (SUNY) should be accessible to all New York students regardless of financial circumstances. This does not mean that your SUNY education will be easy ... but SUNY will still be a great bargain — far, far less costly than the private or out-of-state alternatives. And New Yorkers, with TAP, federal Pell Grants and other sources of scholarships and grants, will still have more need-based financial assistance than students and parents in any other state.

"Second 'access' today is threatened more by ... recommended cuts in faculty and sections and course availability than by tuition. If tuition is to be less than now projected, it is important that it not be so at the expense of even deeper cuts to faculty, staff, equipment and building upkeep.

"Third, your SUNY campus will continue to be a great bargain — because of the increasing premium of a college education, because of the increasing reputation of SUNY, and because of the state support that will still allow a low cost, affordable higher education."

In closing, Johnstone suggests that students and parents maintain contact with institutional financial aid staff and assures them that the University will continue to "make the case for SUNY" before the Legislature and the governor.

Crimi Named to Head MOC

Frank Crimi has been named to head the Maintenance Operations Center (MOC) in the college's Facilities, Maintenance and Operations division.

Crimi has served as a maintenance supervisor at

New MOC head Frank Crimi (r) with Facilities Director J. Derek Allan.

Assessment Study to Provide 'Snapshot' of College Life

Half of the matriculated undergraduate students at SUNY Plattsburgh have been sent an Academic Development Survey.

Dr. Henry Morlock, director of assessment, is requesting that the surveys be returned by March 11 to either the College Center Desk, to students' RAs, or to the Office of Assessment, 313 Kehoe. Morlock said, "The survey will help us learn what it is like to be a student here and will give us an academic snapshot of undergraduate studies at Plattsburgh.

The information will facilitate planning and assessment, and in comparison to a similar survey done four years ago, will help to identify important trends. Everyone who has received a form is urged to return it by the 11th."

SUNY Plattsburgh for many years. In his new role, he is responsible for planning work requests, and that includes evaluating site conditions, estimating quantities and purchasing materials and scheduling jobs.

J. Derek Allan, director of facilities, encourages members of the campus community to call on Crimi if they need help in preparing work orders. Crimi, he said, will review requirements and perhaps suggest alternative solutions to maintenance problems that can occur after work begins.

The MOC is located in the service building on Sanborne Ave., and Crimi may be reached at ext. 5018.

50-Plus Earn PEARS' All-Academic Honorable Mention

The Department of Physical Education, Athletics and Recreational Sports (PEARS) has announced its All-Academic Team for the fall 1990 semester.

While the first team is made up of ten men and women dean's list students, which requires a minimum grade point average of 3.5, more than 50 qualified for at least "honorable mention" status, and that necessitates a 3.0 gpa. Student-athletes in seven women's and six men's sports were eligible for all-academic honors.

Tennis players Kerry Hodgens and Ann Diel head the women's team. Hodgens, a senior speech and hearing science major from Middletown, and Diel, a freshman elementary education major from Kingston, earned gpa's of 4.0 and 3.86, respectively. Hodgens played fourth singles and first or second doubles for the Cardinals last fall, and Diel played second and third singles and was a regular in second doubles.

Track standout Tiffany Beick of Rochester, a sophomore speech and hearing handicapped education major, was a first team repeat performer with a gpa of 3.74. Last spring Beick was inducted to Phi Eta Sigma, the freshman academic honorary society.

Rounding out the women's team are soccer fullback Ellen Burns, a junior elementary education major from Stony Point, and swimmer Rachel Davis, a junior art major from Almond. Burns was the third high scorer for a Cardinal team that advanced to the New York State Women's Collegiate Athletic Association Championships, and Davis, who made the All-Academic Team in both semesters last year, swims the freestyle and a leg on the Cards' 400 yard freestyle relay team.

Senior psychology major and cross country runner David Seguin earned the top spot on the men's team with a fall term gpa of 3.9. Besides being a strong runner, Seguin, from Ogdensburg, has been an officer on his residence hall council.

December graduate Brian Micheels, a soccer sweeper from Middletown, earned a 3.86 gpa last fall. He captained the 1990 Cardinal ECAC championship team, earned All-SUNYAC honors and was voted his team's most valuable player by his teammates.

Basketball players complete the men's All-Academic Team. They are sophomore reserves Tim Kiernan of Alplaus and Tony Guidi of Stormville, and backcourt starter John Knack of Potsdam. Kiernan, a psychology major, achieved a 3.5 gpa and Guidi, whose major is undeclared, compiled a 3.57, moving up from honorable mention a year ago.

Knack, a junior business management major and Presidential Scholar, has been a member of the Plattsburgh State All-Academic Team since his first semester on campus. A team tri-captain this past season, point guard Knack earned a 3.5 gpa.

At least two members of each of the 13 fall sports teams qualified for honorable mention recognition at the minimum. The Cardinal hockey team led the parade with eight honorable mention performers whose gpa's ranged from 3.0 to 3.47.

THIS WEEK ON CAMPUS is compiled by the Office of Campus Life and published by the Office of College Relations and Development. Items to be listed in this bulletin must be received in the Office of Campus Life no later than noon on Thursday the week prior to publication.

Budget Predicament Ominous; Lobby-for-Relief Effort Urged

The budget situation confronting SUNY and this college continues to be ominous, prompting President Charles O. Warren to appeal to the campus family, Plattsburgh alumni and the University's advocates in the community to campaign for relief among state legislative leaders (see the Weekly Bulletin in this issue).

Noting that the proposed $500 tuition increase (which would generate $60 million in revenue for SUNY) may be in jeopardy, and citing the need for "partial restoration of $20 million from new funds," President Warren is asking colleagues, students and friends to communicate their concerns to legislators by telegram, telephone or special-delivery mail. He underscored the extreme urgency of the problem by saying that, even if the college receives a share of the $80 million in the tuition increase-new revenue proposal, SUNY Plattsburgh will still face a reduced allocation of $1.1 million and a loss of 25-30 positions. Additionally, access would be denied to more than 165 young people.

In the meantime, the college-wide program and activity review process initiated last fall is continuing. It is following guidelines, principles, assumptions and criteria previously announced, and it is focusing on all levels of employment and all functions.

President Warren said the college is approaching the position reduction plan in a balanced way, but with determination that it be as humane as possible. "We must maintain a strong core of quality and integrity in the interest of the future of the college, the support of our students and communities and the preservation of our mission," he said. "We intend to work with affected colleagues in a strong and supportive manner."

The president acknowledged that rumors inevitably will circulate. He urges those who hear them to call him personally (ext. 2010) or to stop by his office in Hawkins Hall, Room 109.

An open forum on the budget situation will be scheduled as soon as more definitive information becomes available.

Three to Visit as 'Distinguished Alumni Program' Continues

A physician, a self-made business executive and a high-profile public relations practitioner will share the spotlight when the SUNY Plattsburgh Distinguished Alumni Program — a huge success in 1989-91 when it was inaugurated as a special component of the college's Centennial Celebration — resumes next month.

A committee of faculty, staff and students has made arrangements to bring to campus:

- Dr. Jayne Rivas, medical director, Skilled Nursing Facility, New York Foundling Hospital/Center for Pediatric Medical & Rehabilitative Care, Inc., New York City. Dr. Rivas, who received the B.A. in chemistry from SUNY Plattsburgh in 1969, will be on campus April 7, 8 and 9.
- Robert J. Smallacombe, president and founder of Executive Intervention, Inc., a crisis management consulting firm located in Pennington, N.J. A native of Plattsburgh and a 1960 graduate of the college's elementary education program, Smallacombe's visit is scheduled for April 20, 21 and 22.

• Anita M. Larsen, manager of media relations for Texaco, Inc., White Plains. Larsen, a 1982 magna cum laude graduate of the college with a B.A. in communication arts, will visit on April 28, 29 and 30.

While on campus, the Distinguished Visiting Alumni

Honorary Degree Nominees Sought

Nominations of candidates to receive honorary degrees from the State University of New York during the 1991-92 academic year are being sought on this campus.

Any member of the college community may nominate individuals thought to be deserving of the honor. The names of candidates, together with supporting materials, may be submitted to the Office of the President through Friday, April 19.

College Hosting Soviet Executives for Training Program

SUNY Plattsburgh, through its Institute of International Business Education, Research and Training (IBERT) and the campus-based Center for the Study of Joint Ventures, has been selected by officials of the Soviet Union to provide an executive training program for top-level managers of the U.S.S.R. Timber Ministry.

Twenty-eight Soviets are participating in the program, which began Tuesday (March 26) and continues through April 12. Its inauguration culminated six months of intensive negotiations by IBERT, which is co-directed by Dr. Prem Gandhi, professor of economics, and Alan Lessler, director of the Economic Development and Technical Assistance Center.

Lessler said the efforts of Dr. Zubaidur Rahman, associate professor of accounting and director of the Center for the Study of Joint Ventures, were instrumental in bringing the program to campus. Lessler, Gandhi and Rahman are serving as project supervisors.

The faculty for the program consists primarily of members of the college's School of Business and Economics, but guest instructors will include lecturers from Cornell University, Corning Glass Works, Marine Midland Bank, Wyeth-Ayerst Laboratories, F.W. Myers & Co. and the Miner Institute. The project itinerary also includes a field trip to the Adirondack Park and to wood products industries to be led by Dr. James Dawson, professor in the Center for Earth and Environmental Science.

Besides academic training, the Soviets will be exposed to a variety of cultural and educational activities at the college and in the community.

Career/Life Planning Center's 17th Career Night Set for Next Thursday

The Career/Life Planning Center's seventeenth annual "Career Night" program will be held next Thursday (April 4) from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in the Angell Center Ballrooms.

The event, designed specifically for seniors, provides an opportunity for students to interact personally with employers in an informal setting. It emphasizes information exchange and provides opportunities for students to broaden their perspectives on career options.

"Career Night traditionally has been very well attended by students and well-received by both students and prospective employers," said Carolyn Delcore, assistant director of the Center. "Feedback has been positive each year, and employers who visit other campuses across the state say ours is the biggest and best they attend."

While reservations are still coming in, several employers who anticipate openings in the near future are expected to remain on campus an extra day to conduct interviews. According to Delcore, some will interview graduating seniors for full-time positions, some will interview underclassmen for co-op positions, and others will interview for both.

More information about Career Night and Recruitment Day on April 5 is available in the Career/Life Planning Center, located on the sixth floor of the Kehoe administration building.

Student Lobbyists

will serve as guest lecturers in classes, share their experiences with students and faculty in fields related to their careers, meet informally with honors students and attend social events.

They will be hosted by faculty and students and will reside and take their meals on campus.

"We're excited about this spring's program for two reasons," commented Dr. Jane Gore, professor in the Center for Human Resources and program co-chair. "First, it renews a Centennial year effort that was an unqualified success for all concerned. Second, the participants are first-rate people who can be real-world role models for our students."

Gore said that Dr. Stuart Baum, professor of chemistry, and Albert Montanaro, associate professor of communication, will serve as faculty hosts for Rivas and Larsen, respectively. A faculty member from the School of Business and Economics will be chosen to assist Smallacombe.

Peter Ensel, instructor in communication, co-chairs the committee with Gore. Its remaining members include students Jacqueline Lichte and Shari McCormick, William Laundry, director of campus life, Patrick Lennahan, director of the Career/Life Planning Center, and Malcolm Lavery, director of development and alumni affairs.

Douglas Sloan Wins Approval for Fulbright to Germany

Douglas Sloan, a senior political science major from Palmyra, NY, has been approved by the screening committee of the Institute of International Education for a Fulbright Fellowship for post-graduate study in Germany.

Douglas Sloan

Sloan is only the second SUNY Plattsburgh student to reach this stage in the competition for one of the prestigious fellowships (Dr. Margarete Heck '81 was the first Plattsburgh student to win a Fulbright Fellowship.).

The Fulbright Program is administered through the United States Information Agency. Candidates are selected by a twelve member body appointed by the President of the United States. Sloan's application was also approved for an award offered by the Deutscher Akademischer Austauschdienst. His application is now being reviewed by both bodies for funding and his final status will be known prior to June 15.

Sloan plans to attend the University of Hannover in Germany and study the restructuring of the professoriate in a united Germany, under the sponsorship of Dr. Manfred Heinemann. Heinemann is director of the university's Research Center for Contemporary History of Education. Sloan met Heinemann through Dr. Douglas Skopp, chair of the history department and a former Fulbright Fellow who completed his project in Germany. Sloan has conferred with Heinemann for nearly a year and believes that working with him will allow access to government officials and academic leaders in both the eastern and western portions of Germany.

The project, Sloan wrote, will involve a careful study and comparison of the ideological priorities of higher education as they existed in the Federal Republic and the German Democratic Republic through the perspective of administrators and professors.

Sloan has spent the last year in Europe at three different universities. During the summer of 1990, he studied at the University of Krakow in Poland. In the fall semester, he moved to Budapest University of Economics in Hungary, and he is currently enrolled at the University of Tubingen in Germany.

Two years ago, Sloan was the college's first semi-finalist for a Truman Scholarship. His essay for that competition focused on human rights and the 1975 Helsinki Accords.

A member of Phi Eta Sigma, Sloan has participated in the college's Honors Program since his freshman year and completed an advanced honors project on the diplomatic political relations between Germany and Poland over the past century. He was the founding president of the Honors Student Association and has served on the Campus Judicial Board and the Undergraduate Alumni Council. He chaired the 1989 Alumni and Parents Fund phonothons, which, combined, raised a total of $115,000.

Sloan plans a career in international diplomacy with a specialization in educational policies and is considering several options for graduate school. The student application process for the Fulbright program is coordinated on campus by Dr. David Mowry and Al Mihalek.

Residence Room Rates to Increase 7.9 Percent — Still Lowest in SUNY

Students who live on campus will pay $75 more per semester in room rent in academic 1991-92 than during the current academic year, but they'll still pay less than their counterparts at other residential campuses in SUNY.

William Laundry, director of campus life, said that room rent for next year will increase 7.9 percent — from the current $1,900 to $2,050. He attributed the hike to factors ranging from inflationary costs to maintain and upgrade facilities to expansion of the innovative and highly effective scrambler security access system to all residence halls.

Laundry said the increase was approved by President Charles Warren following consultation with students, specifically with members of the Residence Hall President's Council.

"We still retain our position as the least expensive campus in SUNY in terms of room rent," commented Laundry, "and that includes the University Centers and agricultural and technical colleges as well as the arts and science institutions." He added that costs elsewhere in SUNY next year will run $75 higher than at Plattsburgh on the low side to more than $400 on the high side.

8 Inducted to Phi U's Beta Chapter

The SUNY Plattsburgh Beta Epsilon chapter of Phi Upsilon Omicron, the national honor society in home economics, inducted eight new members in a candle-light ceremony held recently. Initiates are selected on the basis of outstanding academic achievement, leadership ability, professional promise and a well-rounded participation in home economics. The new members are Deb Anderson, Wendie Carwise, April Dayton, Lea Ghezzi, Lori Lomax, Alissa Moulton, Michelle Scaringe and Nicola Staudinger.

The inductees were welcomed into the honor society by the group's advisor Dr. Marty Frost, President Amanda Stella; Vice-president Erin Petriello, Treasurer Frederick Jente and Secretary Julie Ehlenfield.

Committee Plans Forum on

The Middle States' Accreditation Review Work Committee on the Teaching and Learning Environment, chaired by Dr. Douglas Skopp, professor of history, will hold an open forum discussion at 4:15 p.m. on Tuesday, April 2 in Ballroom B. The topic of the forum, Skopp said, is the climate for teaching and learning at the college. Discussion will center on such themes as

SUNY Day Highlights ...

Teaching-Learning Climate

student-faculty interaction in and out of the classroom; the suitability of the residence hall environment for learning; the availability of adequate teaching and learning programs and resources; and the perception of barriers to free and open debate, discussion and learning as experienced by any group or individual on our campus. Skopp urged everyone with an interest in these or related themes to attend.

Skopp said, "I hope the forum will be a platform for free-ranging and open debate on the quality of our daily lives here. Whether as students, faculty, staff or administrators, we all have an essential responsibility to make sure that each and every one of us feels as comfortable as possible as we do our work. To be sure, there are some factors outside of our control—the budget is an obvious example—but we must strive to understand and achieve the potential we all have within those limits."

Committee members are studying a variety of perceptions and conditions which comprise the teaching and learning environment on the campus. The work committee is assembling information through surveys, interviews, questionnaires, and student essays, as well as reviewing materials which have been gathered routinely by various college offices over the years.

Yoos, Holfester Lead Forensic Team to 2nd Place in State Championships

Karen Yoos and Chris Holfester led the college's forensic team to a second place finish, behind St. John's University, in the New York State Forensic Championship Tournament held last weekend at Marist College. Holfester won the state championship in Rhetorical Criticism, while Yoos won the highly regarded Pentathlon Championship by finishing second in four events (Prose Interpretation, Poetry Interpretation, Informative Speaking and After Dinner Speaking) and fourth in Persuasive Speaking.

The Plattsburgh team placed 11 finalists into seven of the ten tournament events. Other Plattsburgh contestants who claimed finalist awards were: Susan Zwick who finished third in Poetry Interpretation and sixth in Persuasive Speaking; Allison Wise who was fifth in both Prose Interpretation and Informative Speaking; and David Marceau who finished sixth in Extemporaneous Speaking.

Team advisor Al Montanaro said, "During the past 25 years, only three schools — St. John's, Cornell, and Plattsburgh — have won the New York State Championship. Plattsburgh leads the three with 14 championships and has never finished worse than third in the state." Among the 16 participating schools were Cornell (3rd place), Hofstra University (4th place), NYU (5th place), Columbia, SUNY Binghamton, Ithaca College and Brooklyn College.

Concert Next Wednesday Highlights 15th Jazz Festival

The college's 15th Annual Jazz Festival, scheduled for April 1-5, will feature a series of concerts and lectures with three special guests, the college's own Jazz Ensemble, area high school ensembles and college music students.

Dr. Marshall Onofrio, assistant professor of music, is directing the week's activities.

The highlight of the week will be a concert on Wednesday, April 3 at 7 p.m. with the SUNY Plattsburgh Jazz Ensemble and guest artists Joe Lullof, saxophonist, and Phillip Strange, pianist. Tickets for the concert are $7 for general admission, $4 for faculty and staff and $1 for SA members.

Lullof, associate professor of saxophone at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, has performed with the Temptations, Doc Severinson, Rich Matteson, and the Jimmy Dorsey/Lee Castle Orchestra, among others. In addition to the saxophone, Lullof also plays the Yamaha WX-7 electronic wind instrument.

Strange teaches jazz at the Conservatoire Kobe in Japan and performs regularly with his own trio. He has also performed with Joe Henderson, Dave Holland, Peter Erskine, James Moody and others. Strange and Lullof have performed as a duo for several years, combining jazz standards, original compositions and classical repertoire to form stimulating presentations of contemporary music.

Martin Williams, director of special projects for the Smithsonian Institution, will teach college classes, offer two public lectures and serve as master of ceremonies for the Wednesday concert, thanks to support through the Distinguished Visiting Lecturer program. Williams, an expert in the field of jazz history and criticism, has authored six books on jazz, has twice won the ASCAP Deems Taylor's Award for Excellence in Music Criticism and has won a Grammy Award for his album notes to the Smithsonian Collection of Classic Jazz.

Details on the week's events are available through the Center for Art, Music and Theatre at 564-2180.

Phonothon 'Season' in Full Swing as Parents' Effort Ends, Alumni Calls Begin

The annual spring "phonothon" season is in full swing.

With the 1991 Senior Class Gift Project telephone campaign recently concluded, the larger, more ambiand continues for 20 nights of calling scheduled through April 30, has a goal of $90,000 in gifts or pledges.

Dan Milliman, associate director of development and alumni affairs, said that more than 80 students will take part in the alumni phonothon. This year's coordinator, he said, is Shari McCormick, a junior.

"Alumni are being asked to consider making a donation of $100, which can be honored in four installments, if they so desire," said Milliman. "We'll welcome restricted gifts, of course," he added, "but SUNY Plattsburgh alumni historically make unrestricted contributions to support the College Foundation's student aid program."

This spring's goal represents a projected 7.5 percent increase over 1990's pledge total of $83,710.

Meanwhile, the senior class campaign has been termed a success as gifts and pledges, to be paid over a three-year period, totaled $8,051. The seniors' gifts will be used to purchase books for Feinberg Library. Campaign organizers were seniors Sara Gaffney, Bill Sherman and Chris Kelley.

The sixth floor conference room in the Kehoe building is a beehive of activity during spring phonothon fund-raisers.

Canadian Poets to Read Monday

Canadian poets Diane Brandt and Anne Szumigalski will read from their works at a program scheduled for Monday (April 1) at 4:15 p.m. in the Angell Center Cardinal Lounge. The program is being sponsored by the college's Center for the Study of Canada and the Canadian Consulate in Boston.

Brant, from Manitoba, is the author of i asked my mother and Agnes in the Sky. Szumigalski, editor of NeWest Review and author of Women Reading in a Bath, A Game of Angels, Risks, and Instar, is from Saskatchewan.

ODK, Leadership Honorary Society, to Install 23 Students

Twenty-three students, with an aggregate grade point average of 3.48, will be inducted into the Plattsburgh Circle of Omicron Delta Kappa, the national leadership honor society, later this month. Membership in ODK is granted on the basis of academic excellence, service to the campus and community, and leadership in extra-curricular activities.

ARL Official Begins Mini-Residency

Sarah Pritchard, associate executive director of the Association of Research Libraries (ARL) in Washington, D.C., begins a mini-residency here tomorrow (March 28).

Pritchard, who served as editor of the 1983-84 Women's Annual and wrote the Conspectus in Women's Studies — the first interdisciplinary analysis of the Library of Congress classification to be completed — will participate in two programs on Thursday and will hold a workshop on Friday. Thursday's sessions are directed at library users while the Friday workshop is designed for librarians.

At 12:15 p.m. tomorrow, she will discuss "Research Strategies in Women's Studies" at a Women's Studies Forum in the Angell Center Cardinal Lounge, and at 4:15 p.m. she will address the impact of women's studies on library collections. The 9 to 11 a.m. workshop on Friday will focus on collection development issues related to scholarship on women.

In her current post, Pritchard is responsible for all ARL statistics, programs, general association communications and office and membership operations.

Survey Addresses Needs of Disabled

The State of New York/United University Professions Affirmative Action Committee is considering special program initiatives that address the work-related needs of bargaining unit members who have disabilities.

To obtain feedback, the committee has mailed surveys to UUP chapter presidents, 504 coordinators and personnel officers for distribution to unit members who have disabilities. Persons on the SUNY Plattsburgh campus who are disabled may obtain a copy of the survey by contacting either Dr. James Ashe, UUP chapter president (ext. 5135), Michelle Little, 504 coordinator (ext. 2810) or Janet Saunders, director of personnel and affirmative action (ext. 3062).

Completed questionnaires must be returned to the NYS/UUP Affirmative Action Committee by April 30, so prompt action is required.

Quantity Foods Spring Meals Begin

The Quantity Foods Production class has begun serving its spring semester meals. This semester, for the first time, two meals will be offered each week as a result of continued growth in the nutrition and hospitality programs, according to Michael Oliver, assistant professor in the Center for Human Resources.

Dinners will be offered on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, Oliver said, and the price will continue to be $8 per person. Each dinner will offer a choice of three entrees, including a vegetarian dish, which may include eggs and/or cheese, but no meat, poultry or fish. Oliver said that people should indicate a desire for the vegetarian entree when making reservations.

Several variations in the dining experience will be offered during the semester, including French service (which offers tableside soup and salad presentation and a flaming dessert), Russian service (which features elegant presentation from silver trays) and several buffet and banquet services.

In addition to the dinners, Oliver said, students will produce a Heart Healthy luncheon for area high school students, SUNY Plattsburgh students and faculty in conjunction with the Celebration of Teaching Day sponsored by the Center for Teacher Education.

The dates for the Quantity Foods dinners for the rest of the semester are: March 28, April 2, April 4, April 9, April 11, April 16, April 18, April 23, April 25, April 30, May 2, and May 7. Reservations are required and can be made by calling 564-2216 on Monday, Tuesday or Thursday between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. Menus for the various dinners are also available at that number. Meals are served in room 409 of Sibley Hall.

(Editor's Note: Following is a draft of a letter requesting state legislators to consider supporting the proposed $500 tuition increase for SUNY students and to approve $20 million in new funds that would lessen the impact of expenditure reductions on the University. Whether faculty or staff, student, alumna/alumnus, parent of a SUNY student or friend of this college or the University, we urge you to act immediately to send this letter or your own version, directed to your individual concerns, to the Senators or Members of the Assembly listed on the reverse side of this sheet. The seriousness of the situation cannot be overstated. Please send copies of your letters to the Office of the President, 109 Hawkins Hall, SUNY Plattsburgh, Plattsburgh, NY 12901. Your help is vital and will be genuinely appreciated.)

Dear

This week could prove to be the most important in the recent history of the State University of New York and SUNY Plattsburgh. During these few days, Gov. Cuomo and legislative leaders will debate the 1991-92 Executive Budget and its impact on SUNY.

We have been informed by SUNY Central that the $60 million in revenue from the proposed $500 tuition increase, scheduled to be implemented this fall, may be in jeopardy. In addition, a partial restoration of $20 million from new funds to lessen the depth of the expenditure cuts also faces serious opposition.

Even with its share of the $80 million, SUNY Plattsburgh will still face a reduced allocation of $1.1 million, a loss of 25-30 positions and access will be denied to more than 165 young people.

With the approval of the $60 million in revenue from tuition, but without approval of the $20 million in new funds, the result for SUNY Plattsburgh is $1.7 million in lost revenue; a loss of 40 positions and an enrollment reduction of 365 new students. This would be extremely unfortunate, and such action could seriously diminish the quality of our institution.

We need your assistance to wire or telephone our legislative leaders and impress on them the following:

- Assure the full $60 million in revenue from an additional tuition increase of $500 (and I emphasize full, since each $100 of the increase represents $12 million in revenue to SUNY);
- Provide the additional $20 million in revenue for partial restoration of funds to lessen the pain of the expenditure cuts.

We appreciated your successful efforts in our behalf last December to approve a tuition increase and to adopt the furlough plan.

Now we ask you for another favor in this real hour of SUNY Plattsburgh's need. Thank you for considering this request.

Sincerely,

(Please turn page for list of addressees)

IMMEDIATE ACTION NEEDED

This week could prove to be the most important in the history of the State University of New York and SUNY Plattsburgh. During the next few days, Gov. Cuomo and legislative leaders will debate the 1991-92 Executive Budget and its impact on SUNY.

Please telephone, send a mailgram or letter today to those legislators listed below. Also contact your State Senator and Assemblyman (address and telephone number listed at the end of each column).

Emphasize in your communications the following:

.Assure the full $60 million in revenue for SUNY from an additional tuition increase of $500 (and we emphasize full, since each $100 of the increase represents $12 million in revenue to SUNY);

.Provide an additional $20 million in revenue for a partial restoration of funds to lessen the pain of expenditure cuts.

Showcase Features Record 121 Presentations

Showcase '91, the third annual Showcase presentation, will offer a record high 121 presentations by faculty, staff and students during the day-long celebration on Wednesday, April 10. Co-chairs Anna Nardelli and Dr. Edward Miller expressed their pleasure at the wide variety and outstanding nature of the presentations to be offered.

Established two years ago, Showcase demonstrates the scholarly and creative pursuits of faculty, staff and students, facilitating the exchange and development of ideas. As during past Showcases, classes will be suspended for the day so that students may take advantage of the smorgasbord of presentations.

The day's activities begin at 8 a.m. While most activities will conclude by 4:30 p.m., there will be an open rehearsal of Ibsen's An Enemy of the People at 7 p.m. in Myers Theatre.

Among the various presentations scheduled for the day are:

- Theater performances and lectures;
- Art presentations, including demonstrations of computer graphics, bronze casting, the Raku process and printmaking, as well as the 1991 juried undergraduate art exhibition;
- Music performances by several students;
- Nine scientific presentations sponsored by Sigma Xi;
- Seven presentations sponsored by the Redcay Scholarship Symposium;
- Five presentations sponsored by the Behavioral Sciences and Psychology Symposium;
- Three discussions presented in a Symposium on Assessment;
- Seven sessions sponsored by the Anthropology Symposium;
- A philosophy colloquium presenting six sessions;
- Four presentations on counseling activities;

17 Student Groups Spearhead Novel Adopt-a-Block Program

Plattsburgh's city streets will be neater and cleaner in the future thanks to seventeen student organizations who have agreed to be part of a new Adopt-a-Block program. The innovative program resulted from a Downtown Task Force which was commissioned by the Common Council "to review the problem areas of the central city of Plattsburgh" and to "draft a plan for the elimination of such identified problems."

Each participating organization signed a contract with the City of Plattsburgh during a ceremony held last Saturday at City Hall, agreeing to be responsible for certain blocks of the city. Students will "maintain them free from litter, vandalism, excess noise and such other annoyances as is appropriate to such volunteer efforts."

The students are also expected to get acquainted with the permanent residents and property owners within their areas. The contracts were also signed by SUNY Plattsburgh President Charles Warren, Student Association President Jacqueline Lichte, and Plattsburgh Mayor Clyde Rabideau and are effective through Commencement '92.

Student groups who agreed to adopt-a-block include Alpha Phi Gamma, Psi Epsilon Chi, Alpha Sigma Phi, Pi Alpha Nu, Circle K, Phi Sigma, Alpha Kappa Phi, Theta Kappa Beta, Alpha Chi Rho, the Student Association, Sigma Pi, Tau Kappa Epsilon, Nu Theta Gamma, Alpha Delta Theta, Alpha Epsilon Phi, Alpha Phi Omega, and deFredenburgh Hall.

Rivas, '69 Grad, Begins Visit as Distinguished Alumna

Dr. Jayne D. Rivas, medical director of the Skilled Nursing Facility at the New York Foundling Hospital/Center for Pediatric Medical & Rehabilitative Care in

Rivas

New York City, will begin a three-day residency on campus on Sunday (April 7) as a participant in the SUNY Plattsburgh Distinguished Visiting Alumni Program.

Rivas, who also is section chief in pediatric allergy and immunology at St. Vincent's Hospital and Medical Center in New York, is the first of three alumni scheduled to visit the college during April to lecture and interact informally with students and faculty in specific disciplines. A 1969 graduate of SUNY Plattsburgh, Rivas will serve as resource person for students interested in careers in the health professions and those in related fields, such as chemistry and biology. Her faculty host will be Dr. Stuart J. Baum, professor of chemistry and SUNY Distinguished Teaching Professor.

Besides participating in classes and meeting with students in dining and residence halls, Rivas will give a public lecture on Monday at 7 p.m. in the Angell Center Cardinal Lounge. Her topic will be "Does America Care for Its Children: Child Health Care Issues of the '90s."

Rivas was an honor student in chemistry while a Plattsburgh undergraduate, and she served also as editor of the student newspaper, Cardinal Points. She received the M.D. from the SUNY Downstate Medical Center in 1973, then spent the next six years at St. Vincent's Hospital in New York in roles successively as rotating intern, resident in pediatrics, chief resident in pediatrics, fellow in pediatric cardiopulmonary disease, and resident in allergy and immunology.

In 1990 Rivas received certification as an instructor for the identification and reporting of child abuse and maltreatment, and she was named a fellow of the American Academy of Cerebral Palsy and Developmental Medicine.

The Distinguished Visiting Alumni Program was initiated during the 1989-90 academic year as a SUNY Plattsburgh Centennial Celebration project. Following Rivas later this month will be 1960 graduate Robert J. Smalacombe, president and founder of Executive Intervention, Inc., a crisis management consulting firm in Pennington, N.J., and Anita M. Larsen, a 1982 graduate who is manager of media relations for Texaco, Inc., in White Plains.

Juried Student Exhibit Shows Variety

A wide variety of photographs, paintings, drawings, and sculpture is expected to be on display for the Annual Juried Undergraduate Art Exhibition, which was scheduled to open in the Myers Fine Arts Lobby Gallery yesterday (April 2).

Edward Brohel, director of the SUNY Plattsburgh Art Museum, said that entrants in the show were juried by the Senior Exhibition class, with assistance from himself and one professor of art history. The Senior Exhibition class also installed the show.

The exhibition will run through April 20 and is free and open to the public.

Showcase Spotlights Academic Diversity (Continued from page 1)

- A marketing symposium offering four presentations;
- A business symposium offering three sessions;
- A hearing and speech science seminar on instrumentation;
- Four sessions on various topics in nursing;
- Two presentations offering a perspective on novels;
- Three discussions in mathematics;
- An economics symposium offering two sessions;
- A sexual harassment workshop;
- Two presentations on visual presentations of gender;
- A demonstration of an automated library system;
- Some video production presentations by PSTV;
- Selected speeches and readings by the college's forensic team;
- Three discussions and demonstrations in computing; and
- Two presentations on the Learning Center.

Additionally, a poster session featuring numerous presentations will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in the Angell Center Ballrooms. Included in that session will also be a mousetrap powered car race.

Finally, the annual Celebration of Teaching will be run in conjunction with Showcase '91. That event brings students from area high schools to campus for the day to experience various aspects of teaching. It is supported through a grant from the Dodge Foundation.

The complete program has been mailed to faculty and staff and will appear in this week's issue of Cardinal Points. It will also be available at the Angell Center Desk and will be distributed to on-campus students in their mailboxes. Information tables will be set up in Yokum, Hudson, Ward and Sibley Halls as well as in the Angell College Center on the day of the event.

Funding for Showcase '91 is provided by Campus Auxiliary Services and the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs

Gore Gets Leave for U.S./AID Appointment to El Salvador

Dr. Peter Gore, professor in the Center for Earth and Environmental Science, has accepted an appointment from the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID) in El Salvador to monitor and suggest possible remedies for that nation's most pressing environmental and natural resource problems.

Gore, who has been working with the AID mission in El Salvador for nearly a decade, and who has made more than a dozen trips there to consult on short-term projects in rural development and agriculture, will take a leave of absence from the college that may extend through the spring semester of next year. He leaves for the AID mission in San Salvador on Monday (April 8).

"Fundamentally, it will be my responsibility to stimulate the government in El Salvador to take more interest in environmental issues," said Gore. "The country has been preoccupied with war; consequently, no attempts have been made to resolve widespread, potentially catastrophic environmental dilemmas."

For example, Gore said, only four percent of El Salvador's tropical rain forest remain. Large portions of mangrove forests on the nation's coastline have been cut down, adversely affecting fishing breeding grounds — especially for shrimp, a major export.

"Sewage treatment doesn't exist in El Salvador," Gore continued. "Pesticides are being misused, and the loss of soil because of widespread erosion is causing heavy damage to agriculture."

Gore was invited to apply for the post when it was created by the AID mission. The job description calls for him to assume complete responsibility for "all environmental (and) natural resource aspects of the mission portfolio" and to serve as AID liaison with the Regional Office of Central American Programs and with the government of El Salvador and private Salvadoran foundations.

Also, he will serve as principal design officer and projects manager for a natural resources management project, apprise the environmental impact of mission project activities, and coordinate assistance to the El Salvadoran government and private organizations involved in developing and implementing environmental and natural resource practices and programs nationally.

Gore has been a member of the SUNY Plattsburgh faculty since 1973. Promoted to full professor in 1983, he has been involved in professional research and evaluation projects for the U.S. State Department in Central and South America for a number of years. His many grants include two for a pesticide labeling project in Latin America and one from the Rotary International Foundation for a small farmer development project in Ecuador.

Kudos to...Cecile Hart

for saving a fellow Marriott employee's life with a Heimlich maneuver and winning a President's Award as a result. On December 3, Hart and co-worker Kathleen Williams were on a break in Clinton Dining Hall. Hart noticed Williams gasping for breath and turning blue. She rushed around the table, grabbed Williams, stood her up, and performed the Heimlich maneuver twice, before the object was dislodged. Marriott Regional Vice President Richard Zuconni is seen in the photograph presenting the President's Award to Hart during a recent employee meeting. Hart has worked for Marriott since 1980, first in Clinton Dining Hall in several capacities, and, since January, 1991, as a cashier in the Angell College Center Snack Bar.

Council Meeting Set for April 11

The next regular meeting of the SUNY Plattsburgh College Council will be held at 3:30 p.m. on Thursday, April 11 in the Honors Center Seminar Room (Hawkins Hall 121).

Agenda items will include the parking fee proposal for 1991-92 and a presentation on the Honors Program and Distinguished Visiting Professor Program.

Nursing Transfer Agreements Signed with Two Colleges

SUNY Plattsburgh is paving the way for greater career mobility for registered nurses in northeastern New York State by developing transfer agreements with community colleges in the region.

The college recently signed agreements with Adirondack Community College in Glens Falls and North Country Community College in Saranac Lake.

The agreements provide better advisement and greater communication between faculty and students at the two- and four-year institutions, and they are designed to promote smoother transfer of nursing graduates from Adirondack and North Country to SUNY Plattsburgh. Nursing students will be able to take some of their third-year courses at their community college or at Plattsburgh.

"Myriad changes in the service sector have brought increased demand and need for well-educated nurses," commented Dr. Virginia Barker, dean of professional studies at Plattsburgh and a nursing educator for many years. "Although basic educational preparation for nursing can be obtained through various methods, the minimum qualification for many positions in hospitals and public health agencies requires a baccalaureate degree.

"Further, practicing nurses who received their basic education in a community college or hospital diploma program need to meet requirements for a bachelor's degree in order to pursue graduate study. This is especially applicable in seeking a nursing career as a clinical specialist, educator, consultant or researcher."

Barker and Dr. Jeanette Coleman, director of registered nurse recruitment and advisement at SUNY Plattsburgh, signed the agreement for their institution. Their counterparts at Adirondack were President Roger C. Andersen and Annette Minnick, director of nursing, and at North Country they were President David W. Petty and Barbara Rexilius, director of nursing.

RA Selection Process Complete; 49 Become First-time Staff

The Office of Campus Life has announced completion of the resident assistant selection process for 1991-92. Ninety-seven students will hold RA posts next academic year — 48 as veteran staff and 49 as newcomers. Five have been appointed to a third year as resident assistant. They are Susan Higgins, Deirdre Markle, George McMurtry, Katrina Washburn and Susan Zwick. Returning for a second year are:

Deborah Anderson, Scott Baier, Amy Bobar, Julia Bovee, Tom Brothers, Neal Calcote, Andy Chandler, John Collins, Ruth Comley, Samantha Corhouse, Michelle Dee, Ben Derouchie, Larry Ellis, Eileen Fischer, Tracy Fossetta, Shawn Hunziker, David Kocsis, Dawn Kortright, James Krogh, Michelle Lockhart, Jose Martinez, and Ken McDonnell, Jennifer Mella, Amy Mellen, Cynthia Menz, Angela Morin, Paul Niezabytowski, Anne O'Donnell, Roberta Parchetta, Todd Patterson, Jane Rapa, Michele Runnalls, Kelly Ryan, Robert Schofield, Kristen Scott, Edward Smith, Tracy Tarullo, Curtis Thompson, Steve Travis, Chad Wadsworth, Andrea Wawruzusin, and Stephanie Zuaro.

The new staff includes 43 students whose appointments begin in August and six who begin next January. This group includes 11 current freshmen, 25 sophomores, 12 juniors and one graduate student who collectively represent 16 different academic majors, with psychology heading the list with nine. They are:

David Alexander, Patrick Armet, Christine Baker, Darren Barkman, Richard Batchelder, Rosemary Cespedes, Paul Child, Sara Cittadino, Holly Cwirka, Monica Elliott, Christopher Escudero, Frank Eskesen, Saul Ferrer, Karen Flemming, Carrie Freer, Keith Garry, Kim Hall, Delbert Hart, Heather Hopkinson, and Christopher Impomeni, Amanda Jankowski, Jennifer

Johnson, Tracy Johnson, Joseph Kelley, Colleen Kott, George LaPoint, Robert Lucchesi, Michael Lynch, Michael Markham, Jeff Meyers, Lynn Miller, Brendan Monahan, James Moore, Kelly Mowers, Karen Olcott, Craig Pederson, Sharon Ramos, Amy Raynor, Dan Reardon, Jill Shea, Colleen Sullivan, Johathan Talman, Michael Tokarz, Vince Tricuzzi, John Trost, John Vescio, Jennifer Whispell, and Suzette Whitfield.

The 27 Soviet managers from the timber industry are into their second week of the executive training program on campus coordinated by the Institute for International Business Education, Research and Training and the Center for the Study of Joint Ventures. They are seen here in a seminar being conducted by Dr. John O'Hara, professor of management and marketing. The Soviet visitors have participated in numerous workshops and seminars on campus, met with representatives of the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation, toured International Paper Company in Ticonderoga, visited an independent sawmill, toured Ward Lumber Company, visited the Olympic facilities in Lake Placid, met with representatives of the Adirondack Park Agency, talked with executives of forest products companies, visited the Adirondack Park Visitor Interpretive Center, and made a field trip to Miner Center. The program concludes next Monday.

CAS Approves $38 Per Semester Increase in Board Plan

On the heels of a residence hall room rent increase announced a week ago comes word that board costs will also rise slightly.

The College Auxiliary Services (CAS) Executive Committee has approved an increase in board costs of $38 per semester, to be effective this fall, in both the 19-meal and 14-meal plans.

For the former, board will increase from $758 to $796 per semester for students on the 19-meal plan, and it will go from $720 to $758 per semester for those on the 14-meal plan.

According to Stan Supinski, executive director of CAS, the rate hikes are consistent with those that will take effect this year at other SUNY institutions, but they remain slightly below the average for similar meal plans offered throughout the University.

Supinski said mounting costs overall for food, combined with boosts in minimum wage (from $3.85 to $4.25 per hour) and utility rates (up 33 percent), account for the meal plan increase. He said the original request was for a $50 per semester increase, but that the CAS

Executive Committee voted to absorb $12 of that amount.

The Executive Committee membership includes 50 percent student representation.

Videos, Panel Discussion Highlight Teleconference on the Holocaust

A Rockland Community College "interactive SUNYSAT" teleconference on "Lessons of the Holocaust: The Phenomenon of Scapegoating" will be presented on this campus on Monday (April 8) from 1 to 2:30 p.m. in Ballroom B of the Angell College Center.

The program, open to all, will feature testimony from death camp survivors, remembrances of witnesses, historical film clips and a panel discussion led by experts on the broad topic of the Holocaust. Participants and viewers will have the opportunity to comment and question the panelists via telephone.

"We're hoping for a large turnout for this event, especially among students," commented Dr. Ingrid Lafleur, associate vice president for academic affairs. "Today, when the abuse of power and the atrocities which typified the era of the Holocaust are being reenacted on the evening news, it is crucial that we educate students to analyze and reject such behavior."

The program will consist of video images and vignettes that will be integrated with the panel discussion. The panel will be moderated by Dr. Ann Fey, professor of English at Rockland. Its members include Dr. David Beisel, professor of history at Rockland, Dr. Mildred Pollner, professor of sociology at Hunter College, and Georgine Hyde, president of the East Ramapo school system Board of Education and a survivor of the Holocaust.

Hennings Cited for Recycling Work

Two members of the SUNY Plattsburgh faculty have been honored by the Vermont General Assembly for their work as volunteer co-coordinators of the Grand Isle/South Hero Recycling Center.

The two — Eric and Sylvia Debevec Henning — were cited in a resolution offered by Representative Jane Potvin of South Hero and passed by Vermont's Senate and House of Representatives. It states that the Hennings "... devoted countless hours, including many weekends, to making the (Recycling) Center the overwhelming success that it is."

Last year the Center's program received a national achievement award in Renew America's "Search for Success."

Eric Henning, who established the recycling center in 1988, is a lecturer in philosophy at the college. Sylvia Debevec Henning is associate professor of French and chairperson of the Department of Foreign Languages and Literature.

Hoffman Begins One-Year Term as ODK Student Director

Deborah Hoffman, a senior psychology major, has begun a one-year term as student director of Province I of Omicron Delta Kappa (ODK), the national leadership honorary society.

Hoffmann

Hoffman was elected to the post by delegates who attended the recent ODK Province I conference at Wagner College. The province consists of society circles on 23 college and university campuses in New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, eastern Pennsylvania, and the District of Columbia.

Hoffman is the second SUNY Plattsburgh student in as many years to serve as student director. Christopher Sperl, a graduate student in clinical psychology here, held that office from March of 1990 until March of this year.

Seven other members of the Plattsburgh Circle of ODK attended the Province I conference. They were Cheryl Hogle, associate director of Campus Life, who is faculty director of Province I, and students Noell Carey, Jeff Foote, Dawn Irwin, Michael Jette, Jane Rapa and Julie Schaller.

Schaller co-presented a workshop on fund raising at the conference.

Two Student Groups Cited for County Recycling Efforts

Two student organizations have been commended by the Clinton County Legislature for their efforts in launching newspaper recycling programs for county residents.

Representatives of SUNY Plattsburgh student organizations that have helped divert about 70 tons of newspapers from the Clinton County landfill during the past six months accepted accolades recently from the County Legislature, which presented them with certificates signifying the appreciation of county residents for their services and concern for the environment. L-R: Donald L. Garratt, executive assistant to the president at the college and county legislator from Area 10, Erik Buecken, president of SUNY Plattsburgh Environmental Action Committee, Elizabeth Feldman, president of Students Toward a Recycled Tomorrow and a spring semester intern in the county recycling department, and Melvin "Bob" Bruno, chairperson of the Clinton County Legislature. Garratt and Bruno received degrees from the college in 1957 and 1961, respectively.

By unanimous vote, the Legislature in late February passed back-to-back resolutions citing a group known as "Students Towards a Recycled Tomorrow" (START) and the campus-based Environmental Action Committee (EAC). Combined, the organizations have been responsible for recycling nearly 70 tons of newspapers since last fall.

The resolutions call attention to the 1989 mandate to develop a county-wide recycling program, but note that it is not yet operational. They credit START and EAC with conducting bi-weekly drives on Saturdays throughout the fall and winter months that have "provided a needed service" to county residents.

According to the resolution on START, Clinton County "is very fortunate to have young men and women willing to donate freely of their time and energy to help safeguard the environment." Through the EAC, that organization's resolution states, "approximately 52 tons of newspaper have been diverted from the county's landfill system, thus saving a significant amount of valuable landfill space."

The resolution goes on to thank the EAC for playing a "crucial role in raising public awareness and concern for recycling."

Chancellor Johnstone Schedules Campus Visit Next Week

State University Chancellor D. Bruce Johnstone will make a visit to the college and the community next week under a University Central Administration "external relations program" that is statewide in scope.

Johnstone

Johnstone will be on campus part of both Thursday and Friday (April 18-19) as guest of SUNY Plattsburgh and Clinton and North Country community colleges. His itinerary includes speaking engagements at programs for donors and business leaders and at meetings with state legislators from the region and with area news media. All events will be held on the Plattsburgh campus.

The chancellor's first appearance will be at 7 p.m. on Thursday as guest speaker at a dinner recognizing leading contributors to the Plattsburgh College Foundation. About 150 members of the Foundation's Edward E. Redcay Society and the E. Glenn Giltz Society, and persons who have declared their intent to make planned gifts, are expected to attend the event, scheduled to be held in the Angell Center Centennial Room.

The Redcay Society, named for the late professor emeritus of psychology at the college who was the all-time leading benefactor of the Foundation at the time of his death in October of 1989, honors donors whose annual gifts total $2,500 or more. Membership in the Giltz Society, which honors the memory of the immediate past president of the Foundation and business and civic leader, requires a gift of at least $1,000 annually.

On Friday at 8 a.m., Johnstone will address an estimated 150 business leaders from the areas served by the three colleges at a breakfast meeting in the Angell Center Centennial Room. Senator Ronald B. Stafford and Assemblyman Chris Ortloff of Plattsburgh and Assemblymen Anthony Casale and James King from Herkimer and Ticonderoga, respectively, will be in-

1,000-plus Expected at Next Week's Open House Event

The annual Spring Open House for prospective students and their parents is scheduled for Saturday, April 20 and well over 1,000 visitors are expected to participate in the day's activities. The day begins with a welcoming session in Memorial Hall Gymnasium at 9:30 a.m. Students are then taken to the department of their choice to meet and talk with faculty members and currently enrolled students in the various majors. After those meetings, student guides conduct walking tours of the campus.

Student Association officers will be available during the middle of the day to talk about extracurricular activities and student government on the SUNY Plattsburgh campus.

Four workshops will each be offered twice during the afternoon. Director of Admissions Richard Higgins and Director of Campus Life William Laundry will discuss housing assignments, course registration, new student orientation, health insurance, etc. in a session on "What to Expect From Now Until Opening Day."

Selected students will talk about residence hall living, the campus food service, extracurricular activities and

Levitin Receives $3,000 Grant from State Arts Council

Dr. Alexis Levitin, professor of English, has received a $3,000 translation grant from the New York State Council on the Arts. With the grant, Levitin will organize and translate a large, representative volume of poetry and prose poems by Eugenio de Andrade, one of the best known poets in Portugal.

Levitin

Levitin has been translating de Andrade's work for more than a dozen years and has placed his work in more than 50 literary magazines. Levitin has also published three volumes of his poetry and prose poems and has completed work on two others.

Levitin said, "Since I have already translated much of Eugenio de Andrade's poetry from the last ten years, the bulk of my work will involve translating volumes published between 1950 and 1976. The poet himself will collaborate on this project by indicating which poems he considers most typical for each period and each work. As in the past, I will continue to discuss translations and translation problems with the poet."

De Andrade received the Grande Premio da Poesia from the Portuguese Writers Association in 1989, and, more recently, Mario Soares, president of Portugal, conferred upon him the prestigious "Premio D. Dinis."

Two years ago, the poet and Levitin made an extensive reading tour of the United States and Canada, the first such tour ever by a Portuguese poet.

Jerry Uelsmann, Photographer ...

An untitled photograph by Jerry Uelsmann, named "one of the world's top ten photographers" by Photographic Magazine. Uelsmann, graduate-research professor at the University of Florida, Gainesville, will be the final guest lecturer in the SUNY Plattsburgh Art Museum's Visual Artist Series for 1990-91 on Thursday (Apr. 11) at 8 p.m. in the Angell Center Cardinal Lounge.

vited to meet with the chancellor and with campus presidents Charles Warren (Plattsburgh), Jay Fennell (Clinton) and David Petty (North Country) at 10 a.m.

Johnstone will conclude his visit with a briefing and interview session for North Country news media representatives at lunch at the president's home.

the social life on campus in a panel titled "Life on the Plattsburgh Campus."

Michael Walsh, associate director of admissions, and Dr. Suzann Buckley, associate dean of arts and science, will conduct a session to answer questions for prospective transfer students. Financial Aid staff members will conduct a "General Session on College Costs and Payments," providing information on scholarships, loans, work study, the job locator service and the tuition installment plan.

Also during the day, students may pay their admissions deposit and their housing deposit, visit the Admissions Office and the Financial Aid Office for general information, and stop in at the College Store.

in the Cardinal Lounge and are free and open to the public.

A Quebec Video Festival will be held in the Angell Center Conference Room from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Club Canada will operate a tourist information booth in the Angell Center Lobby from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The grand finale will be a performance by the renowned chamber orchestra I Musici de Montreal at 8 p.m. in the E. Glenn Giltz Auditorium. The 15-member orchestra, under artistic director and conductor Yuli Turovsky, has been called "the most listened to Canadian Chamber Orchestra in the World." Last year, the group performed for Soviet President Gorbachev in Ottawa and later for Michel Rocard, France's Prime Minister.

Concert tickets are on sale at the Hartman Theatre Box Office at $10 for the general public, $5 for SUNY Plattsburgh faculty and staff, and $1 for students. Tickets will also be sold at the door.

The day's activities are sponsored by the Center for the Study of Canada. Various events are co-sponsored by the Center for Human Resources, Women's Studies, and the Campus Arts Council.

Link Book Chronicles Bethune's 'Adirondack Experience'

The T.B.'s Progress: Norman Bethune as Artist, a book by Dr. Eugene P. Link, professor emeritus of history, that chronicles the Canadian hero's artistic accomplishments during his brief stay in the Adirondacks while recuperating from a bout with tuberculosis, has been published by the college's Center for the Study of Canada.

Professor Emeritus Link

"Publication of The T.B.'s Progress culminates a truly collaborative project," commented Dr. Richard Beach, director of the Center. "The effort began naturally with Gene Link and his long-standing interest in the life and career of Bethune, but several individuals contributed to its editorial and design quality and the Plattsburgh College Foundation joined our Center in providing essential support."

As described in Beach's introduction to the book, Bethune was at various times and in different areas of the world — most notably, China and Spain besides North America — a political activist, newspaper reporter, freedom fighter, inventor, teacher and scholar, and surgeon and general practitioner. Among the least known and researched phases of his life, however, was the time Bethune spent at the Trudeau Sanatorium at Saranac Lake.

"While researching Bethune's life and times in the United States," continued Beach, "Dr. Link discovered original plates of drawings executed by Bethune while he was at the Trudeau facility. Professor Link painstakingly pursued this heretofore unknown contribution which the creative Bethune has left to us all. He solicited comments and reactions to his discovery from a variety of sources which, along with the drawings themselves, constitute the substance of the book.

"It is especially appropriate that a book which reveals the artistic and political legacy of Dr. Norman Bethune during his sojourn in the United States be published by a college that houses one of the most comprehensive undergraduate Canadian studies programs in this country."

Beach said preliminary indications signify a strong interest in the book by members of the academic community. He expressed confidence that it represents an important contribution to Canadiana and will be of value to scholars and Bethune aficionados on both sides of the border — as well as to Sinologists ... "long admirers of Dr. Bethune."

According to Beach, the "tenacity, creativity, editorial work and persistence" of Dr. Bruce Butterfield, professor of English, and Sherwood Keyser, director of publications, were pivotal to the success of the project.

Transfer Video Wins National Award in Broadcasting Society Competition

A video that focuses on common problems encountered by transfer students, produced by the college in a joint project with Clinton Community College, has placed first in the "News and Public Affairs Program" category in 1991 competition sponsored by the National Broadcasting Society.

The society's membership consists predominantly of colleges and universities having communication departments, but it also includes professional organizations.

The 12-minute video was produced by Peter Ensel, instructor in communication, and Doree Candussi, a former assistant professor in communication. Titled "The Transfer Experience, Moving On and Moving Out," it is currently being used by each of the 10 two-year colleges in SUNY and CUNY that are participants in the college's federally funded Transfer Network project.

According to Christina Lesyk, project administrative officer, the video has received highly positive responses from potential transfer students at all campuses that are using it. Besides for purposes of transfer advisement, it is being shown in classes and at college admissions fairs.

Other colleges and universities are asking for the video, Lesyk said, and the college is complying, asking only for payment to cover costs. The video, she said, is not SUNY-specific in approach.

Resolution on Status of Programs Passed Unanimously by Senate

The regular meeting of the Faculty Senate was held on Tuesday, April 2. President Charles Warren gave a report on the budget situation, which remains unsettled as the NYS Legislature has not yet passed a budget. Warren reiterated earlier comments that budget cuts may range from 3 to 6 percent, resulting in the loss of from 20 to 40 positions.

A resolution "that (academic) programs which are placed on hold or deactivated on a temporary basis be done so for a specified period of time, and that the administration annually report to the Senate on the status and future prospects of programs on hold" was passed unanimously.

The Standing Committee on Curricula and Programs recommended several revisions in the elementary education program, the secondary education/Spanish program and the secondary education/French program. The revisions were passed.

Feinberg Library's Annual Book Sale Set for Saturday

SUNY Plattsburgh's Feinberg Library will hold its "Tenth Fabulous Feinberg Book Sale" on Saturday, April 13 from noon to 5 p.m. in the corridor between the building's Claude Clark Learning Center and its special collections area.

According to library staff, this year's sale will be "the biggest and best ever" thanks to receipt of a record number of donations from patrons and friends. The selection is particularly strong in the areas of literary classics and contemporary fiction, poetry, drama, history, religion, philosophy, business and economics, psychology, and sociology.

A sizeable number of children's books and a broad selection of popular magazines also will be available, and the sale will feature a special section of fine bindings and rare books on a variety of subjects, including literature and local and U.S. history. As an incentive, sale organizers will hold a drawing for a copy of Webster's New Universal Unabridged Dictionary — an $80 value.

All sale items have been received as gifts from donors, and all are first evaluated for possible addition to the library's collections. Those that either duplicate current holdings or are inappropriate to the scope of the library's collections are added to the sale. Proceeds are used to purchase exceptional, new materials that the library would be unable to afford otherwise.

Revenue from previous sales have made it possible for Feinberg Library to acquire a number of expensive reference sets, to complete its holdings for several runs of periodicals and to purchase documentary films and videocassettes for classroom use.

Ibsen's 'An Enemy of the People' to Open Wednesday in Hartman

The SUNY Plattsburgh theatre department's presentation of Arthur Miller's adaptation of Henrik Ibsen's play An Enemy of the People will begin an eight-performance engagement in Hartman Theatre next Wednesday (April 17).

While Ibsen wrote Enemy — a play of passion and conflict...of truth versus deception — in 1883, Miller adapted it first to speak to the evils of the McCarthy era in the 1950s. His 1989 production for public television involved a locale switch from Norway to Maine. The version to be performed at Plattsburgh has been staged by Dr. Philip Reines, associate professor, to focus on the Adirondacks of the present day and a theme of environmental pollution and political corruption.

The play will be presented at 8 p.m. in Hartman from Wednesday through Saturday of next week and from Wednesday through Saturday of the following week. Admission will be $5 for the general public, $4 for faculty and staff at the college and $1 for SUNY Plattsburgh students, and tickets are on sale now at the Hartman Theatre box office (564-2283).

Chamber Concert Next Tuesday Features Music Composed by Onofrio

A chamber music concert, featuring music composed by Dr. Marshall Onofrio, assistant professor of music, and two other area composers, will be held at 8 p.m. on April 16 in the Giltz Auditorium. The other two featured composers are David Heinick of Potsdam College and James Grant of Middlebury College.

Onofrio has composed two new works for the concert. "A Columbus" celebrates the upcoming quinquenary of the famous October landing, with texts taken from various sources. Robert Hall, assistant professor of music, will narrate the work. "Four Moods" for violin, clarinet, alto saxophone and cello, will also be performed.

Music faculty members Kenneth Ayoob, Kathryn Stuart and Dr. Yenoin Guibbory will be among the featured musicians.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Interacting with Students ...

Distinguished Visiting Alumna Dr. Jayne Rivas '69 (second from right) meets with students who are members of clubs for undergraduates in programs in chemistry, biology and pre-medicine. Looking on (r) is her faculty host, Chemistry Professor Stuart Baum. Rivas, medical director in the Skilled Nursing Facility at the New York Foundling Hospital/Center for Pediatric Medical & Rehabilitative Care, Inc. in New York City, was on campus from Sunday through Tuesday of this week where she also attended class meetings and met with honors students, gave a public lecture and talked informally with students in residence and dining halls about their academic and career interests. She was the first of three prominent SUNY Plattsburgh graduates who will take part in the Distinguished Visiting Alumni Program before the end of April.

College Wins First SUNY Award for EEO/AA Excellence

SUNY Plattsburgh is one of four SUNY colleges to win the first University Faculty Senate Award for Excellence in Equal Employment Opportunity/Affirmative Action. The award will be presented officially on April 26 by SUNY Chancellor D. Bruce Johnstone.

The SUNY Colleges at Fredonia and Old Westbury and Mohawk Valley Community College will also be honored for their efforts in affirmative action as will five individuals.

Dr. Mark Cohen, who chairs the campus-wide President's Advisory Commission on the Status of Women, wrote the nomination materials for the college. He wrote, "During the last five years...the SUNY campus at Plattsburgh has undertaken a number of successful initiatives aimed at increasing the representation of women and ethnic minorities at all ranks and in all portions of the university community. It has also worked successfully to improve the campus climate for those individuals. The initiatives have involved the active participation of members of the campus at all levels...These new initiatives—and the fact that the activities pervade the whole campus and involve a large proportion of the campus population rather than being relegated to a single office—make Plattsburgh a strong candidate for the Faculty Senate award."

Cohen cited the college's efforts to increase the number of minority and women faculty members and students; the inclusion of materials on women and minorities in the curriculum; and efforts to increase multicultural sensitivity on campus, including Multicultural Awareness Day and Black History Month. He also noted the wide range of support services to keep students at risk in school, such as SSP, EOP, the Clark Learning Center, the Phoenix Program and the STAR Program.

The nomination materials also cited such efforts as the day care center and an increased focus on personal safety as projects that make the campus atmosphere a

Smallacombe Next to Visit in Distinguished Alumni Program

Robert J. Smallacombe '60, president and founder of Executive Intervention, Inc. of Pennington, NJ, will be on campus as a Distinguished Visiting Alumnus April 21-23. During his three-day visit, Smallacombe will meet informally with several groups of students and faculty, lecture in at least three business and management courses, and conduct an honors seminar. He will also attend a dorm council meeting on Monday evening. Dr. Prem Gandhi will serve as his official campus host.

Smallacombe founded his current company in 1986 after a career that has involved the rejuvenation of several companies in serious trouble. Executive Intervention provides assistance to companies in crisis. Generally called in by banks, investors or corporate management, the company assesses the situation, then provides hands-on assistance when and where needed on a temporary basis.

After receiving his bachelor's degree in elementary education from SUNY Plattsburgh, Smallacombe worked in various positions in production management, purchasing and labor relations. From 1968 to 1971, he was president of IDAB of American and MILGO/IDAB Corporation. He planned, coordinated and controlled the revitalization of this failing company, eliminating a half million dollar annual loss and quadrupling sales within 18 months.

He became president of Tal-Star Computer Systems, Inc. and vice-president of General Automation, Inc. in 1971, and, during his eight year tenure, was instrumental in merging the two companies and taking them from a precarious financial position to a position of strength and profitability in the marketplace.

He spent the next 20 months as president and partner in Ferag, Inc., a company that had lost $5 million in 5 years with $4 million in annual sales. Smallacombe spearheaded a move to increase sales, increase cash, decrease costs, improve staff and establish better relationships with Ferag's parent organization. When he left, Ferag's shipping was at the $12 million level with

Welcome Prospective Students, Parents to Open House '91!

Four Selected to Receive NYS/UUP Excellence Awards

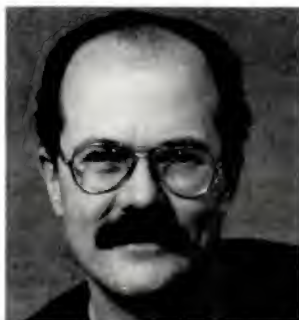

Four members of the SUNY Plattsburgh campus community have been selected to receive Awards of Excellence in the 1991 statewide program sponsored by the New York State/United University Professions Labor-Management Committee.

The four are Dr. Richard Beach, professor of geography and director of the college's Center for the Study of Canada; Dr. William Culver, professor of political sci-and the National Council of Science and Technology, and he is the author of numerous articles and one book. He has served as acting associate dean of the Faculty of Arts and Science, as coordinator of Plattsburgh's Latin-American studies program, as chairperson of a regional community's board of education and as a member of several local groups whose interests focus on historical, political and environmental issues.

ence, Edward Engelbride, assistant director of campus life; and Dr. Lawrence Shaffer, professor of psychology. They were recommended by a campus excellence committee of six faculty and staff that screened 15 candidates for the award on the basis of mastery of specialization, performance effectiveness and service to the campus and the community.

Each will receive a stipend of $3,000.

A member of the Plattsburgh faculty since 1970, Beach has received two previous awards for excellence at the University level — the prestigious Chancellor's Award, first for teaching and later for professional service. He has held leadership posts with the Canadian Institute of International Affairs and the International Council for Canadian Studies, and as president of the Association for Canadian Studies. Beach has spearheaded the development of SUNY Plattsburgh's program in Canadian studies to its position as one of the nation's best, and his efforts have attracted more than $500,000 in public and private support to the college from sources in the U.S. and Canada.

Culver, who joined the college in 1971 and who chairs the college's political science department, has held a number of grants, including awards from the Exxon Educational Foundation, the James N. Rosenberg Fund

Since joining SUNY Plattsburgh's student affairs staff seven years ago, Engelbride, a 1982 Plattsburgh graduate, has assumed an important role as Student Affairs liaison with the greater community. He has served on the Student Association College Community Relations Board, the City of Plattsburgh Downtown Task Force, and he provided the impetus for the recently launched "Adopt-A-Block" campus-community relations program. He is advisor to campus-based WPLT radio, a member of the Phoenix program steering committee, coordinator of student volunteer efforts, Freshman Experience Program mentor, and coordinator of the summer parent orientation program.

According to his nomination, Shaffer, a 1968 Plattsburgh graduate who received the Ph.D. in psychology from Oxford University in 1972 and returned to teach full time at his undergraduate alma mater four years later, is "widely regarded as the preeminent teacher" at the college. His many awards include the Chancellor's Award for Excellence in Teaching; the Distinguished Faculty Award presented by the campus chapter of Phi Eta Sigma, the national freshman honor society; the SUNY Plattsburgh Student Association Award for Outstanding Services; and the American Council on Teaching's Certificate of Merit for Academic Advising. He is faculty coordinator of the Freshman Experience Program, the author of various course-related handbooks for psychology and first-year students at Plattsburgh, and in the past two years he has given more than 30 public lectures.

Cohen concluded the nomination by saying, "It is clear that a great deal has been done in the name of Equal Opportunity and Affirmative Action on the Plattsburgh campus. It is also clear that we are not finished; that a great deal remains to be done. But it is evident, too, that a large number of people are working."

Parking Fee May Increase $2.50 Per Month as on July 1

The college will recommend a $2.50 per month increase in the parking fee — from the current $4 to $6.50 — for affected employees and for students who are carrying 6.5 credit hours or more, to become effective July 1.

John Homburger, senior business officer, informed the College Council last Thursday that the increase is necessary to cover the cost of maintaining parking facilities. He said that students who are taking six credit hours or fewer, and those whose studies require them to be off campus for extended periods of time, such as for internships, will be billed $3.25 per month for parking.

The increase would affect 417 (12 month) and 283 (10 month) full-time employees and 84 (12 month) and 80 (10 month) employees on the state payroll. It would also affect 70 employees in affiliated groups (such as College Auxiliary Services and Marriott personnel) who work full time for 12 months and another 98 who work part time either on a 12-month or 10-month basis.

Excluded from the fee, pending the outcome of collective bargaining negotiations, are faculty and staff who are covered by union contracts.

The proposed increase would generate an estimated $188,618 in total revenue needed to maintain campus parking facilities. According to Homburger, funds previously used for lot maintenance have been lost to budget cuts. The increase proposal will be submitted to SUNY Central Administration for approval.

Honorary Degree Nominations Due

Friday (April 19) is the deadline for receipt of nominations of candidates to receive honorary degrees from the State University of New York during academic 1991-92.

Any member of the college community may submit names of persons they believe deserve the honor. Send nominations, together with supporting materials, to the Office of the President, 109 Hawkins Hall.

Orientation Program, Staff Get High Marks for Effectiveness

The announcement of student summer orientation selections (see related item) may be run-of-the-mill news to some, but the results of a survey suggest their importance to the matriculation process shouldn't be underestimated.

An analysis of a summer orientation '90 evaluation by survey shows that attitudes about college among first-time students shift dramatically toward the positive because of exposure to the program, and that orientation has a similar impact on transfer students. Of 848 prospective freshmen who attended orientation last summer, 756 responded to the survey; 232 of 681 transfers did likewise.

Of the freshman sample, 71 percent reported they were apprehensive about college before attending orientation, 69 percent said they were enthusiastic and only 24 percent expressed confidence. By the time orientation ended, apprehensiveness dropped to 12 percent, enthusiasm soared to 91 percent and the confidence level climbed to 85 percent.

The orientation program and staffing received high marks. Ninety-five percent of the respondents felt the program was organized adequately to meet their needs. The same percentage said they liked the idea of orientation taking place during summer and stated they would recommend it to other prospective students.

A whopping 99 percent described their orientation leader as "competent, available and helpful."

The responses from transfer students were equally favorable, as percentages in the middle to high 90s affirmed its organization, its value and the competency of orientation staff.

Similarly, parents who attended last summer's parent orientation program (650 parents of freshmen and 250 parents of transfers attended, with 211 of the former and 83 of the latter responding) rated the experience highly. Asked whether the program in their opinion should be continued and whether they would recommend it to other parents, 100 percent of the freshmen parents and 99 percent of the transfer parents replied they agreed.

15 Chosen for Summer Orientation Staff

The Office of Campus Life has announced the names of the 15 SUNY Plattsburgh students who will serve as members of the 1991 summer orientation staff. Ten will work with first-time and transfer students and the rest will lead orientation programs for parents.

The coordinators for the student and parent orientation programs are Paul Berry and Edward Engelbride.

Alumni Board Hears Plan to Establish Club Structure

The Board of Directors of the Plattsburgh Alumni Association has given its approval conceptually to move forward with a program to establish formal alumni clubs throughout New York State in the coming months. The board held its annual spring meeting on campus last weekend.

Besides providing opportunities for socialization among SUNY Plattsburgh graduates, the club program, to be administered by the college's Office of Alumni Affairs, is designed to enhance the institution's efforts in admissions, governmental relations and fund raising. Eight clubs having committees to address those issues are projected to be operational in key areas of the state before the end of 1992. The alumni board reviewed a proposed club manual that sets guidelines for club formation and structure.

The board also received an overview of the college's Alumni/Admissions Program that became operational as a pilot project earlier this spring in the Capital Cities District. The program, whose purpose is to sustain interest in attending Plattsburgh among highly qualified accepted freshmen and transfer students, among children of alumni and multi-cultural students, will be expanded next to Suffolk County.

Finally, the board was brought up to date on the progress of the Alumni Legislative Network Project whereby graduates of the college are being asked to serve as contact persons with legislators from their areas who are members of the New York State Senate's Higher Education and Finance Committees or the state Assembly's Higher Education and Ways and Means Committees.

The 'Mad Scientists' Return ...

The chemistry club will present its annual Chemistry Magic Show at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, April 19 in Hudson Hall Room 106. This year's show, entitled "Return of the Mad Scientists," will include some special tricks in celebration of Earth Day. Admission is free.

Smallacombe Visit Begins Sunday

a $30 million order backlog.

Smallacombe spent the next five years as president and chairman of the board of Delta Data Systems Corporation. Brought in by the company's investors, Smallacombe once again was responsible for a turnaround. In five years, Delta Data Systems' sales volumes increased from $26 million to $32 million. Additionally, the company went from four years of losses to four years of profit.

Smallacombe is a member of the National Association of Corporate Directors and currently serves on the Boards of three companies: Emons Holdings, Inc. of York, PA; Quipp, Inc. of Miami, FL; and Technology

Child Care Award

Dr. Mary Ellen Dallman (c.), who served as assistant to the dean for professional studies from 1984 until 1987, was honored last Friday with the first SUNY Plattsburgh Child Care Center Award, which was presented for outstanding leadership and initiative in the furtherance of quality child care. Dallman was instrumental in the successful operation of the campus child care center during its first two years and served as first chairperson of the center's board of directors. She is currently Director for Center Design and Program Development of Ogden Allied Child Care Services in Washington, D.C. Gerald Dominy (l), current chair of the child care center board of directors, presented the award, and President Charles Warren was among the first to congratulate Dallman for her efforts.

13 Inducted to Phi Alpha Theta

Thirteen students were inducted into the campus chapter of Phi Alpha Theta, the national history honorary society.

Dr. John Myers, advisor to the honor society, said that inductees must have taken at least 12 credit hours of history on this campus, with a 3.0 or better grade point average both overall and in those history courses.

The new members of Phi Alpha Theta are Joan Bauer, Leonard Bodden, Samuel Bush, Kelly Clingman, Denise Cole, Joseph Delaney, Susan Jordan, Michelle Leson, Rhonda Meserole, Gerald Rock, Elise St. Pierre, Sandra Towers and Donna Zuercher.

Marketing, Inc. of Irvine, CA.

The Distinguished Visiting Alumni Program was created last year as part of the college's Centennial Celebration. It was so well received that it has been continued. This spring, three alumni are participating in the program — Smallacombe; Dr. Jayne Rivas '69, medical director of the Skilled Nursing Faculty of the New York Foundling Hospital/Center for Pediatric Medical and Rehabilitative Care, Inc., who visited campus two weeks ago; and Anita Larsen '82, manager of media relations for Texaco, Inc., who will be on campus April 28-30.

Light Receives OPTIONS Grant

Dr. Stephen Light, assistant professor of sociology, will be the project director for a one-year $1,000 grant to support international affairs education in the Plattsburgh area. The grant was awarded by OPTIONS, a national educational organization.

OPTIONS, which is based at Brown University, awards grants to qualified schools to establish faculty speakers bureaus on international security issues and make them available, free of charge, to community groups. To date, more than 1,000 faculty from 140 schools in 33 states are participating in OPTIONS' efforts to broaden and deepen public access to international security issues and policy debates.

Light explained that he will be recruiting faculty members willing to deal with the topics of peace, war and international relations. The grant money, he said, will pay for the printing of a brochure listing the speakers, small honoraria, a small library of books on the topics, and perhaps a few subscriptions to journals dealing in peace issues.

The grant is effective for the 1991-92 academic year.

Light, who joined the sociology department last August, teaches courses in law and criminal justice. He received his Ph.D. in sociology in 1987 from SUNY Albany and taught for three years in the department of sociology and criminal justice at Old Dominion University in Virginia.

2nd 'Pedagogical Swapshop' Set

The second in a series of Pedagogic Swap Shops will be held in the Clinton Dining Hall Lounge at 4:15 p.m. on Thursday, April 18. The swap shop is being organized by Dr. Robert Hofer, Dr. Richard Robbins and Kathryn Stuart.

The three are compiling information on four separate topics and will share their findings with participants. Participants are also welcome to bring information from their own experience to share. The topics include increasing student responsiveness in class, the use of computers in the classroom, helping students learn how to learn, and differences between active and participative learning.

El Pueblo, Hillel Schedule Gong Show

El Pueblo, the Latin American association for students, and Hillel, the Jewish American association, are collaborating on a project for fun and funds.

The two groups are sponsoring a "Gong Show/Talent Show" next Saturday (April 27) at 8 p.m. in the Angell Center Ballrooms. Contestants will include rappers, lip sync artists, impersonators, comedians and actors and actresses, and they will compete for gag prizes. Members of the audience will be invited to participate in on-the-spot contests for small cash awards.

Admission to the event, a fund-raiser for both organizations, is $3 and is open to all.

SHOWCASE

The third annual Showcase program featured more than 120 presentations — a record number — by students, faculty and staff during the April 10 day-long celebration of scholarly and creative activities that take place on campus throughout each academic year. This year's event, a monumental undertaking by anyone's standards, was co-chaired by Dr. Anna Nardelli, associate professor of education, and Dr. Edward Miller, associate professor of chemistry. Above: art students demonstrate the monotype printmaking process which involves the use of ink on plexiglass to create a one-of-a-kind and immediate image. Below: Ruth Comley, a junior computer science (software systems) major, explains the function of a computer-controlled miniature theatre she created to demonstrate how "anything from robots to alarm systems" can be built by using a micro-computer and some basic digital electronics.

Chemistry Department Presents Awards to Six Students

The Chemistry Department has announced the recipients of six departmental awards.

Dr. George Sheats, chair of the chemistry department, released the list of award winners.

Monica Kelly, a senior from Wappingers Falls was selected by the departmental faculty members as this year's Outstanding Graduating Senior. Kelly will receive a small monetary award donated by the Northern New York Section of the American Chemical Society.

Eric Blair, a freshman from Cadyville, was chosen, on the basis of outstanding achievement as a freshman chemistry student, to receive the CRC Press Freshman Chemistry Achievement Award.

The award includes a complimentary copy of the 1991 edition of the CRC Handbook of Chemistry and Physics.

Alan Bushey, a senior from West Chazy, won the 1991 Undergraduate Award in Analytical Chemistry. Bushey will receive a subscription to the journal Analytical Chemistry and an honorary membership in the Division of Analytical Chemistry for eight months, as well as a small monetary award.

Tracey LaDue, a senior from Raymondville, was selected by the faculty members of the department to receive the annual Department of Chemistry Undergraduate Research Award "in recognition of (her) superior performance in research as an undergraduate chemist." The award carries a small monetary reward.

Alison Mickle, a sophomore from Schenectady, was awarded the Paul and Alice Krueger Scholarship award for 1991-92. The award is presented to the student "with the greatest overall potential for making a contribution to chemistry" and brings with it a $400 scholarship.

Daniel Stewart, a senior from Queensbury, won the annual American Institute of Chemists Award in recognition of excellent performance at SUNY Plattsburgh. The award is sponsored by the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Chemists "in recognition of potential advancement of the chemical professions on the basis of a student's demonstrated record of leadership, ability, character and scholastic achievement." Stewart will receive a small monetary award and a one-year Student Associate membership in the American Institute of Chemists.

Annual Job Fair for Students, Alumni to be Held Next Sunday in Syracuse

A SUNY College and Alumni Job Fair, open to all graduating SUNY students and alumni, will be held Sunday, April 21 from 11a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Sheraton Inn Syracuse Convention, according to Patrick Lennahan, director of the Career/Life Planning Center.

The Job Fair offers a chance for students and alumni alike to explore job opportunities. A limited number of summer employment and internship opportunities will also be available.

The Job Fair is one of the most extensive recruiting programs offered in New York State. Lennahan said that more than 50 companies and government agencies are expected to attend. Among them will be Eastman Kodak, Key Bank, U.S. Office of Personnel Management, Internal Revenue Service, Carrier Corp., General Mills, and the FBI.

The Job Fair is sponsored by the SUNY Career Development Organization, Inc. and individual offices of Career Planning and Placement and Alumni Relations throughout the SUNY system. Students must present a valid I.D. to be admitted and alumni must have a letter of invitation from their respective alumni relations office or their college I.D.

Latourelle, '76 Graduate, Named Sigma Xi's Teacher of the Year'

Sandra Latourelle, a high school biology teacher at AuSable Valley Central School, has been named High School Science Teacher of the Year for northeastern New York by the SUNY Plattsburgh Club of Sigma Xi, the scientific research society.

Latourelle is a 1976 graduate of SUNY Plattsburgh's secondary education/biology program.

Dr. J. Stallard Waterhouse, professor of biology, said that, in 1988, Latourelle won a Sigma Xi research equipment grant that allowed her students to conduct hands-on basis research in cellular/molecular biology and later enrolled in the college's in vitro cell biology and biotechnology course at Miner Institute.

"Her dedication to preparing students well for pursuit of careers in science in college and thereafter has been and continues to be highly productive. Her students...have left her classroom with a greater appreciation for the importance of science in their lives as well as developing a greater respect for the work of scientists," Waterhouse said.

The award was formally presented during the annual Sigma Xi Club Awards dinner on Tuesday.

Journalist Dergham to Receive Distinguished Alumna Award

Raghida Dergham '73, senior U.S. diplomatic correspondent for Al Hayat, the highly regarded, independent Arab language daily newspaper published in London, has been selected to receive the college's Distinguished Alumna Award during spring commencement exercises on Saturday, May 18.

Raghida Dergham

Dergham, whose news beat is the United Nations in New York City, will also be among featured speakers at the ceremony (see related story). Born in Beirut, Lebanon, Dergham came to the United States with her family as a teenager. Several members of her family continue to reside in the area.

The Distinguished Alumna Award is presented by the Board of Directors of the Plattsburgh Alumni Association to honor graduates of the college "whose achievement have brought honor not only to self but also to Alma Mater."

Before joining Al Hayat, Dergham spent eight years as chief U.S. correspondent for Al Hawadeth, a weekly magazine. She had previously served as New York correspondent for the Lebanese weekly An Nahar Arab & International and the prestigious, London-based English language Middle East Magazine.

She is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, and she has gained recognition as being among the very few women political commentators on the international scene. Dergham is a frequent guest on various television news programs, and her most recent appearances — notably, during the War in the Gulf — included ABC's "Nightline," the "McNeil-Lehrer News Hour," "World News Tonight with Peter Jennings," CNN's "International Hour," and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's "The Journal."

Besides covering the summits between Soviet President Gorbachev and U.S. Presidents Reagan and Bush, exercises on Saturday, May 18.

The honor of addressing the Class of 1991 has been given to Dr. Ann Tracy, professor of English, graduating senior Douglas Sloan, and alumna Raghida Dergham, who will also receive the college's Distinguished Alumna Award during the commencement program (see related story, above). The faculty-stu-

Chancellor Visits

SUNY Chancellor D. Bruce Johnstone (r) received a copy of the painting depicting the Battle of Lake Champlain from city of Plattsburgh Alderman Gary Walker during his visit to campus last week to speak to leading donors to the Plattsburgh College Foundation and to business leaders (story on visit highlights, other photos on page 5).

21 Faculty, Staff to be Honored for Continuous Service

Twenty-one members of the faculty and staff who have worked at the college for 25 years and for 30 and more years will be honored at a luncheon scheduled for Thursday, April 25 at the Valcour Educational Center.

President Charles O. Warren said, "We are delighted to take this opportunity to honor these colleagues who have given so many years of service to our college. SUNY Plattsburgh is such a very special place only because of dedicated, dependable and committed people like these 21 and it is appropriate that they receive recognition for their efforts."

Barbara Caska, the secretarial stenographer in the Office of the Vice President for Student Affairs, and Dr. Howard Miller, professor of English, share the distinction of having the longest tenure at the college. Both have worked for the college for 36 years.

Other employees being honored for their length of service include:

- 35 years of service — Patricia Wood, administrative assistant for finance;

- 34 years of service — Leda Bushey, senior clerk in the registrar's office, and Aurora Nichols, part-time technical assistant in the Feinberg Library;

- 33 years of service — Lawrence Arcarese, associate professor of communication arts;

- 32 years of service — Carolyn Turner, secretary I in the Center for Earth and Environmental Studies;

- 31 years of service — Donald Garrant, executive assistant to the president for college relations and development; Lendall Haskell, associate professor in the Center for Teacher Education; and Dr. J. Stallard Waterhouse, professor of biological sciences;

- 30 years of service — Dr. Francis Bethlen, professor of marketing in the School of Business and Economics; Hazel Crary, food service worker, Marriott Corporation; Clara LaRose, senior account clerk in the Office of Personnel and Affirmative Action and manager/treasurer of the SUNY Plattsburgh Credit Union; and Sandra Murphy, office worker, College Auxiliary Services;

- 25 years of service — Martha Cashman, staff assistant, Office of Sponsored Research; Geraldine Goff, food service worker, Marriott Corporation; Gerald LeFevre, groundsworker; Philip Nason, dishroom/utility worker, Marriott Corporation; Agnes Palmer, food service worker, Marriott Corporation; Oscar Rabideau, utility worker, Marriott Corporation; and Calvin Weightman, janitor.

The event is co-sponsored by the President's Office and the campus chapters of United University Professions and the Civil Service Employees Association. Also attending the luncheon will be supervisors of those being honored.

Tracy came to SUNY Plattsburgh in 1970 as instructor in English and was promoted to assistant professor in 1974, to associate professor in 1979 and to full professor in 1984. A past English department chairperson, her research interest lies in the Gothic novel.

Her most recent book, Winter Hunger — a novel about "Windigo," a legendary and feared figure among Indians of northern Canada that appears during the long months of winter isolation — was published earlier this academic year by Goose Lane Press of Canada. She is the author also of Higher Ground: A Memoir of Higgins Classical Institute, a social history of a private academy in Maine published by Down East Books, of The Gothic Novel: 1790-1830 and of several journal articles on Gothic and supernatural fiction. Tracy holds the Ph.D. in English from the University of Toronto.

and Iranian President Banisadr. Non-political figures she has interviewed include David Rockefeller and Donald Trump.

Dergham received the B.A. in English from SUNY Plattsburgh.

Earlier this semester, Sloan, a senior political science major from Palmyra, was notified he had been approved by the screening committee of the Institute of International Education for a Fulbright Fellowship for post-graduate study in Germany, where he plans to attend the University of Hannover to study the restructuring of the professoriate in a united Germany. Two years ago, he became the college's first semi-finalist for a Truman Scholarship.

A member of Phi Eta Sigma, the freshman honorary society, Sloan has participated in the college's Honors Program since his freshman year. He was the founding president of the Honors Student Association and has served on the campus Judicial Board and the Undergraduate Alumni Council. In 1989 he chaired the Alumni and Parents' Fund phonathon campaigns, which, combined, raised a total of $115,000.

Education Department Grant Supports IBERT Objectives

The U.S. Department of Education has awarded a two-year grant to SUNY Plattsburgh's Institute for International Business Education, Research and Training (IBERT) through the SUNY Research Foundation.

The grant, one of 26 awarded nationally, is directed by Alan Lessler, director of the Technical Assistance Center, and Dr. Prem Gandhi, distinguished service professor in the School of Business and Economics.

Lessler said, "The project, 'International Business Education at SUNY Plattsburgh' has three major objectives: curricula development, faculty development and outreach to the regional business community."

The cost of the program for the first year, according to Lessler, is projected to be $142,826, with the federal grant providing $59,000. The rest of the funds will be provided by a combination of non-federal funds.

Under the grant, international business students with exceptional academic achievements will be able to participate in a new program, combining area study and language requirements with study abroad and international internships. Minors will be required in Canadian or Latin American studies and in French or Spanish.

New modules in Canadian and Latin American comparative business management and marketing will be created through faculty development. Eight regional world trade seminars will be conducted, emphasizing export investment and joint venture opportunities in Canada, the European Economic Community and Latin America.

Faculty and administrative staff at SUNY Plattsburgh will work on the project with the North Country Alliance, the SUNY Office of Research and Economic Development, the Buffalo District Office of the U.S. Department of Commerce, the Plattsburgh and Clinton County Chamber of Commerce and the Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation.

More Than 150 Students to Receive Recognition at Convocation Program

SUNY Plattsburgh's eighth annual Spring Academic Convocation, certain to be the largest ever, will be held Saturday (April 27) at 2:30 p.m. in the E. Glenn Giltz Auditorium in Hawkins Hall. Attendees will include dean's list students during each of the past two semesters and members of the college's many academic honorary societies.

More than 150 awards for academic achievement in all disciplines will be presented to students, and one member of the faculty will be honored as recipient of the 1991 Phi Eta Sigma Distinguished Faculty Award.

Program highlights will include a musical performance by Professor Yenoin Guibbory, violin, and students Mary Beth Fenlaw, clarinet, and Jun Matsuo, piano, and an address by Jack Weinstein, a senior philosophy major who is editor-in-chief of Cardinal Points. A reception will be held immediately following the program in the Hawkins Hall gymnasium.

The convocation program and reception are open to the entire campus community.

SITE Seminar Focuses on Science Education, Business Collaboration

The college will host a seminar on Thursday (April 30) that is designed to explore the need to enhance science and mathematics education and to improve collaboration among science educators, business and industry in the North Country.

Titled "Science, Industry, Technology and Education (SITE): A North Country Network," the program will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Angell College Center Cardinal Lounge. Invitations to attend have been extended to more than 100 area school and college educators and professionals in the health, agriculture and business fields.

According to SUNY Plattsburgh President Charles O. Warren, the seminar is intended to give participants an insight into North Country initiatives related to science, education, industry and technology, an overview of what is happening throughout New York State and a chance to focus on ideas for the future. Over the past several months, he said, about 25 regional educators and business people have met to discuss the issue, and Thursday's program is a result of that collaboration.

Following brief welcoming remarks, H. Graham Jones, executive director of the New York State Science and Technology Foundation, will give a keynote talk. This will be followed by round table discussions that will focus on current initiatives and ideas for future cooperative efforts, and will conclude with group reports.

Maya Angelou Here on May 3

Maya Angelou, actress, author, civil rights activist, filmmaker, poet and playwright, will present "An Evening With Maya Angelou" at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, May 3 in the Angell College Center Ballroom. A reception in honor of Angelou will follow in the Blue Lounge. The presentation is sponsored by the President's Office and AKEBA and is free and open to the public.

Angelou has written several autobiographical books, including the best-selling I Know Why the Caged Bird Sings, the story of her childhood.

Angelou's career has encompassed a wide variety of activities. She has sung in nightclubs, toured Europe in Porgy and Bess, served as the Northern coordinator of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference at the request of Dr. Martin Luther King, been a teacher and administrator of the School of Music and Drama at the University of Ghana, and written and produced a ten-part PBS series of African traditions in American life.

Larsen Visit Caps 1991 Distinguished Alumni Program

Anita Larsen, a 1982 magna cum laude graduate of SUNY Plattsburgh, will be the semester's third and final Distinguished Visiting Professor. Larsen will be a guest on campus April 28-30.

During her stay on campus, Larsen will be a guest lecturer in several communications courses, meet with members of the National Broadcasting Society and the forensic team, host an Honors Seminar, and deliver a public lecture on "Handling the War in the Gulf" (7:30 p.m., April 29, Cardinal Lounge).

Larsen has worked for Texaco, Inc.'s Corporate Communications Division since 1984. Hired as a media relations specialist, she was promoted to assistant manager of media relations in 1987 and to manager in 1989.

In her current post, she is Texaco's spokesperson and liaison with national and international news media. Some of the events she has handled in her career with the company include Texaco's 1984 acquisition of Getty Oil Company; an historic $11 billion judgment against the company in 1985; subsequent Chapter 11 filing in 1987; a victorious proxy contest in 1988; a successful $7 billion restructuring program in 1989; and, most recently, the Middle East crisis involving media inquiries and interviews on company operations, personnel and the world oil market.

Larsen also conducts "Public Relations Crisis Management" courses for the company's various departments and divisions; assists in the production and serves as anchor of Texaco's "Video News" program, which is distributed to more than 100 Texaco locations; and carries out press tours, including a tour last year of

The Annual Senior Art Exhibition, which will run from April 25 through May 18 in the Myers Fine Art Gallery, will feature work by nine seniors. The exhibition will open with a reception in honor of the artists on April 25 from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Myers Fine Arts Lounge.

Art Museum Director Edward Brohel said, "This year's senior exhibition continues to show the talent, maturity and creativity evolved by students enrolled in the art department courses. In addition to creating the art objects, the senior students created the exhibition."

the company's operations in Indonesia.

She is a recipient of Texaco's Outstanding Contribution Merit Awards and a conferee in Texaco's Executive Development Program.

Prior to joining Texaco, Larsen spent a year as a journalist/photographer with the Southern Dutchess News in Wappingers Falls, NY, and another year as anchor/reporter with U.S. Cablevision Corporation in Beacon, NY.

During her years on campus, Larsen, a communication arts major, did a journalism internship at the United Nations under the supervision of Raghida Dergham '73 (see front page story) and a TV broadcast internship at WPTZ-TV. She was a member of Omicron Delta Kappa and was listed in Who's Who Among American College and University Students.

The Wolf ('Most Human Animal') Is Focus of Sigma Xi Presentation

The college Sigma Xi chapter will sponsor a public lecture on "The Wolf: Understanding a Misunderstood Species" to be given by Dr. Ronald Schassburger at 7:45 p.m. on Thursday, May 2 in Hudson Hall 106.

The wolf, according to Schassburger, has been called the most human animal. Schassburger will discuss the mystique of the wolf, then present a fact-based account of the personality and physical characteristics of the animal, as well as its evolution, classification and ecological niche.

He will examine why wolves form packs and how they use visual, auditory and chemical signals to maintain their social structure and will then focus on his own research into the wolf's vocal repertoire.

Small Grant from Women's Council Supports Campus Visits by Experts

The college will benefit from a grant from the SUNY Women's Council Curriculum Diversification Project to support visits to the campus by curriculum diversification experts.

According to Dr. Suzann Buckley, professor of history and associate dean of arts and science, as many as four consultants will visit SUNY Plattsburgh under the grant. The first will be Professor Mary Ellen Waller-Zuckerman of SUNY Geneseo's business department, who will meet with faculty in the School of Business and Economics here next Tuesday (April 30).

The implementation of the grant, which will cover the visitors' travel and related expenses, is being handled by Dr. Marjorie Pryse, director of the Curriculum Inclusion Project, in consultation with Dr. Lonnie Fairchild of the institution's Commission on Women and Keith Smith of the Multicultural Concerns Committee. More information is available from either Buckley (ext. 3150) or Pryse (ext. 2809).

Johnstone Salutes Donors, Praises College's Strengths

Dr. D. Bruce Johnstone, chancellor of the State University of New York, was a guest on campus for 24 hours last week as part of a state-wide external relations program.

On Thursday evening, Johnstone was the guest speaker at the Plattsburgh College Foundation's Donor Recognition Dinner, during which 35 members of the

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Luck (r.), members of the Edward E. Redcay Society, were among the guests of honor at Thursday's Donor Recognition Dinner. Plattsburgh President Charles O. Warren (l.) and SUNY Chancellor D. Bruce Johnstone (2nd from l.) expressed the college's appreciation to the many donors in attendance for their generous support of the college, its students and its programs.

Edward E. Redcay Society (donors of $2,500 or more annually) and 84 members of the E. Glenn Giltz Society (who contribute at least $1,000 each year) were honored.

In his remarks, Chancellor Johnstone complimented the college for several outstanding features, including the cooperative education program, the wide variety of cultural exhibitions and performances, the Center for the Study of Canada and the extensive student aid program. He said, "All of these are possible only because of your support."

He added, "Your private gifts show that you support a commitment to excellence here in Plattsburgh. You also send a clear message to Albany when 275 area businesses make a financial commitment to the excellence of their college and when so many community residents and alumni contribute their time and effort to the annual giving campaign."

The Chancellor also made a pledge, saying, "We will never cut back on our support just because a campus, such as Plattsburgh, has won the support of its alumni and community."

On Friday morning, about 100 area business people listened to Johnstone outline the university's — and the local SUNY units' — contributions to the State of New York as a whole and to the North Country region in particular. He explained that while the university has grown in stature and in enrollment over the past few years, continued budgetary crises have the potential of negatively impacting both the quality of the 64-campus system and student access to it.

Among the guests were Presidents Jay Fennell and David Petty of Clinton and North Country Community Colleges, respectively, and members of both college's Boards of Trustees as well as the SUNY Plattsburgh College Council.

Later in the morning, Johnstone met with several officers and committee members of the Faculty Senate, members of the college's Executive Staff and several officers of the Student Association.

The Chancellor met over lunch with representatives of the media for an on-the-record conversation, during which he praised SUNY Plattsburgh's faculty, staff and administration and noted the college's many strengths.

Phonothon Pledges to Annual Fund Top $100,000 Mark for First Time

After 17 nights of calling SUNY Plattsburgh alumni to seek their support for the 1991 Annual Fund, the phonothon has topped $100,000 in pledges for the first time in its history.

Final pledge totals reached $102,534 with more than 2,709 alumni responding positively to the appeals of 40 student solicitors. The most successful previous phonothon took place in the spring of 1990 when pledges totaled $83,710.

Credit for this year's success, said Dan Milliman, associate director of development and alumni affairs, belongs to the participating students, and, especially, to junior Shari McCormick, who recruited the callers in her role as student phonothon coordinator.

Myrick Qualifies for Nationals with Record Performance

Sophomore Heather Myrick set two school records on Saturday in Plattsburgh's only home meet of the 1991 outdoor track season to qualify for the NCAA Division III track championships in two events.

Myrick, a psychology major from Wheatland, Calif., won the long jump and the triple jump with distances of 18' 4" and 38' 3 1/4", respectively. Both jumps exceeded the NCAA qualifying standards for those events by more than two feet.

Besides qualifying for the championships, Myrick was a winner in the 200 meters and was a member of the Cardinals' winning 4 x 100 relay team. She also qualified for the NYSWCAA and ECAC championships in the 100 meters with a second place finish in that event.

Also for the Cardinal women ... Wendi Clark's 5' high jump set a new school mark; Suzette Whitfield qualified for the NYSWCAA and ECAC championships in the 100 meters; and Becky Pagano was a SUNYAC qualifier in the 800 meters. On a sour note, the women's track team lost to Middlebury, 86-56.

The Cardinal men scored 60 points to finish second in their tri-meet with Middlebury (the top point-producer) and St. Lawrence. Plattsburgh's Felix Moreno and Jim Krogh both were double-winners: Moreno in the 400 meters and Krogh in the 800 meters and both as members of the winning 1600 meter relay team.

Message from the President

I wish to extend sincere appreciation to each member of the SUNY Plattsburgh faculty and staff and to our many student ambassadors whose planning and effort contributed to last Saturday's highly successful Open House program for prospective students and their parents. In talking with our visitors, it became abundantly clear that the event was an impressive display of hospitality. It was also a showcase for the wonderful sense of community that characterizes our campus and for the genuine excitement that pervades the living and learning environment here. Again, many thanks to all who participated in any way.

Charles O. Warren

28 Soviet Accountants Here for Executive Training

Twenty-eight Soviet accountants, an accounting professor from Moscow's International School of Business and several translators will be on campus for the next three weeks to participate in an executive training program.

The program, titled "Enterprise Accounting in the Market Economy," is sponsored by the college's Institute for International Business Education, Research and Training and the Center for the Study of Joint Ventures.

Alan Lessler, Dr. Prem Gandhi, and Dr. Zubaidur Rahman are co-managing the training program. They will be assisted by lecturers from the School of Business and Economics, a visiting professor from St. Michael's College and local businesspersons.

The Soviet accountants arrived on campus Sunday evening and began their studies with an orientation session on Monday. Among the lecturers scheduled to present seminars during the next three weeks are local attorney William Owens; attorney James Coffey, Barrie Guibord, executive vice president of Plattco Corporation; Richard Weigel, NYS Department of Economic Development; Ray Desso, chief accounting executive of Georgia Pacific; Professor Dennis Voight of St. Michael's College, and SUNY Plattsburgh faculty members Ray

SUNY Plattsburgh Nominee

Florida's Stripling to Receive Honorary Degree from SUNY

A Florida educator and counseling specialist who has served SUNY Plattsburgh as a consultant will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane

Robert O. Stripling

Letters from the State University of New York during spring commencement exercises at the college on Saturday, May 18.

The degree will be conferred on Dr. Robert O. Stripling, distinguished service professor emeritus in the College of Education at the University of Florida, Gainesville. Stripling was nominated by the Plattsburgh campus, and his nomination was approved last Thursday by SUNY's Board of Trustees. The State University awards honorary degrees "to recognize excellence and extraordinary achievement in disciplinary fields and in human endeavor and philanthropy."

The degree citation will refer to Stripling as "a

Convocation Speaker

Cardinal Points editor-in-chief Jack Weinstein received warm applause following his remarks at Saturday's spring Academic Convocation program in Giltz Auditorium in Hawkins Hall. Students shared in more than 150 awards for academic achievement during the past year, and Philosophy Professor David Mowry received Phi Eta Sigma's "Distinguished Faculty Award." (For more on the latter, turn to page 3).

Stripling Dies in Florida

College officials were informed shortly before press time that Dr. Robert O. Stripling had died Tuesday morning (April 30) in Gainesville, Fla. following a lengthy illness. He was 76. The honorary degree to be conferred on Stripling at spring commencement later this month will be awarded posthumously. It will be accepted by his children, Robert O. Stripling Jr., an attorney in Gainesville. Dr. Stripling's widow, Dorothy Atkinson Stripling, and his daughter, Carolyn Rhodes Stripling of Spartanburg, S.C., also plan to attend the ceremony.

Middle States Committee on the Faculty Completes Work

The Middle States Review Work Committee on the Faculty has completed its work assignments and is now drafting its report to the Steering Committee, according to Dr. Carrie Harris, who chairs the work committee.

Harris said that the work committee divided itself into seven subgroups and looked at seven areas that fell into the committee's charge. The first group reviewed personnel statistics to develop a 'faculty-staff profile' and found that the faculty is approximately 75:25 male to female, while the staff ratio is 54:46 male to female. The average age of faculty and staff falls between 40 and 50 and minorities comprise approximately 7% of the faculty and staff.

A group which looked at faculty participation in policy-making and governance determined that there is a high number of faculty and staff members who serve on administrative, Faculty Senate and academic department/center committees. Professional staff tend to serve on committees more frequently than faculty.

One member of the work committee reviewed the various policies and procedures for recruitment, selection, appointment, evaluation and quality control for faculty appointments.

A review of public service found that members of the faculty and staff provide service to the community on a wide scale. Available information revealed that 46 percent of the Arts and Science faculty are involved in some form of public service. That figure rises to 58 percent for School of Business and Economics faculty and to 83 percent for Professional Studies faculty.

A study of instructional support services turned up more than three dozen services offering facilities, instruction, advice and other educational assistance to faculty and students on the Plattsburgh campus.

A survey on office space, equipment, supplies, mail service and clerical staffing concluded that assigned space is fully utilized and cleaning and mail service are adequate. There were numerous complaints about the need for major rehabilitation of some buildings and office areas and for photocopier/duplicator replacement. Clerical personnel are more satisfied with computer availability than faculty members.

Opinions on teaching evaluation were solicited through a campus-wide survey, and from a limited number of students and administrators. Generally, students are opposed to SIR reports and appear to believe that the instrument fails to improve teaching. Faculty and administrators are more supportive of the forms. The majority of faculty seemed to believe they were good teachers already or were striving to become good teachers. Administrators agreed that every faculty member's teaching should be evaluated regularly.

A committee on the working environment developed and administered an extensive questionnaire which reflected concerns across the campus. Faculty opinion on a number of topics, including the definition of academic freedom; the general education requirement; and hiring, contract renewal, promotion, and tenure decisions, was widely split. The prevailing opinion seems to be that clear guidelines for an acceptable faculty work ethic are nonexistent on campus. Additionally, faculty appear to believe that current procedures for merit increments are not satisfactory.

Finally, 75 percent of the respondents would like to see the intellectual atmosphere on campus improve.

The work committee's report will be incorporated into the overall draft report from the Steering Committee and will be available for campus review during the fall semester.

distinguished scholar and educator, internationally renowned counselor and creative educational consultant." Specific to this campus, it refers to his "invaluable counsel" to the college in its "successful, five-year effort to earn accreditation for three graduate programs in counseling by the Council for Accreditation of Counseling and Related Educational Programs."

Accreditation of the Plattsburgh programs — in community counseling, student affairs practice in higher education and school counseling — places them among fewer than 12 percent in the U.S. to attain certification.

Stripling holds the B.A. E. and the M.A. E. from the University of Florida at Gainesville, and the Ed.D. from Teachers College of Columbia University. He taught English, social studies and geography at the high school level before joining the University of Florida in the early 1940s, first as a counselor in child guidance and core teacher in that institution's laboratory school, then as an instructor in its war training program, and later as a counselor, assistant, associate and full professor in diversified areas, including curriculum research, educational psychology, human growth and development and program development.

He holds memberships in more than 15 professional and honorary organizations, he has served as visiting professor at several colleges and universities, including Boston University, the University of Minnesota, Utah State University, and the University of North Carolina, and he has been a lecturer and consultant to scores of others throughout the United States, including SUNY Plattsburgh.

Stripling has served as a consultant, also, to the U.S. Office of Education and to the Peace Corps.

Phi Eta Sigma Picks Mowry for Distinguished Faculty Award

Dr. David Mowry, professor of philosophy and director of the college's Honors Center, is this year's winner of the Phi Eta Sigma Distinguished Faculty Award. The award was presented during the college's Annual Spring Academic Convocation held on Saturday afternoon.

The award is presented to the faculty member who, in the opinion of Phi Eta Sigma members, has contributed the most to the education of freshmen.

Mowry joined the SUNY Plattsburgh faculty in 1971 as an instructor in the philosophy department. He was promoted to assistant professor in 1974, to associate professor in 1980 and to full professor in 1990.

In the early 1980's, Mowry became involved with the revitalization of the college's Honors Program, begun decades earlier, but then virtually inactive. His efforts

Reception on Thursday to Honor Faculty, Staff on Retirement List

All members of the campus community are invited to attend a reception at 3:30 p.m. on Thursday, May 9 in the Centennial Room in recognition of seventeen members of the faculty and staff who either have or will retire from service to the college.

The reception is co-sponsored by the President's Office and the campus chapters of UUP and CSEA.

led to the formal creation of the Honors Center in 1985 and he today continues to serve as its only director. The Honors Program involves approximately 160 students participating in lower and upper level honors courses, and an Honors Council, which promulgates outstanding work by individual students. The Honors Center, which is currently being renovated and enlarged, is housed in Hawkins Hall.

Mowry serves as campus coordinator for various post-graduate fellowship programs, including Fulbright, Truman, Ford, Mellon, Rhodes, and Marshall Fellowships, and he coordinates the annual selection of the college's Presidential Scholars.

He has also been instrumental in the origin and implementation of the college's Distinguished Visiting Professor Program.

Geography Students to Release 'Quality of Life' Survey Results

Students in an upper level geography course, Planning Process, will present the results of a survey they conducted on the quality of life in Plattsburgh during an open meeting at 2:45 p.m. on Tuesday, May 7 in Hawkins Hall room 144.

Dr. Bryan Higgins, the course instructor, said the students surveyed nearly 350 area residents as part of a course project. The participants were queried on their perceptions of the quality of life in Plattsburgh today and in five years. They were asked to rate the importance of such topics as recycling and solid waste management, water pollution, air pollution, traffic on Upper Cornelia Street, the decay of downtown, parking, public transportation and housing.

Soviet Accountants Here

Additionally, two Soviet professors, Professor Anatoly Sheremet and Dr. Tatiana Krylova of Moscow State University, will lecture to the visitors. Sheremet and Krylova have been in residence on campus for some time doing accounting and joint venture research with Rahman.

Rahman has been working with the Soviet Union, under the auspices of an international task force developed by the United Nations Center on Transnational Corporations and the USSR Ministry of Finance to assist that country in helping to revise its accounting system so that it is compatible with Western accounting principles.

Job Search for '90 Grads Reflects Condition of Economy

What's more, says Patrick Lennahan, director of the college's Career/Life Planning Center, May 1991 graduates and continuing students who will be looking for summer work when they leave campus in two weeks will have a difficult time finding jobs.

Still, he adds, the employment rate among 1990 SUNY Plattsburgh graduates — reported in a survey designed to assess their status at between six and nine months of their graduation — is above the average for all residents of New York State. Considering the economic climate and job market constrictions that are affecting especially individuals seeking professional, entry-level positions, he says, "our (1990) graduates fared very well."

The survey results show that 94 percent of the Class of 1990 were employed at the time the survey was taken last fall. That compares with a 97.5 percent employment rate for 1989 graduates and rates of 96.9 percent and 96.3 percent for the previous two graduating classes. Of 1,146 surveyed in the most recent study, 589 (51.4 percent) responded.

Other highlights of the survey results (1990 vs. 1989):

- 79 percent (a three-year high) reported they are employed full time.
- 76 percent (down nearly four percent) said they are employed in a position related to their major field of study.

Challenge of Achievement ...

United Way of Clinton County Executive Director Michael Mannix (l) accepts a gift of $275 from SUNY Plattsburgh students Frederik Jente and Amanda Stella, treasurer and president, respectively, of the Beta Epsilon Chapter of Phi Upsilon Omicron, the national home economics honor society, in support of the United Way's emergency relief fund for families of troops stationed in the Persian Gulf during Operation Desert Storm. The campus chapter conducted a bottle drive and solicited campus donations for the effort as part of a professional project focused on the national theme "Accept the Challenge of Involvement."

•5.5 percent (32 respondents) reported they are unemployed (3.2 percent above the rate reported by the Class of 1989, but about two percentage points below the reported unemployment rate statewide).

•Average salaries decreased slightly for all who reported employment (by about $160 annually per graduate), but they are up for those employed full time (from $21,681 for '89 graduates to $22,147 for those who received degrees last May).

"Entry-level positions are the hardest to get during a recessionary period when employed persons who normally expect to move up or move on have nowhere to go," says Lennahan. "We noticed a dramatic decline in on-campus recruiting from last fall to the spring, but that was consistent with the nationwide trend."

"Cooperative education placements and internships normally lead to first-time, full-time jobs for a healthy percentage of participants, but employers who are laying off people aren't going to offer positions to our students. We keep hearing about an economic turnaround coming in the next six months or so, but students in the meantime can expect a difficult time finding part-time as well as full-time jobs."

ODK to Inaugurate 'Wall of Honor' in Celebration of 10th Anniversary

The SUNY Plattsburgh Circle of Omicron Delta Kappa (ODK) will officially inaugurate its "Wall of Honor" project tomorrow (May 2) as part of the circle's celebration of the 10th anniversary of receipt of its national charter.

The Wall of Honor is located in Amitie Plaza, adjacent to the stairway to the second-level podium linking the Myers-Angell Center-Feinberg Library-Yokum-Kehoe building complex. It is funded by College Auxiliary Services and the Office of the President, and it was erected with substantial advice and support from J. Derek Allan, facilities director, and the maintenance and operations staff. All nationally chartered honor societies on campus have been invited, or soon will be, to participate in the project by purchasing bronze plaques which bear their name and the date they were chartered.

ODK will host a reception tomorrow at 4:15 p.m. in the Angell Center Blue Room for its members and for presidents and advisors of participating honor societies. The program will include brief remarks from President Charles O. Warren, Vice President for Student Affairs and national ODK President Eldridge W. Roark, and from Christopher Sperl.

Sperl, a graduate student in clinical psychology, is a former circle president here and ODK Province Director. His leadership was instrumental in establishment of the Wall of Honor.

Gandhi First of Three to Interview for Dean's Position

The search for a new dean of the School of Business and Economics has been narrowed to three candidates, who will visit campus for in-depth interviews during the next two weeks, according to Dr. Michael Stoller, search committee chair.

The first candidate, Dr. Prem Gandhi, will participate in the interview process May 6-7. Dr. Jerry Rosenblatt will visit May 9-10 and Dr. Mark Alan Schlesinger will be interviewed May 14-15. A fourth candidate may be added to the schedule later. A complete schedule of interview times and places will be available from the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs later in the week.

Gandhi is currently a Distinguished Service Professor in the SUNY Plattsburgh School of Business and Economics. He has been a member of the faculty since

11th Student Recognition Awards Program Scheduled for Thursday

The eleventh annual Student Recognition Awards Program will be held next Thursday (May 9) at 4 p.m. in the Angell Center Ballrooms.

The program, hosted by the SUNY Plattsburgh Circle of Omicron Delta Kappa (ODK), the national leadership honor society, honors the achievements of students in a variety of activities and organizations. It is sponsored by the Office of the Vice President for Student Affairs.

William Laundry, director of campus life, will preside at the event. ODK President Juli Schaller, a senior psychology major, will welcome participants, and greetings will be extended by Student Association (SA) President Jacqueline Lichte, by Dr. Eldridge W. Roark, vice president for student affairs and national president of ODK, and by the Hon. Clyde Rabideau, mayor of the city of Plattsburgh.

Community service awards will recognize fraternities, sororities and campus organizations for their participation in activities ranging from the newly initiated "Adopt-a-Block" program and Literacy Volunteers to the Plattsburgh YMCA and Champlain Valley Physicians Hospital blood donor program. Campus service awards will be presented in 14 separate categories, and "outstanding members" of fraternities and sororities, campus media, residence hall councils and service and social action groups will be recognized.

Other highlights will include the announcement of the winners of the ODK Sophomore of the Year Award and the SA's Outstanding Service Award, the Burghy Games' champions, and the recipients of the Toni Bloom Memorial Scholarship and the SA Scholarship.

The 1991 student recognition awards program is dedicated to the memory of Peggy Hammerslag, class of 1990, and Kristin Pilger, class of 1992, both of whom died during the past year.

1966. He has done extensive research and publishing in various areas of international economics and has focused in the last few years on Canadian trade and investment in New York State. He currently serves as co-director of the Institute for International Business, Education, Research and Training; as coordinator of the international business program; and as executive director of the U.S.-Canadian Business Advisory Council. Gandhi earned the Ph.D. from the New School for Social Research.

Rosenblatt is currently associate dean for academic and student affairs at Concordia University in Montreal. He has held various teaching and administrative posts at Concordia since 1985. Prior to that time, he taught marketing at Concordia University. Rosenblatt has been involved with research and marketing consulting projects for numerous major Canadian corporations. He has published and presented numerous papers on various aspects of marketing. Rosenblatt currently serves as director of Executive Development Programs at Concordia and has been active in various college committees. He holds the Ph.D. from Concordia.

Schlesinger is an associate professor in the department of analysis and communication of the College of Management at the University of Massachusetts in Boston. From 1986 to 1987, he served as acting associate dean for academic affairs at that institution and from 1987 to 1989 was associate dean. During that time he directed the college's AACSB accreditation effort. Schlesinger does extensive consultation work and has published and presented materials on problem solving, teaching critical thinking, outcome measures, and cognitive skills. He earned the Ph.D. from the University of Michigan.

Distinguished Alumnus

Robert J. Smallacombe '60, founder and president of Executive Intervention, Inc. of Pennington, N.J., shares his experiences with students in business and economics in an informal session in the college's Honors Center during his three-day visit to campus last week as a participant in the Distinguished Alumni Program. Smallacombe specializes in rejuvenating companies that are in serious trouble.

Honored for Service

Two from Plattsburgh Promoted to SUNY's Highest Rank

For the first time, two SUNY Plattsburgh professors have been honored in the same year with the highest designations that can be made by the SUNY Board of Trustees. Dr. Mark Cohen, professor of anthropology, has been promoted to SUNY Distinguished Teaching Professor, and Dr. James Dawson, professor of environmental science, has been promoted to SUNY Distinguished Service Professor.

Dawson

President Charles O. Warren said, "It is a great honor for SUNY Plattsburgh to have two such outstanding professors on our faculty. Both are well deserving of these awards. Dr. Cohen's sensitive, innovative and highly effective teaching is clearly and unarguably established fact. He is highly regarded as a campus and university leader. Additionally, his international reputation as a scholar is extraordinary. Perhaps the only thing more extraordinary is the manner in which he transfers that international prominence to strong support for our students, our campus and the University."

He continued, "Dr. Dawson's sustained record of professional achievement is truly outstanding. He is known as a demanding, fair and responsive teacher and is without peer in his field of scholarship, especially as it relates to public policy questions. Even more impressive is the fact that his service contributions have continued to grow over the years. He is known nationally for his service and leadership in a variety of areas of environmental concerns. He has effectively included students and colleagues in those concerns, and, in short, he really has made a difference."

The Distinguished Teaching and Service Professorships are tenured university ranks, a rank above full professor, bestowed by the SUNY Board of Trustees. The nominees for each must have completed at least ten years of full-time service in SUNY and must have achieved a distinguished — and sustained — reputation for teaching or service.

Candidates may be nominated by any member of the campus community. Their credentials are reviewed by

Chancellor's Awards Honor Morrissey, Mowry and Sample

Dr. Thomas Morrissey, Dr. David Mowry, and Dr. Craig Sample have been selected to receive the SUNY Chancellor's Award for Excellence in Teaching. The award program was established in 1972 to honor faculty for outstanding effectiveness in the classroom. The three faculty members will be recognized officially during the annual commencement ceremony and will receive a commemorative medalion to be worn at formal academic ceremonies.

Candidates may be nominated by any member of the campus community. Their credentials are reviewed by a local selection committee, ap-

burgh English department faculty since 1974, Morrissey, who holds the rank of full professor, has taught a wide range of courses in both literature and composition, ranging from the English 101 basic composition course to upper level seminars and graduate courses. He has designed an array of courses ranging from Irish literature and myth to science fiction, as well as writing/training courses for teachers and tutors. At the other end of the spectrum, he a local selection committee, endorsed by the campus president and reviewed by a university-wide committee that makes recommendations to the SUNY Chancellor, who presents recommendations to the trustees.

Cohen, a member of the anthropology department since 1971, won the SUNY Chancellor's Award for Excellence in Teaching in 1987 and the Phi Eta Sigma Distinguished Faculty Award in 1985. He studied in England under a Guggenheim Fellowship during the 1985-86 academic year and in Israel through a Fulbright Lectureship during the 1989-90 academic year.

He is the author of two books, The Food Crisis in Prehistory (Yale University Press, 1977), which is now in its fifth printing, and Health and the Rise of Civilization (Yale University Press, 1989), and the editor of two others. His research work has been funded by the National Science Foundation, the SUNY Research Foundation and the Wenner Gren Foundation.

Cohen is known for involving students in his analysis of skeletons of Mayans excavated from a site in Belize in Central America. His research has delved into the effects of changing from a hunting/gathering society to an agricultural society on the health of the Mayans. Several students have accompanied him on summer 'digs' and have continued advanced research work on the skeletal remains in the campus anthropology laboratory. Two of his former students won funding from the NSF Research Experience for Undergraduates program to work on this project.

He is also active in campus activities, having served at various times as co-chair of the President's Advisory Commission on the Status of Women, as coordinator of the Behavioral Science Program, as chair of the anthropology department and as coordinator of the Redcay Awards Committee.

Off-campus, Cohen serves as a forensic consultant with the New York State Police and as a consultant to various groups of high school teachers on the teaching of archeology and evolution.

Cohen holds the A.B. from Harvard University and the Ph.D. from Columbia University.

Dawson has been a member of the SUNY Plattsburgh faculty since 1971. His nomination emphasized his extensive public service contributions to the state, to the Adirondack and Lake Champlain Region and to the State University.

Dawson is currently president of the state-wide Environmental Planning Lobby, Inc. and president of the New York Environmental Institute, Inc. He was a co-founder of the Heritage 2000 Alliance and a founding member of the Board of Directors of the New York Parks and Conservation Association, and serves as vice chair of the New York State Office of Parks, Recreation and Historic Preservation's Point au Roche State Park Advisory Committee.

Dawson also served as New York chair of the Lake Champlain Committee, Inc. and is currently New York vice chair. He was recently appointed to the Lake Champlain Management Conference and earlier served as the forest preserve specialist of the Governor's Commission on the Adirondacks in the Twenty-First Century. In addition to those listed, his lengthy record of service on environmental issues includes membership and leadership positions too numerous to mention.

On campus, Dawson has provided extensive leadership and assistance to State University governance and administrative committees. He twice chaired the Faculty Senate and currently represents the campus as its University Faculty Senator. He also currently chairs the work committee on mission, goals and resources for the Middle States Accreditation Review Steering Committee.

Dawson has organized numerous conferences, seminars and workshops on state-wide, Lake Champlain and Adirondack environmental subjects and has written, co-authored and edited more than 40 articles, scholarly papers, books and proceedings on environmental and geological subjects.

He received the B.A. and M.S. from the University of California-Los Angeles and the Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Senior Gregoire Accepted to Prestigious Internship

Lori Lambert Gregoire has been accepted into the Dietetic Internship program at the Frances Stern Nutrition Center in Boston, Massachusetts.

Gregoire, who will receive her degree in August from SUNY Plattsburgh's food and nutrition program, is the first Plattsburgh graduate to be accepted into this highly competitive program.

Gregoire

The internship program combines clinical internship experience at the New England Medical Center with master's level graduate course work through Tufts University. After the twenty-month program, Gregoire will receive an M.S. in nutrition and be eligible for the Registered Dietitian examination.

Gregoire, of Plattsburgh, is a member of Phi Upsilon Omicron, the national home economics honor society.

Foundation's '91 Business Campaign Begins Tomorrow

The Plattsburgh College Foundation's 1991 Business Campaign begins officially tomorrow (May 9) with a goal to raise $110,000 in gifts and pledges over the next seven weeks.

Campaign leaders and volunteers — themselves North Country businessmen and businesswomen — have been invited to a "kickoff breakfast" to be held at 7:30 a.m. in the Angell Center Centennial Room. They will be welcomed and given a campaign overview by SUNY Plattsburgh President Charles O. Warren and Foundation President Curtis E. Shipman, and they will hear first-hand of the importance of the fund drive from current scholarship recipients Patricia Honan, a secondary education/mathematics major from Altona, and Delbert Hart, a double major in mathematics and computer science from Ellenburg.

The 1991 Business Campaign will be co-chaired by Michael O'Connor, account executive with Paine Webber in Plattsburgh, and Amy Whitehead, executive vice president of the Plattsburgh and Clinton County Chamber of Commerce. O'Connor and Whitehead will work with ten campaign "teams" each consisting of a captain and five solicitors.

About 350 businesses will be asked to consider increasing their gifts to previous campaigns or to give for the first time. Last year's business drive generated $105,000 from 275 contributors whose gifts are used primarily to support the college's student aid program. About 200 students received an average $525 scholarship or grant from income to the 1990 Business Campaign.

This year's effort is scheduled to end on June 30. In the meantime, "report meetings" on its progress are scheduled for campaign volunteers on May 23, June 13 and June 27.

CAS Taking a 'Byte' Out of Computer Costs for Students

College Auxiliary Services (CAS) will institute a "Compute-A-Loan" program designed to make it easier for current or incoming students to purchase their own personal computers.

The program will provide limited funds for low-interest loans to students who wish to purchase MacIntosh computers at HEPP II Educational Program discount prices. Stan Supinski, executive director of CAS, said that $100,000 has been set aside for loans from funds that would normally be used for other investment purposes. "We like to think of Compute-A-Loan as an investment in our students," stated Supinski. "Lary Shaffer (professor of psychology) and Mike Jette (former CAS student board member) came up with the idea for the program and deserve credit for its implementation."

Under the program, students will be able to borrow a maximum loan amount equal to the current purchase price of a MacIntosh MacClassic personal computer (present cost, $800) at a fixed interest rate of eight percent. A $50 deposit will be required at the time of the loan application, with payments made semi-annually to CAS.

The loan agreement will be made with CAS, Supinski said, while the purchase agreement will be made directly with Apple Computer. That means that Apple will handle any service needs that may arise.

Although the maximum loan amount covers only the cost of the MacClassic, students may apply the funds toward another MacIntosh model of their choice. A co-signer will be required on all Compute-A-Loan applications, and payment will be due in full by the end of the semester preceding the purchaser's graduation.

More information about the program will be sent to all SUNY Plattsburgh students during June.

One More Weekly to Go ...

Next week's Weekly will be the final issue of the spring semester. There will be no calendar with that issue. Because the last Weekly of every term is usually crowded, and because of other pressing publications deadlines related to spring commencement, the editors request that items for next week's issue be submitted no later than noon on Friday, May 10. Many thanks.

Middle States Work Committee Preparing Final Report

In preparation for the up-coming Middle States Accreditation Review, a committee of faculty and students has conducted surveys and interviews and sponsored an all-college forum on the teaching and learning environment at the college.

The work committee, chaired by Dr. Douglas R. Skopp (History) is now preparing its final report. "We have discovered some significant perceptions among the college's students, faculty and staff about how well the college enables us to do our job here," Skopp said. "These perceptions...are as important as the reality of the teaching and learning environment. Indeed, they define this reality.

"We owe it to ourselves to be as honest as we can be about the quality of academic life on our campus — anything less compromises our success as a college, and ultimately our existence."

Two members of the sub-committee, Dr. Robert Hofer (Mathematics) and Kathryn Stuart (Music), investigated college procedures for implementing or changing courses and programs and collected information about special academic activities and services beyond the campus.

Dr. Jin Kim (Communication) co-ordinated the design and analysis of two surveys, one for students and another for faculty and staff members. The surveys measured the discrepancy between an individual's ideals about various aspects of "college life" and his or her perception of what is "really" the case at SUNY Plattsburgh.

More than 650 students and more than 175 faculty and staff completed the surveys.

Among the items where students show relatively great satisfaction with the college are in its "encouragement and support of cultural diversity in the student body, faculty and staff," and its efforts to "offer programs which help students respect and appreciate gender, racial and ethnic differences." While the faculty respondents tend to agree with the students, the faculty have lower ideals about these matters and appear to regard Plattsburgh's efforts less positively.

Some other areas showing statistically significant high levels of student satisfaction are the general helpfulness and support of the faculty, and the college's efforts to recognize and further high levels of academic achievement.

The survey reveals some areas of general student dissatisfaction, as evidenced by a relatively large discrepancy between their ideals and their perception of "reality" at the college. Remarkably, most of the student dissatisfaction is with the students' own values and behavior.

According to Dr. Kim, "Students appear to be more critical of themselves than of any other aspect of the college." The gap between their "ideal" and their perception of the "real" at SUNY Plattsburgh is widest on the item which asks how much students here "actively engage in a 'dialogue of minds' with their professors and peers, rather than remaining as passive recipients of knowledge." Another area of student dissatisfaction relates to their belief that, in contrast to "ideal" students in general, students here do not "do the best work possible on each assignment."

According to Skopp, both surveys are being analyzed and correlated according to several variables, including gender, number of years at the college, whether or not a student is a transfer student, program of study, year of study at the college, and professional rank. The dozens of comments written on the surveys will be appended to the Committee's final report, which will be completed in early June. Skopp and Kim plan to discuss their findings in a "Tuesday Reflections" presentation early in the Fall semester.

Pat Hoffmann (Business and Economics) and Dr. Nick Stupiansky (Teacher Education) investigated the living and learning environment in the residence halls. Based on surveys of the student staffs there, interviews and other information, they found areas of student distress, for example, with the noise-level and general intellectual "quality of life" in the residence halls.

Hoffmann also surveyed adjunct faculty attitudes. In general, she reports that adjunct faculty here are intensely committed to teaching, but that they chafe under their relatively marginal roles in the college. For example, many noted that their class-sizes are larger than average, they feel excluded from their department's activities, and often teach when college support services are not available.

General Presentations Scheduled for Candidates for Dean's Post

Candidates for the position of Dean of the School of Business and Economics will each make two general presentations during their visits to campus, according to the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs.

The first candidate, Dr. Prem Gandhi, completed his visit to the campus yesterday (Tuesday).

Dr. Jerry Rosenblatt will be on campus May 9-10 and Dr. Mark Schlesinger will be interviewed May 15-16. The general presentation sessions will be held at 2:30 p.m. on each day of the visits in Hawkins Hall Room 103.

The presentations will be followed by a question and answer session and are open to the entire campus community.

Campus to Host '92 National Broadcasting Society Parley

The SUNY Plattsburgh campus has been selected to host the October 1992 eastern region convention of the National Broadcasting Society.

According to Peter Ensel, instructor in communication, the designation came by unanimous vote of representatives of regional member institutions during the Society's recent annual meeting in Los Angeles. The National Broadcasting Society consists of about 150 college and university chapters throughout the U.S., including more than 20 in the east region, and some that are professionally affiliated, such as the American Broadcasting Corporation and Xerox, Inc.

"We believe our college is the first in SUNY to be picked to host a regional convention," commented Ensel, noting that the Brockport, Fredonia and Oswego campuses also have Society chapters. "We expect the meeting here will attract between 125 and 150 participants who qualify for membership as communication faculty, broadcasting professionals or broadcasting honor students."

Ensel said that preliminary plans for the convention in '92 call for an attempt to "internationalize" the proceedings by involving Canadian institutions that offer broadcasting programs and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. He is hoping that such involvement will lead to establishment of Society chapters in Canada.

While attending the convention in Los Angeles, Ensel gave two presentations. The first was a paper he co-authored with communication department Chairperson Albert Montanaro titled "Teaching Television News Production the Hard Way," and the second was a showing of the videotape, "The Transfer Experience: Maximizing Opportunity," which was developed jointly with Clinton Community College and which was a first-place winner in the National Broadcasting Society's news and public affairs competition category.

Before returning home, Ensel gave a presentation titled "Live Sports Production as Part of a Curriculum" at a meeting of the Broadcast Education Association held in Las Vegas.

Forensic Team Impressive at 1991 National Tournament

Q. What do the University of Chicago, Columbia University, Penn State, the University of Notre Dame, Oberlin, Clemson and the University of Pennsylvania have in common?

A. They are among the "big name" schools that finished behind SUNY Plattsburgh in the National Forensic Tournament held recently at Marshall University in Huntington, W.Va.

According to Albert Montanaro, associate professor of communication and forensic team coach, four Plattsburgh students were among more than 1,000 representing 123 colleges and universities in 36 states who participated in the meet. The tourney, he said, involved four preliminary rounds of competition in nine events which broke to quarter-finals, semi's and finals.

Overall, the "Plattsburgh four" were entered in 16 events, classifying them as Division II (medium-sized programs, with 15-59 entry slots) competitors in a bracket consisting of 32 schools. Division I was for participants from large programs (60 entry slots or more) while Division III was for small programs whose competitors were entered in fewer than 15 events.

However, as Montanaro pointed out, the competition for awards was inter-divisional. When it was over, SUNY Plattsburgh's forensic team was awarded 9th place in Division II and 37th nationally. Among 42 eastern seaboard schools (located from Maine to Florida), Plattsburgh ranked ninth, and among 21 northeastern schools (New England, New York, New Jersey), the college's team finished fifth.

The Plattsburgh team consisted of Chris Holfester,

Allison Wise, Karen Yoos and Sue Zwick. Senior Yoos, the Forensic Union president who has been a member of the team for the past four years, broke to the quarter finals in Persuasive Speaking to finish 20th among 187 contestants in that event.

Alumna's Visit Caps Program

1982 SUNY Plattsburgh graduate Anila Larsen meets with students in Albert Montanaro's class in "Basic Media Advertising" during her visit to campus last week as the spring semester's third (and final) participant in the college's Distinguished Visiting Alumni Program. Larsen, manager of media relations for Texaco, Inc. in White Plains, where she is that corporation's spokesperson and liaison with national and international news media, was a communication arts major as an undergraduate and a top performer on nationally ranked, Montanaro-coached Plattsburgh State forensic teams (see the item above for the latest in forensic successes here).

designed and taught English 100, a remedial course for under-prepared students.

Morrissey played a major role in the development of the college's Writing-Across-the-Curriculum Program, and currently serves as its director. He has published extensively on various topics in literature, as well as composition and criticism. He has gained a national reputation for his work on student writing and has been called upon by other campuses to serve as a consultant on that topic.

Morrissey has chaired the English department and served on the Faculty Senate. He currently serves on the Assessment Advisory Committee and chairs the advisory committee to the Learning Center.

Mowry, a professor of philosophy, joined the faculty in 1971. He has taught 23 different courses, many of which he developed himself.

In the mid 1980's, Mowry became involved with the revitalization of the college's Honors Program, in which approximately 160 students currently participate. Mowry is the program's and the Honors Center's only director.

Mowry serves as advisor to the campus chapter of Phi Eta Sigma, the national honor society for freshmen. Two weeks ago, he was the recipient of the Distinguished Faculty Award conferred by members of Phi Eta Sigma on the faculty member who has, in their opinion, done the most for the education of freshmen.

He also coordinates the annual selection of the college's Presidential Scholars, incoming freshmen who receive four-year, full-tuition equivalent scholarships solely on the basis of academic merit, then works with them on special projects during their years at Plattsburgh.

He has served on the Faculty Senate and was instrumental in the origin and implementation of the college's Distinguished Visiting Professor Program.

Sample, an associate professor of foreign language and literature, has been a member of the faculty for 21 years. Of the 20 regularly offered courses in the French curriculum, Dr. Sample has taught 16 at one time or another and is qualified to teach two others. He teaches courses ranging from General Education courses on the introductory level to upper level seminars for advanced students. He has created at least six new courses in the French curriculum and has created and/or assimilated primary instructional responsibility for several courses outside the department.

Sample co-created the department's first approved Honors Programs, co-created the French minor program and directed that program for several years, and co-created the college's 3/2 B.A./M.A. program in International Policy Studies in collaboration with the Monterey Institute in California.

Sample has chaired the department for a total of ten years and has served on the Faculty Senate for eleven years. Off-campus, he has worked with public and private elementary school teachers to develop French instructional programs, organized and offered courses at a local Senior Citizens' Home, and was founding president of the Valcour Association of Foreign Language Teachers. He was also the founding president of the Northern New York Chapter of the American Association of Teachers of French.

Wall of Honor Inaugurated

The SUNY Plattsburgh Circle of Omicron Delta Kappa (ODK), the national leadership honorary society, celebrated the 10th anniversary of its establishment last Thursday by inaugurating its "Wall of Honor" project in Amity Plaza. All nationally chartered honor societies at the college have been invited to participate in the project by purchasing bronze plaques which bear their name and the date they were chartered for installation on the wall. Taking part in the program (l-r): Christopher Sperl, a past ODK Province I student director, Deborah Hoffman, current student director in the Province, ODK President Juli Schaller, Cheryl Hogle, associate director of campus life and faculty director in Province I, and Dr. Eldridge W. Roark Jr., vice president for student affairs and national president of ODK.

Campus Community Preparing for Commencement '91

The presentation of highly prized awards to faculty, remarks from representatives of three key campus constituencies and the conferral of degrees to about 1,000 members of the Class of 1991 will highlight spring commencement exercises at SUNY Plattsburgh on Saturday (May 18).

The program, to be held in the college Field House, will begin at 11 a.m. Dr. Charles O. Warren, president of the college, will preside. Processional music will be performed by the College Brass Ensemble, directed by Dr. Marshall Onofrio, assistant professor of Music, and the Cardinal Singers, directed by Robert Hall, visiting assistant professor of music, will sing "The National Anthem" and SUNY Plattsburgh's "Alma Mater."

The first award will be presentation of the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters posthumously to Dr. Robert O. Stripling, Distinguished Service Professor Emeritus at the University of Florida, who died on April 30, following a lengthy illness. The degree will be conferred by Judith L. Duken, a 1959 SUNY Plattsburgh graduate and a member of the University's Board of Trustees, and accepting will be Robert O. Stripling Jr. of Gainesville, Fla.

Two members of the college's faculty will be recognized for their promotion by the University's trustees to SUNY's highest faculty rank. Dr. Mark Cohen, professor of anthropology, will be honored for his promotion to SUNY Distinguished Teaching Professor, and Dr. James Dawson, professor of environmental science, will be honored for his promotion to SUNY Distinguished Service Professor.

SUNY Chancellor's Awards for Excellence in Teaching will be presented to three members of the faculty. They are Dr. Thomas J. Morrissey, professor of English, Dr. David N. Mowry, professor of philosophy and director of the college's Honors Program, and Dr. Craig L. Sample, associate professor in the foreign languages and literature department.

Raghida Dergham, a 1973 SUNY Plattsburgh graduate who is senior correspondent in New York City for the London-based Al Hayat, will receive the 1991 Distinguished Alumna Award. The award, given by the college and the Board of Directors of the Plattsburgh Alumni Association to honor graduates of the college for "their achievements, their humanitarian efforts and/or their contributions to the college," will be presented by Rolando A. Thorne '72 of Atlanta, president of the Alumni Association.

Dergham, representing the alumni body, will be the first to deliver commencement remarks. She will be followed by Dr. Ann Tracy, professor of English, who will speak for her faculty and staff colleagues, and by Douglas Sloan, who will receive the bachelor of arts degree in political science during Saturday's program, who will speak for the Class of 1991.

Candidates for degrees — bachelor of arts and bachelor of science, master of science, master of science in education and master of science in teaching, and those who will receive the certificate of advanced study — will be presented by Dr. E. Thomas Moran, vice president for academic affairs. Degrees will be conferred by President Warren. Robert M. Garrow '52, chairperson of the SUNY Plattsburgh College Council, and Wayne H. Byrne, vice chairperson of the Council, will award the diplomas.

A reception for the graduates, their parents, relatives and friends and for the college faculty and staff will be held immediately following the ceremony on the lawn in front of the Field House, or, in the event of rain, in the Ronald B. Stafford ice arena.

Saluted for Service ...

Seventeen members of the college's staff who either have retired or plan to retire within the next few weeks were honored last week at a reception in the Centennial Room. The reception was sponsored by the President's Office and the campus chapters of UIUP and CSEA. Among those honored were (front row, l. to r.) Stephen Harnett, Shirley Matton, and Janet Rock; (second row, l. to r.) Charlene Lombard, Helen Rock, Doris Lambert, and Leona Crane; and (third row, l. to r.) Patrick O'Brien, Calvin Weightman, Charles Krotz, and William Dubrey.

Congratulations and Best Wishes to the Class of 1991!

College Auxiliary Services President Cheryl Hogle (c) presents a check for $5,000 to Plattsburgh College Foundation President Curtis E. Shipman while CAS vice president Jacqueline Lichte looks on. The "one-time" contribution, approved by the CAS Executive Committee, augments Auxiliary Services' regular $5,000 contribution to the Foundation's Annual Giving Campaign, and was made in consideration of the current economic climate in the state and nation and to offset the potential impact of rising tuition and room and board costs. CAS also has contributed $5,000 to the special Centennial Campaign this year.

L-R — Student Association (SA) President Jacqueline Lichte congratulates seniors Ed Lenane and Mike Jette, recipients of the SA Outstanding Service Award, the highest honor conferred by the college's student government organization. Lenane, a secondary education/physics major from Schenectady, and Jette, a chemistry major from West Sand Lake, were chosen for the award by consensus of the SA. It was presented during last Thursday's eleventh annual Student Recognition Awards Program.

Chase to Chair '92 Senate; Wolosz to Serve as Vice Chair

Dr. Marilyn Chase, associate professor in the Center for Human Resources, was elected to chair the Faculty Senate for the 1991-92 academic year during the new Senate's organizational meeting held last Tuesday. Chase, who is the first woman elected to that post, has served three terms on the Senate, has been a member of the executive committee on two occasions, and has served on five of the Senate's six standing committees. She has been a member of the SUNY Plattsburgh faculty since 1967.

Dr. Thomas Wolosz, associate professor in the Center for Earth and Environmental Science, was re-elected vice-chair; Alice Champagne, associate professor of nursing, was elected secretary; and Dr. John Myers, professor of history, and Edward Brohel, director of the SUNY Plattsburgh Art Museum, were elected as members-at-large of the Senate Executive Committee.

Elected to chair Senate standing committees were: Resources and Planning — Michael Miranda; Academic Policies — Dr. Charles Simpson; Curricula and Programs — Dr. Kathleen Whittier; Faculty Affairs — Raymond Guydosh; College Services — Leith Bardon; and General Education — Dr. Patricia Higgins.

Following the organizational meeting of the 1991-92 Faculty Senate, the 1990-91 Senate convened to conduct its final business.

President Charles Warren reported that the budget had still not been finalized.

University Senator James Dawson reported on that body's recent business and asked for volunteers to serve on various committees. Dawson also announced that he had been elected to serve on the University Faculty Senate's executive committee as the representative of the 13 SUNY colleges of arts and science.

Under old business, the Senate tabled discussion of a college mission statement.

Under new business, the Senate approved a recommendation from the Standing Committee on Curricula and Programs revising the anthropology program.

The Senate also approved a recommendation "that students who have been academically dismissed twice from SUNY Plattsburgh may not be readmitted into the institution until they raise their Plattsburgh cumulative grade point average to 2.0 through the nonmatriculated student process." A provision for a review process for individual cases with extenuating circumstances was approved as part of the process.

A proposed review process for the General Education Program was also approved.

Tuesday's Town Meeting Program to Focus on 3 Interrelated Themes

"The Involving College: Students and Faculty as Scholar-Citizens" is the theme of the Town Meeting program for SUNY Plattsburgh faculty and staff scheduled for Tuesday afternoon (May 21) in the Angell Center Ballrooms.

"For several years," explained Dr. Ingrun Lafleur, associate vice president for academic affairs and coordinator of the Town Meeting, "we have demonstrated that we are an 'involving college' through such programs as the Freshman Experience and Transfer Project. We will continue to expand and examine our activities as scholars and citizens at the meeting through three interrelated themes."

Tuesday's program will begin at 1 p.m. with a keynote address titled "The Involving College" by Dr. Rosalind Andreas, vice president for student affairs at the University of Vermont. Concurrent sessions will be held at 2:15 p.m. in three Angell Center locations on the program themes: Internationalizing the Campus, Scholarship Reconsidered and Curriculum Inclusion, with college faculty and staff primarily serving as facilitators.

Following a brief session report period, Dr. Carole Boyce Davies, associate professor in the departments of English, Afro-American and African studies and comparative literature at SUNY Binghamton, will give the capstone address. Her topic: "Scholar-Citizen on the Campus and in the World."

A picnic at 4:30 p.m. in the Angell Center Courtyard will conclude the Town Meeting program. For more information, contact Dr. Lafleur (ext. 2195).

U. of Baltimore Provost Gira Named to Chair Middle States Evaluation Unit

Dr. Catherine R. Gira, provost of the University of Baltimore, will chair the Middle States Evaluation Team, according to Dr. John Myers, who chairs the Middle States Steering Committee.

Myers said that Gira will make a preliminary visit to campus on October 8 and the full team is scheduled to be on campus April 5-8, 1992.

The rest of the members of the evaluation team will be selected by next fall.

Council Meets Saturday

The SUNY Plattsburgh College Council will meet at 9 a.m. on Saturday, May 18 in the Sibley Hall Cafetorium. Agenda items include reports from the various Council liaisons and an update on the budget.

Students and Faculty Report Busy Spring Travel Agenda

It has been a busy spring for student and faculty travel for presentations on undergraduate research and scholarly activity. Reports from faculty on three such trips have been passed along to Weekly.

Four current psychology students and two who hold degrees in that discipline from SUNY Plattsburgh participated, with Dr. Gary Brannigan, professor of psychology, in the recent annual meeting of the Eastern Psychological Association in New York City. Seniors Juli Schaller and Andrew McGarva joined Brannigan in a presentation on "Approval Motivation and Sexual Daydreaming." Amy Shahon (BA, 1989) and Schaller gave a presentation on "Locus Control and Time Orientation in Daydreaming: Implications for Therapy;" Dr. Nancy Brunner (MA, 1982) gave a presentation on a "Comparison of the Qualitative and Developmental Scoring Systems for the Modified Bender-Gestalt Test;" and seniors Michele Wright and Jennifer McIsaac, along with Dr. Henry Morlock, professor of psychology, gave a presentation on "Reducing Anxiety Elicited by Public Speaking."

Twelve members of the Sociology/Criminal Justice Club spent three days in Washington, D.C. recently where they toured the city, met with legislative officials and visited police facilities. According to Paul Clare, associate professor of sociology and club advisor, the most memorable part of the trip for the students was the opportunity to participate in the Washington Metropolitan Police Department's "ride-along-program," in which they patrolled with police officers as they responded to calls in high-crime districts. Clare said the club members themselves obtained the financial support they needed to make the trip and arranged all activities, and he credited Richard Hansen, president, Adam McKechnie, fund-raising coordinator, Kathy Carrol, social chair, Pascha Lester, treasurer, Mike Mech, president-elect, and Kippy Poole, vice president.

Dr. David Mowry, professor of philosophy and director of the college's Honors Center, and four students presented two workshops at the recent Northeast Regional National Collegiate Honors Council annual conference in Wilmington, Del. Mowry and Jack Weinstein co-presented a workshop on "Making the World a Better Place: The Philosophy of Activism," and students Angela Gilbo, Shari McCormick and Delbert Hart co-presented the second, titled "Mentoring and Community: New Uses of Learning Resources." Mowry reports that both workshops were very well attended and highly successful. He noted that Gilbo, a senior, was nominated for one of the student positions on the Executive Committee of the Council, with balloting scheduled to occur later this month.

3rd Transfer Project Summer Institute Set for May 29-31

The Transfer Project, funded by a grant from the U.S. Department of Education's Fund for the Improvement of Postsecondary Education, will host its third Summer Institute from May 29-31.

Faculty and staff from Plattsburgh, from about 30 two-year colleges in SUNY and CUNY and from 12 four-year SUNY colleges, and representatives of University Central Administration and the State Education Department will participate in a program designed to focus on a range of issues affecting transfer students. Among the topics to be emphasized:

- the model articulation program for the A.S. degree in business administration;
- the effects of the new State Education Department regulations for elementary and secondary education upon two-and four-year institutions;
- joint registration programs for teacher education;
- the SUNY guaranteed transfer program for A.A./A.S. graduates;
- levels of preparation and tutoring programs for mathematics;
- the role of liberal arts in teacher education;
- update on data analyses on transfer students; and
- curriculum inclusion.

Sessions will be held on this campus and at Clinton and North Country Community Colleges.

The program was developed by Dr. Suzanne Buckley and Christina Huie Lesyk, project director and administrative officer, respectively, with assistance from members of the Transfer Advisory Board and individuals from this campus who will participate. The latter include Richard Higgins, director of admissions; Michael Walsh, associate director of admissions; Marjorie Pryse, director of the Curriculum Inclusion Project; Raymond Domenico, acting director of the Center for Teacher Education; education faculty Scott Hewit, Anna Nardelli and Sandra Waite-Stupiansky; Ronald Hobson, assistant dean in the School of Business and Economics; accounting faculty Mohamed Gaber, Mark Kaiser and Raymond Thoren; David Kenoyer, chairperson of the mathematics Department; mathematics faculty Joseph Bodenrader and John Kellermeier; Carol Frome, tutor coordinator; and Gordon McNeil, head tutor.

Final Weekly of Spring Term

This is the final issue of Weekly for the spring semester 1991. The editors wish to acknowledge the splendid cooperation of all members of the college community who have contributed to this publication during academic 1990-91 by making news or otherwise keeping us informed of their professional activities and accomplishments and those of their colleagues.

Lucchesi, Schofield Named ODK Sophomores of the Year

Lucchesi and Schofield were chosen from among ten nominees for the award, which recognizes outstanding leadership qualities in sophomore students. ODK is the national leadership honor society.

Lucchesi, a criminal justice major from New Paltz, has been captain of the Plattsburgh State swim team during his first two years at the college and was named to its All-Academic Team last fall, and he has served as a member of the Intercollegiate Athletic Board and the Judicial Board. A member also of Phi Eta Sigma, the freshman academic honorary society, Lucchesi has been selected as a Freshman Experience Program resident assistant during the 1991-92 academic year.

During his freshman year, Schofield, a political science major from Herndon, Va., was president of Adirondack Hall and served as a member of the Student Association Academic Affairs Board. He was appointed a resident assistant for 1990-91 and will continue as an R.A. next fall. Schofield was elected to the Student Association Senate last December, and he will serve as a 1991 Student Orientation leader.

Booster Club Chooses Griffith, Micheels as Top Athletes

Seniors Aija Griffith and Brian Micheels have been named Cardinal Booster Club Athletes of the Year for 1990-91.

Griffith, a four-year standout in volleyball, and Micheels, stalwart of the Cardinal soccer team that finished second in the State University Conference last fall and won the ECAC Upstate New York championship, received the honor at a picnic for all SUNY Plattsburgh student-athletes held last Wednesday at the Valcour Conference Center boathouse. The event was sponsored by the Cardinal Booster Club.

Griffith, an elementary education major from Babylon, re-wrote the record books in volleyball during her career at Plattsburgh State, including most aces per match (7), most aces in one season (57), most blocks in one season (50), most assists in one season (405), and most points in one season (198). She was a three-time member of the Department of Physical Education, Athletics and Recreational Sports (PEARS) All-Academic Team, and she coached volleyball for two years at Mount Assumption Institute in Plattsburgh.

Micheels, who received his bachelor's degree in communication arts last December, played four years of soccer for the Cardinals and captained the 1990 team that scored a record-breaking 59 goals and established a new school record for victories in a single season with 16 (against two losses and as many ties). He was the third leading scorer on last fall's team — an unusual accomplishment for a defender — and an all-SUNYAC selection, and he was a member of the PEARS All-Academic Team last fall and an honorable mention member four previous semesters. He played club hockey at the college, performed with its jazz ensemble and was saxophonist with several North County bands.

Items of Interest ...

Final grades for the spring 1991 semester will be mailed to students from the Office of the Registrar on or about June 12.

An informational meeting on TIAA/CRF will be held from 10 to 11 a.m. on Tuesday, May 21 in the Blue Room of the Angell College Center.

Six in EOP Program Cited by Chancellor for Achievement

Six students in the Educational Opportunity Program received the annual Chancellor's Award for Outstanding Student Achievement this spring. The award is presented to EOP participants who graduate with cumulative grade point averages of 3.0 or better. This year's honorees are Joanne Garrow, Barry Montour, Gayle Ratner, Donna Stewart, Andrew Wallace, and Sandra Watson.

The EOP Office also recognized several people for outstanding contributions to the program. Maureen Matos-Perez '86 is this year's Distinguished EOP Alumna. Matos-Perez is an audiologist at CVPH Medical Center. She has served as a volunteer translator for refugees at the local Crisis Center and she is active in the Hispanic Heritage Club at Plattsburgh Air Force Base. Marlene Cummings, a member of the clerical staff in the Admissions Office, was recognized for Distinguished Professional Service to the EOP Program. Cummings manages the admissions files of more than 800 EOP applicants each year and was cited for her

The late James Miller '90 was honored posthumously for Distinguished Professional Service. Miller spent three summers as a tutor/counselor in the program.

Robert Harsh, EOP counselor, congratulates Marlene Cummings (c.) and Maureen Matos-Perez on their Distinguished Service and Distinguished Alumna Awards.

Gandhi Named Dean of School of Business & Economics

Dr. Prem Gandhi, Distinguished Service Professor of economics, has been chosen to head the SUNY Plattsburgh School of Business and Economics, effective September 1. The new dean was selected following a six-month national search which attracted numerous highly-qualified candidates.

Dean Gandhi

President Charles O. Warren said, "For more than two decades, Prem Gandhi has repeatedly and clearly demonstrated his commitment to teaching, to our students, to excellence and scholarship, to a deep and broad understanding of global economics and to exceptionally outstanding service to this college, our university and our region. We are both pleased and privileged that he has accepted this new leadership role and challenge and we have great expectations for future developments."

Dr. Thomas Moran, vice president for academic affairs, said that Gandhi was the ideal candidate for the position. "We looked for several qualities in a dean,"

Moran said. "including trustworthiness, a vision for the school, and dedication to the college, its faculty and students. We were also looking for someone who could shape a new direction for the school — who could help build a very high quality school of business and economics, who could put a distinctive focus on international business education with a specific emphasis on Canada-U.S. relations, and who could lead the school to a distinctive role in regional economic development. Dr. Gandhi's background, his experience, and his reputation for integrity and commitment made him an ideal candidate."

Gandhi joined the SUNY Plattsburgh faculty in 1966, as an assistant professor. He was promoted to full professor in 1978 and, in 1990, received a promotion to his current position, which is one of two top ranks (with Distinguished Teaching Professor) in the State University system.

His area of expertise centers on international economics and, for the past few years, he has focused on U.S.-Canadian economic relations. He serves as co-director of the college's new Institute for International Business, Education, Research and Training and as executive director of the U.S.-Canadian Business Advisory Council. He is also coordinator of the International Business Program and formerly chaired the business

Budget Analysis Continues; Cut Could Reach $1.5 Million

SUNY Plattsburgh officials are continuing to analyze the effects of the impact on campus programs and services of the 1991-92 austerity budget for the State of New York passed by the Legislature in early June, two months beyond deadline, and later slashed by line item vetoes by Governor Cuomo.

"We are awaiting word on the final budget plan for the University and our campus," commented Plattsburgh President Charles O. Warren, "but we won't know specifically what it means for us for some time. We do know that our college will be required to absorb a budget reduction of between 4.2 and 5.1 percent."

Cut May Total $1.5 Million

The consequences of the cut for the Plattsburgh campus, he added, could be up to $1.5 million, and that translates to a loss of between 30 and 35 positions. Had the budget passed originally by the Legislature remained intact, the reduction would have been about $867,000 and 20 positions. Had it survived without the governor's vetoes, the college would have received about $980,000 in "member item" allocations attributed to the legislative resourcefulness of Sen. Ronald B. Stafford (R-Plattsburgh). These allocations were targeted for library automation, for communication and nursing laboratory equipment, for a mobile scientific laboratory supporting environmental studies and involving area elementary and middle schools, and for a nuclear magnetic resonance apparatus for the chemistry and physics programs.

STATE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK

Foundation to Salute President's Club Members Sunday

Nearly 200 members of the Plattsburgh College Foundation's President's Club will be honored on Sunday at a brunch at the Valcour Educational Center.

Members of the President's Club donate at least $500 annually to the Foundation.

Twenty-four new members will be welcomed to the club for the first time, and each will receive an attractive plaque in appreciation for their support.

An additional 174 individuals and businesses who have been members in previous years will also be saluted and will receive date tabs denoting their participation in the 1990 campaign.

Foundation president Curtis Shipman will welcome the guests, who will then hear "State of the College" remarks by College President Charles Warren.

This year's new members are: Laurie H. Booth-Trudo, Mark G. Carrk '82, Dr. Nancy J. Church, Leonard E. Churnetski '70, Coldwell Banker, Durham's Exchange, Inc., Adrian and Lora Pratt Edmonds /'39, Janet Edwards, Garrand's Nissan, Inc., Cheryl M. Hogle '68, John and Norma Homburger '75, Edward M. LeStrange '70, Harry and Sara Marshall '73/'73, and Albert and Laurene Mihalek '75/'76.

Also, Northeast Printing Company, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Pray '70, Dr. Ira A. Rowelson Jr., Julius A. Spence '36, John and Susan Spissinger, Mark and Ellen Tangry '80/'80, Mr. and Mrs. Donald M. Terry, Margot L. Thomas '71, Traynor Marcus Dossert Agency, and Phyllis Trieble '55.

College Hosting Sony Workshops; All Four Are 'Sellouts'

The first of four video workshops sponsored by the SONY Corporation of America on campus this summer is currently underway, according to Conference Coordinator Kate Chilton. Chilton said all four workshops are sold out.

The college first hosted a SONY workshop three years ago. The corporation was pleased with the college's resources and facilities and impressed with the reception the staff and students received.

Lawrence Arcarese, associate professor of communications, served as liaison between the campus and the corporation.

The SONY Workshops present the most comprehensive educational curriculum in video today. This week's workshop is entitled Basic Production Strategy and Techniques and covers elements of preproduction, production and postproduction, along with operational, organizational and marketing concepts.

Two Edit Weeks present a comprehensive study of basic editing technology and aesthetics as well as the production strategies that create a successful program.

The final workshop, Camera Technique and Visualization, is geared for videographers seeking additional hands-on training in single-camera production.

The budget cuts will take effect even though the Legislature approved a $500 tuition increase for SUNY students, to be effective this fall, as part of the state budget plan for fiscal 1991-92. The increase, Warren said, was critical to the University's viability. Had it been denied, SUNY would have been required to absorb an added budget reduction of between five and six percent.

Part-time Students Also Affected

Undergraduate students who are New York State residents will pay $2,150 for tuition in academic 1991-92, while out-of-state students will pay $5,750. Tuition for graduate students will rise to $3,200 for state residents and to $6,516 for those who reside outside of New York.

Costs will rise substantially also for part-time students. Credit hour charges per semester for in-state students (undergraduates) have doubled to $90, and they have been increased by $83 to $240 for out-of-state residents.

They have increased as well for graduate students, who will pay $134 per credit hour if they live in New York and $274 if they are non-state residents, representing increases for both of $44 per credit hour.

On a budget-related and cost-savings matter, a retirement incentive for employees who participate in the TIAA-CREF program has been approved by the State Legislature.

Prompt Reply Necessary

Eligible SUNY Plattsburgh faculty and staff have been notified of the option by mail. Those who wish to take advantage of the option or who would like more information about the incentive are encouraged to contact the Office of Personnel and Affirmative Action (564-3062) no later than June 28.

SUNY Plattsburgh has been preparing for a reduced allocation for operations in the coming academic year since last fall, when a college-wide program and activity review process was initiated. The review has followed a carefully drafted set of guidelines, principles, assumptions and criteria and has focused on all levels of employment and all functions.

The effects of the 1991-92 budget on the SUNY Plattsburgh campus will be reported in detail to the college community as soon as they become clear.

Flynt to Receive Rare Designation as 'Honorary Alumnus'

Willard "Bill" Flynt will be made an Honorary Alumnus of SUNY Plattsburgh during Homecoming Week-end this fall. The award will be conferred during the Homecoming Banquet (Saturday, October 19) on behalf of President Charles O. Warren and the Alumni Association Board of Directors in recognition of Flynt's years of unselfish and dedicated service to students.

Flynt served variously as director of admissions, dean of students and vice president for student affairs during his 20 years on campus. He retired in 1975 and currently serves as a special assistant to long-time State Senator Ronald B. Stafford.

Announcing the upcoming honor, Warren said, "Only a few faculty or staff members achieve the status of 'campus hero.' Bill Flynt is one of those. He is remembered by generations of students as firm, fair, and friendly. Seldom does a major college celebration pass without alumni recalling their favorite Bill Flynt stories — and they are stories which attest to his warmth, his caring and his sensitivity. This honor is well deserved and we are pleased to include him among our most important constituency."

Rolando Thorne, president of the Alumni Association, echoed Warren's feelings, adding, "We welcome

Bill Flynt into the family of alumni. I doubt that anyone cares more for this college than Bill Flynt and it is appropriate that we make him one of us."

Only two other people — the late Dr. Edward E. "Doc" Redcay and the late Dr. George W. Angell — have been honored with the designation. Redcay was associated with the college for nearly 60 years in numerous positions, including acting president. As president of SUNY Plattsburgh from 1954 to 1974, Angell presided over 20 years of unprecedented growth and change for the college. The Angell College Center commemorates his presidency.

Award of Honor — SUNY Plattsburgh President Charles O. Warren (l) presents the college's Presidential Award of Honor to Howard C. La Pointe during a luncheon program that culminated spring commencement events on Saturday, May 18. La Pointe, whose career in food service management at the college spans nearly 23 years, was recognized for his "superior talent, consistently outstanding performance and distinguished service to the SUNY Plattsburgh campus community," and "in genuine appreciation of your helpful manner and the cooperative spirit you bring to every task." The award, second in terms of significance only to the Distinguished Service Award, the highest honor the college is permitted to confer, notes further that La Pointe has been instrumental in planning and coordinating literally hundreds of special events — from luncheons for visiting dignitaries and dedicatory programs to receptions and banquet — "with a flair and attention to detail that quietly but effectively reflect the quality of (the) institution."

He was chief project investigator for a study of export potential for New York State under the Free Trade Agreement, and one of four principal investigators of a business cost comparison in Northern New York with three areas in Canada and two New England states.

Gandhi has published numerous articles and made frequent scholarly presentations on various aspects of U.S.-Canadian trade, foreign investment and regional economic development.

Gandhi has also been active in college affairs, serving on the Faculty Senate, chairing the Resources and Planning Committee, chairing the Graduate Studies Committee and co-editing Focus Canada.

The new dean holds the B.A. and M.A. in economics from Delhi University, the M.B.A. from New York University and the Ph.D. in economics from the New School for Social Research.

Myrick Named Track All-America; Wright Honored by Eastern Basketball

Two student athletes have won post-season (and post-academic-year) honors for achievement in their sport.

Heather Myrick, a sophomore psychology major from Wheatland, Calif., received All-America recognition in track and field as a result of her outstanding performance at the NCAA Division III track championships held in mid-May in Cleveland. Todd Wright, a junior criminal justice major from Delmar, has been named to the Eastern Basketball Magazine Division III All-East basketball team. The magazine, a national publication, covers college and university basketball programs in New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Maine and Maryland.

Myrick earned All-America honors by virtue of an eighth place finish in long jump competition. The All-America distinction is given in track to the top eight performers in their events. Myrick had qualified for the NCAAAs in both the long jump and the triple jump. Earlier in the spring, Myrick won her first state title in the long jump in the New York State Women's Collegiate Athletic Association Championships.

Wright, a 6-8 center, was the leading scorer for the (10-16) 1990-91 Cardinals with a 16.8 points per-game average, and he led the team in rebounds with eight per game. He was named as a consensus first-team player on the SUNY Conference team for the second consecutive year, and he was selected by his basketball teammates as the past year's most valuable player.

Syracuse Reunion

A gathering of alumni from the Syracuse area on June 8 in the Erie Canal Museum in that city's Weighlock Building culminated a series of successful spring reunion programs organized by the college's Office of Alumni Affairs. Similar events were held on June 7 for alumni who reside in and around Rochester and on June 2 for graduates who live and work on Long Island.

Domenico Chosen to Lead Center for Teacher Education

Dr. Raymond A. Domenico has been named director of the Center for Teacher Education and Educational Services/associate dean for professional studies, effective August 1. Domenico has been serving as acting director for the past year and was selected for the post following a nationwide search.

Domenico

Dr. Thomas Moran, vice president for academic affairs, said, "Dr. Domenico has long shown the kind of balanced perspective and judgement, dedication to students, and capacity for hard work that we need in a director. In addition, he is a fair-minded and capable administrator whose skills will be extremely useful in building a new teacher education program, especially in a time of such changing currents in the field."

Dr. Virginia Barker, dean for professional studies, added, "I am very pleased that Dr. Domenico has agreed to accept our offer. He has been a valued, trusted and respected colleague in professional studies for many years. He has served the entire campus through the Faculty Senate and other campus responsibilities. I believe he will bring a knowledge of the college, its mission and future goals to education in a dynamic manner."

The Center for Teacher Education and Educational Studies serves approximately 1,250 graduate and undergraduate students in six program areas.

Domenico, associate professor and chair of the department of hearing and speech science, has been a member of the SUNY Plattsburgh faculty since 1982. He is also co-director (with Dr. Taher Zandi) of the Alzheimer's Disease Assistance Center).

He has been very active in campus governance. He chaired the Faculty Senate for two years and currently holds the elected post of presiding officer of the faculty.

Domenico serves as a consultant in speech pathology for several area nursing homes and is a member of the Board of Directors of the Northern New York Center and of the City of Plattsburgh Planning Board..

Prior to coming to SUNY Plattsburgh, Domenico worked in several capacities at the Loretto Geriatric Center in Syracuse.

Domenico holds the Ph.D. and M.A., both in speech pathology, from Syracuse University and the B.A. from Northeastern University.

College Recovers Some Funds Via Special Appropriations

While the budget news for SUNY Plattsburgh is dismal overall (college officials are in the process of forging the final spending plan for the now current fiscal year), several items vetoed by Governor Cuomo in the final stages of negotiations with the State Legislature have since been restored — albeit, at a lower level of funding.

The college has been notified that special appropriations secured through the efforts of Sen. Ronald B. Stafford (R-Plattsburgh) have been returned to its budget at 80 percent of the total approved prior to the governor's veto. That means SUNY Plattsburgh will receive $784,000 in special appropriations in its 1991-92 operating budget. The item-by-item breakdown:

- $400,000 in support of library automation;

- $160,000 for equipment for the college's communication program;

- $160,000 for a nuclear magnetic resonance apparatus for the chemistry/physics programs;

- $40,000 for nursing laboratory equipment; and

- $24,000 to outfit a mobile scientific laboratory supporting environmental studies and involving area elementary and middle schools.

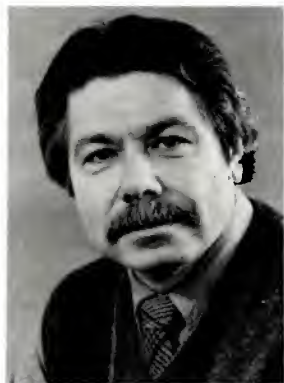

"These items are very important to the academic mission of our college," commented SUNY Plattsburgh President Charles O. Warren, "so we are fortunate indeed to have the advocacy of Sen. Stafford. He's always willing to listen to legitimate requests for help and to lend his leadership to support those that represent progress."

Hamernik Signs 5-Year Army Pact to Study Noise Levels

Dr. Roger Hamernik, professor of physics and hearing and speech science, has signed a five-year $820,537 contract with the U.S. Army Medical Research to continue his research into how exposure to high levels of noise in various environments affects the auditory system.

Hamernik

Hamernik explained the project. "Exposure to excessive levels of noise is a serious health problem in a variety of military environments. Noise-induced hearing loss is a problem that impacts severely on the quality of life of the affected individual and on society in general, and the resultant economic costs are increasing rapidly. The general consensus is that existing standards for exposure to high levels of noise are either wrong or inadequate. We intend to work toward the development of a new criterion, based upon a cohesive, systematically acquired body of experimental data."

Hamernik and his research staff in the Auditory Research Laboratory have conducted extensive research in this area in the past few years and are recognized as leading experts in the field. They have received numerous grants to further their research and their results have been published widely in scholarly journals.

Hamernik joined the SUNY Plattsburgh faculty in 1986 after several years at the Callier Center for Communication Disorders at the University of Texas at Dallas.

College 1 of 7 Taking Part in Job Link Pilot Program

SUNY Plattsburgh is one of seven SUNY campuses taking part in a pilot job location program, according to Patrick Lennahan, director of the Career/Life Planning Office. Job Link, Lennahan explained, is a computerized career education and job placement tool which is a joint project of SUNY and the New York State Department of Labor.

A computerized data bank, accessible through a computer in the research room of the Career/Life Planning Office, provides information on jobs listed in the Department of Labor job bank, including location, working conditions, education and experience requirements and salary.

Lennahan explained the process. "It's very simple. A graduating marketing major, for instance, may be interested in jobs in northern New York. Typing in a few commands brings up a screen listing the jobs available in that area. If one sounds appealing, the student simply contacts the local Department of Labor office for an interview to determine that he or she meets the minimum qualifications for the job and is then referred to the company with the opening."

The program is currently available on state campuses at Oneonta, Brockport, Albany, Utica/Rome and at Hudson Valley and Corning Community Colleges. It will eventually be available on all SUNY campuses. The use of the computer is open to anyone interested.

Summer Feeding Program Available

The Research Foundation of the State University of New York for and on behalf of SUNY Plattsburgh has announced the sponsorship of a U.S. Department of Agriculture Summer Feeding Program for Children. Free meals will be made available to Educational Opportunity Program participants without regard to race, color, sex, handicap, age, or national origin. Meals will be provided at Clinton Dining Hall during their summer program.

Bill Robbins Retrospective ...

"Virginia Landscape" (1987) is one of more than 100 works produced by art professor William Robbins over a period of almost three decades which are included in a Bill Robbins Retrospective, a major exhibition opening in the Myers Gallery on July 27 and running through September 21. The show represents not only a considerable span of years, but also a rich variety of styles and techniques, ranging from Robbins' early primitive, expressionistic approach through a tightly disciplined realistic style which dominated his works from the 1970's to his most recent colorfully impressionistic pieces. Robbins joined the SUNY Plattsburgh art faculty in 1968, after receiving his M.A. and M.F.A. degrees at the University of Iowa. He teaches drawing and painting and his work has been exhibited throughout the region and the country, as well as in the Soviet Union. The exhibition will open with a reception on July 27 from 4 to 6 p.m. in the Myers Fine Arts Gallery, and all are invited.

35th Leadership Workshop Brings 300 Educators Here

The SUNY Plattsburgh campus will be teeming with activity this week and next as about 300 elementary and secondary teachers and school administrators have registered for the 35th annual National Leadership Workshop, headquartered at Sibley Hall.

The workshop, scheduled to continue through August 2, is sponsored jointly by the college, the national associations of elementary and secondary school principals and the School Administrators Association of New York State. The two-week program is focusing on topics of increasing importance in the field of education, including computer literacy, developments in reading, student behavior and discipline, and improvement of supervisory behavior and staff evaluation.

The daily schedule features general session speakers whose presentations are spliced between classroom meetings, with the topics designed to stimulate discussion and debate among workshop instructors and participants. The speakers include college education and counseling faculty, a school business officer, an official from the New York State Education Department, an attorney, and the executive director of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools. Their topics range from change in education and techniques to motivate students and energize the curriculum, to coping with educational trends and schools and constitutional issues.

Nearly 20 separate workshop strands are being taught by leading professional educators from all parts of the United States. For the 29th consecutive year, Dr. Nicholas Troisi, dean and professor of education emeritus of the Faculty of Professional Studies at SUNY Plattsburgh, is serving as the resident director of the Leadership Workshop.

SUNY Library Association Gives '91 Award to Ellis

Dr. W. Raney Ellis, director of computing services, has been named recipient of the 1991 "Friend of SUNYLA Award."

SUNYLA is the acronym for the State University of New York Librarians Association.

An article in a recent issue of the association's newsletter reports that Ellis was honored "for the support he has shown libraries both on his own campus and state-

M.A. in Speech Pathology-Audiology Receives 5-Year ASHA Accreditation

The college's master's degree program in Speech-Language Pathology and Audiology has been accredited by the Educational Standards Board of the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association (ASHA).

The accreditation was effective June 1, and will continue to June 1, 1996. SUNY Plattsburgh's name will appear on all published lists of accredited programs during the five-year accreditation period, including the Guide to Graduate Education in Speech-Language Pathology and Audiology and the journal of the ASHA. It will appear also on periodic lists published separately annually and sent on request to individuals.

Over the next three years, the college will be required to submit annual reports for review by the Standards Board to ensure that the program here complies with requirements for accredited programs. On the fourth anniversary of the current accreditation period, the college will be asked to submit an application applying for reaccreditation.

wide." It continues, "Most recently, (Ellis) has shared his time and expertise as a member of the Library Automation Implementation Program, serving on the RFT development and evaluation committee, on the Negotiation team, and as a key player in the Library Automation Users Group. In these activities," the article concludes, "he has shown respect for the mission of libraries and the voices of librarians."

Ellis could not be present for the official presentation of the award at a SUNYLA conference in Utica in June, but he did the next best thing. According to college Librarian Cerise Oberman, who "introduced" her colleague at the presentation ceremony, Ellis, with help from communication staff here, prepared a video acceptance speech which, in Oberman's words, "was truly wonderful."

Opening Breakfast on August 23

The breakfast meeting opening the 1991-92 academic year has been scheduled for 7:30 a.m. on Friday, August 23 in the Angell Center Ballrooms. Details will follow.

College Mourns Deaths of Botanist Walker, Musician Miller

Two prominent retired members of the SUNY Plattsburgh teaching faculty have died this month.

Dr. Philip C. Walker, 79, professor emeritus of biology and a member of the faculty at the college for 32 years, died on Sunday, July 7, at the CVPH Medical Center in Plattsburgh.

Walker

Miller

Dr. James B. Miller, 70, professor of music emeritus from 1956 to 1985, died on Monday, July 16, also at the community's medical center.

SUNY Plattsburgh President Charles O. Warren praised the talents of both men and hailed their contributions to the college community, especially to its students. Of Walker, he said, "Phil Walker ranks among the most admired and truly outstanding teacher-scholars to have served (the college) during its first 100 years. Our alumni remember him as demanding but caring and always friendly ... his friends and colleagues will remember him as a kind and gentle person who was an inspiration to them and a credit to this institution and to their profession."

Of Miller, Warren commented, "Jim Miller was a quiet, sensitive teacher and colleague who commanded the respect of students and everyone with whom he interacted. His musicianship was outstanding and was his ability as a composer and arranger, and he will be greatly missed."

Walker was well known on campus and in the community for his expertise in botany. He joined the college in 1951 and retired in July of 1982, although, in retirement, he continued to teach field biology courses. A native of Pittsburgh, Walker received the Ph.D. in botany-biology from the University of Pittsburgh in 1958. Prior to joining Plattsburgh, he taught at his alma mater, at Geneva College and at West Virginia Institute of Technology, and during the summers of 1946-50 he was an outdoor education instructor at New York University.

He is survived by his wife of 50 years, the former Helen F. Vath, and by four children and three grandchildren. Memorial donations may be made to the Dr.

Philip C. Walker Scholarship Fund in care of the Plattsburgh College Foundation.

During his nearly three decades at the college, Miller, who earned the doctorate from Columbia University, taught virtually every music course offered, and he conducted the college's Symphonic Band for more than 27 years. Prior to joining Plattsburgh, he taught at the former Champlain College, then became director of music at St. John's Academy in Plattsburgh. He became widely known throughout the Northeast as an accomplished jazz guitarist.

Miller was a published arranger, composer and versatile musician. His National Boy Scout Song for Band was performed for President Lyndon Johnson at the 1964 National Boy Scout Jamboree, and his arrangement of Bach's Praeludium in C Minor was featured in local concerts and at the New York State School Music Association's convention in 1984.

He was a member of the American Musicological Society, the Music Educators National Conference, the New York State School Music Association, and the College Band Directors Association. He is survived by his wife, the former Dorothy Harnett, a son, two daughters and three grandchildren.

High School French Teachers Taking Part in Institute Here

Nineteen teachers of high school French from across the United States are taking part in the Eighth Annual French-Canadian Institute for Language and Culture. The institute is partially funded by the U.S. Department of Education.

Dr. Jeanne Kissner, director of the institute and associate director of the college's Center for the Study of Canada, explained that the purpose of the ten-day program is to familiarize French teachers with the Canadian French language and culture so they are better able to teach their students about our neighbors to the North.

Participants spend three days in Plattsburgh, two days in Montreal, and five days in Quebec City. During that time, they have regular classes in Quebecois French and culture.

Among the guest speakers are the Quebec Education Attache from New York City, the Political Attache of the Ministry of Justice and Canadian Intergovernmental Affairs, and the Assistant Consul General in Quebec City.

Participants represent high schools in Arizona, California, Florida, Georgia, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Montana, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Texas, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin.
